Note.—Under the Act 26 Vict. c. 25, s. 1 (1863), £. 24,000,000 Stock, at Three per Cent., standing in the books of the Bank of England to the credit of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt for Savings Banks, was cancelled in the books of the Bank, in the year 1863-4, and a corresponding amount written into the books of the Treasury and the Exchequer, as a charge for Savings Banks upon the Consolidated Fund; the interest of the Stock being payable half yearly (at Three per Cent. as before) to the National Debt Commissioners. This did not, however, involve any change in the amount of debt, or in the annual charge for interest.

— No. 1. —

The Secretary of the Bank of Ireland to Mr. G. A. Hamilton.

Sir, Bank of Ireland, 30 December 1863.

I BEG to enclose copy of a letter received from the Comptroller of the National Debt, dated 19th instant, relative to a transfer to England of the balance of the unclaimed dividend account here.

While preparing to carry out these instructions, the Governors and Directors are desirous to submit the following observations to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, for their consideration.

Their Lordships are respectfully referred to the arrangement entered into with them, as confirmed by your letter of 20th January 1859, by which it will be observed, that in consideration of this Bank retaining the use of the public Balances, a reduction of 6,576*l.* (being the difference between 3½ and 3¼) in the rate of interest on the debt due by Government to the Bank was agreed upon, and which arrangement it was stated should be considered both a "general and permanent" one with reference to the whole of the Government accounts kept at the Bank of Ireland.

The immediate cause calling for the arrangement of the terms upon which this Bank conducted the Government business was, an Act of Parliament, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 72, then but recently passed, with reference, among other things, to rendering productive the balances then lying to credit of the Incumbered, now "Landed Estates Court."

At this period the average balance of the Landed Estates Court was 573,000*l.*, and it was not contemplated by the officer of that Court that it could be reduced below 400,000*l.*, but the operations of the Court have since reduced the balance to 223,000*l.*, and render it probable that the amount will be much further diminished, to the serious loss of the Bank of Ireland.

Among the other public balances in the hands of the Bank of Ireland at the time of the above agreement in 1859, was the amount of unclaimed dividends, which had never been withdrawn from the Bank since the year 1799; but by an Act of Parliament passed in the following year, 1860, the English Acts, 56 Geo. 3, c. 60, and the 8 & 9 Vict. c. 62, were extended to Ireland, and the carrying out the provisions of these Acts was entrusted to the Bank of Ireland, who have taken the same steps as those adopted by the Bank of England, whereby the balance of unclaimed dividends of 10 years' standing, and upwards, has been reduced from 56,378*l.*, as it stood in January 1861, to 38,562*l.*; and in conformity with the Act of 23 & 24 Vict. c. 71, it is now proposed to transfer to England the greater part of this sum for the purpose of investment in the Government Funds, thus reducing the balance of that account in the hands of the Bank of Ireland about 50,000*l.*; and at the same time there has been entailed a considerable expense on the Bank of Ireland in carrying out the details rendered necessary by the Act.

Having now briefly laid before you, for their Lordships' information, the circumstances under which the Bank of Ireland finds itself placed by the serious reduction in the balances alluded to, which at the time of the agreement of 1859 were looked upon as permanent, the Governors and Directors beg to leave the matter in their Lordships' hands, with full reliance that it will meet with their favourable consideration.

I have, &c.

G. A. Hamilton, Esq., (signed) P. Du Bédat,
Treasury Chambers, London. Secretary.

Enclosure in No. 1.

Sir, National Debt Office, 19 December 1863.

THE Commissioners having had before them the account of unclaimed dividend money in the books of the Bank of Ireland, amounting to 38,562 l. 16 s., and being of opinion that so much of such balance as may in your opinion not be required to enable you to make repayment to parties establishing their claims to re-transfer of the stock, and consequent payment of the lapsed dividends, should be invested in the public funds in the usual manner, they have it in contemplation to make arrangements for the transfer of such amount, whatever it may be, from their account in the books of the Bank of Ireland to their account in the books of the Bank of England, with a view to such investment in the public funds. The amount of the stock so purchased might, if the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland thought that course desirable, be transferred into the names of the Commissioners of the Bank of Ireland.

I am therefore to request that you will communicate to me whether the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland see any objection to this arrangement, and the amount disposable for investment.

I have, &c.

The Secretary, Bank of Ireland. (signed) A. Y. Spearman.

— No. 2. —

The Governor of the Bank of Ireland to the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Sir, Bank of Ireland, 30 August 1864.

MR. George Alexander Hamilton, the Under Secretary of the Treasury, accompanied by Mr. Anderson, having by appointment called at the Bank, had a conversation with some members of our Board, relative to the altered position of our bank since 1859, as stated in our letter to the Lords of the Treasury the 30th of last December, and they then stated to us that you would wish to consider as a whole the relations between the Government and the Bank of Ireland with a view to a settlement for a term of years, as made with the Bank of England in 1861, and that in any new arrangement you would wish the following points to be included :—

1st. That the interest to be paid the Bank on the debt due to it by Government should be reduced to 3 per cent.

2nd. That the Bank of Ireland should be paid a rate to be agreed upon for management of the Public Debt.

3rd. That the Bank should receive a reasonable remuneration for expenses in carrying out the Acts of Parliament regarding unclaimed dividends.

4th. The balances in the hands of the Bank, from time to time, to be considered solely with reference to the public requirements, and that keeping these in view the Governors and Directors should make such a statement, as they might think right, of the duties performed by them for the Government; the remuneration they would consider reasonable for these services, and any other circumstance they might wish to bring forward for your consideration, previous to a general arrangement for a specified term of years, and accordingly I beg to lay before you the following observations :—

From the passing of Sir Robert Peel's Banking Act for Ireland in 1845, until the year 1859, the Bank of Ireland continued to receive 3½ per cent. on the the debt due to it by Government. In 1859 the large balance kept in the Bank by the Incumbered Estates Court was brought under the consideration of Parliament with a view to defray part of the expenses of the Court, out of the profits derivable from the use of that balance, and an Act was passed to enable Government to make such arrangements as they thought right for this object; in consequence, it was arranged that the interest on the debt due to the Bank should be reduced from 3½ to 3¼ per cent., in consideration of the profit which the Bank was to derive from the use of the large balances which it was expected would remain permanently at the credit of the Court's account. This reduction amounted to 6,576 l. per annum, but since that period the balances of the Incumbered (now Landed) Estates Court have been rapidly diminished, the balance (which in 1858 averaged 573,488 l.) being now only 114,000 l. which cannot be considered more than adequate remuneration, for an account kept in the greatest detail; the Bank being required, as in the Court of Chancery, to keep separate accounts for every suit in the Court, and to verify the proper signature of every draft presented.

Since 1859 the Bank has also lost the use of the larger portion of balances of Unclaimed Dividends, the sum of 30,000 l. having, by directions of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, been transferred to England, and there invested for the public benefit, and a further sum of 26,000 l. having been paid to claimants (every information and facility being given to claimants the same as in the Bank of England), making the entire reduction of the permanent cash balance on account of Unclaimed Dividends in the hands of the Bank since 1859, amount to about 56,000 l.

Under the above circumstances, it is respectfully submitted that the Bank of Ireland should now be considered in the same position as it stood in 1859, when it received 3½ per cent. on its loan to the Government, the special grounds on which the reduction of ¼ per cent. was agreed to having passed away, and therefore that the reduction of interest to 3 per cent. on the debt due to the Bank may fairly be considered as a loss to it of 13,152 l., or ½ per cent. on the amount of the capital lent to Government.

In considering the second point, namely, the rate of remuneration to be paid to the Bank for management of the public debt, I beg to observe that for many years the Bank of Ireland has been in the habit of paying the dividends to holders of stock at all its branches, and also has the business of the purchase and sale of stock, for persons residing in any county where a branch of the Bank exists, executed without any banking charge—a practice since adopted by the Bank of England; also, the Bank of Ireland, at the same time as the Bank of England, limited the period for having the transfer books shut, to one day each half-year.

The amount of Government funds in the books of the Bank of Ireland is 36,762,699 l., while the number of accounts is 27,212, being 740 accounts per million, or upwards of double the number per million at the Bank of England; I would, therefore, beg to suggest that a graduated scale of remuneration on the principle adopted in the English account be allowed to the Bank as follows:

1. When the amount of stock shall be less than 30,000,000 l., the Bank to be paid for management at the rate of 450 l. per million per annum.
2. When the amount of stock shall exceed 30,000,000 l., and shall not amount to more than 40,000,000 l., the Bank to be paid at the rate of 300 l. per million.
3. When the amount of stock shall exceed 40,000,000 l., the Bank to be paid upon all stock in excess of that amount at the rate of 150 l. per million.

The annual payment to the Bank at this rate upon the amount at present held in Ireland would be about 11,000 l. a year, still leaving the Bank, if the present proposal should be adopted, losers upon the arrangement which existed prior to 1859 of 2,150 l. per annum.

The third point as to remuneration for carrying out the provisions of the Act for facilitating the owners receiving Government stock and dividends long unclaimed, we leave, together with the additional duties hereinafter stated, for your consideration; and with respect to the last point, the Board are perfectly satisfied that the Government balances should remain, or be made available solely with reference to the requirements of the public.

In addition to the foregoing and to the ordinary banking business connected with the Exchequer, Pay Office, and other drawing accounts, the Bank, at the request of the several heads of departments from time to time, and without special reference to the Treasury, conducts certain other duties of great detail which should be specially mentioned ; such as—

1. Distribution of moneys throughout Ireland to the several paymasters of Artillery, Royal Engineers, Militia, and on commissariat and barrack masters' accounts, formerly done through army agents.
2. Distribution of moneys also throughout Ireland to all staff officers of pensioners, formerly done by public officers.
3. Payment by remittances to seceding ministers and others, formerly paid by the Pay Office.
4. Collection of fines and penalties from every petty sessions' clerk in Ireland.
5. Collection of instalments from borrowers under the Land Improvement Acts, involving much time and great labour.
6. Purchasing and selling and having the custody of Exchequer Bills held on account of the several county treasurers in Ireland, of whose public accounts seven only are kept with this Bank, thus incurring considerable labour and expense without any corresponding remuneration.

The business connected with the foregoing is conducted through the medium of correspondence, upwards of 100 letters being frequently received in one day, to the majority of which replies have to be returned, involving risk, and a certain amount of expense for clerks, postage, and stationery.

In conclusion, I beg to say that the Bank of Ireland have always been most anxious to do everything in their power to assist the heads of every public department in keeping the banking accounts in the safest and most convenient manner, and in distributing the funds passing through their hands without risk to the Government Departments for which the distribution is made.

I have, &c.

BANK OF IRELAND.

REPORT on LETTER from the Governor of the Bank of Ireland, dated 30 August 1864.

UNDER the Act 3 & 4 Vict. c. 75 (1840), the Bank of Ireland received an annuity of 115,384 l. 12 s. 4 d. on the amount of their loans to the Government, being interest at

£.	2,630,769	4	8	115,384	12	4

By

By the Act 8 & 9 Vict. c. 37 (1845), the annuity was reduced to 92,076*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.*, being interest at the rate of 3 ½ per cent. on the same amount of capital. By the 3rd section of the same Act, the Bank were required to manage the public debt in Ireland free of charge.

The debt in Ireland at that date amounted to about 37,200,000 l.; the charge for management, at the rate of 340 l. per million, would have amounted to 12,648 l. per annum. The 10 s. per cent. (i. e. 3½ instead of 3 per cent.) paid to the Bank of Ireland in excess of the rate of interest paid to the Bank of England on their loan to the Government, was equal to 13,153 l. per annum. The Bank of Ireland received, therefore, as remuneration for the management of the public debt, though not by that name, a trifle more than 340 l. per million.

In 1858 the Landed Estates Act (Ireland), 21 & 22 Vict. c. 72, was passed. By the 89th section of the Act, the Commissioners of the Treasury were empowered to invest so much of the proceeds of the sales of estates in Ireland as they might consider to be a surplus in excess of the cash balance required to meet current demands, or to make any other arrangement with the Bank of Ireland, so as to render the surplus cash productive of interest. The average cash balance at the credit of the Bank account of the Landed Estates Court was then very large (573,000 l.).

After due consideration it was not deemed advisable to render the surplus cash balance, at the credit of the account of the Landed Estates Court, productive by investing it in Government Stock; the period during which it might remain in court was uncertain, and might be expected to be short; and a loss of capital, for which the public would have been liable, was apprehended from a probable fall in the price of consols (then at 96) during the period of repayment of capital out of Court; it was therefore agreed that the Bank of Ireland should pay for the use of the public balances generally by consenting to a reduction of 5 s. per cent. in the rate of interest paid to them on the Government Debt of 2,630,769 l. 4 s. 8 d.; this reduction amounted to 6,576 l. 18 s. 5 d. per annum.

The Bank of Ireland now state, that the average balance of the Landed Estates Court, which, at the time of the agreement referred to, amounted to 573,000 l., has been gradually and permanently diminishing, and that it has now fallen to 114,000 l., a sum not greater than the amount required to meet current demands; they state, moreover, that they have sustained further losses by the reduction of balances on other accounts: they consider, therefore, that as they have lost the advantages for which they paid a sum of 6,576 l. 18 s. 5 d. per annum, a more equitable arrangement should now be made.

We believe that the statements made in the Governor's letter are correct, and that there is much force in the arguments he uses as to the valuable aid which the Bank of Ireland renders in transacting, for the public departments in Ireland, under the five heads enumerated by the Governor, a considerable part of their money business, which in this country does not come within the functions of the Bank of England, and also as to the facilities afforded to the public, through their branches all over the country, for the investment of money in the funds, and for the receipt of public dividends at those branch establishments.

The Governor's proposals are:

1. That the Bank of Ireland should be paid a fair remuneration for the management of the public debt, on the same principle as we pay the Bank of England for the like duty. At the rates proposed by the Governor, the Bank of Ireland would receive 11,000 l. a year for management. If this be agreed to, the Governor proposes,—

2. That the Bank of Ireland should consent to receive the same rate of interest, i. e., 3 per cent., on their loan to the Government, as the Bank of England receive on theirs. This reduction from 3¼ to 3 per cent. is equal to 6,576 l. 18 s. 5 d. per annum, and will be a set-off against the new charge of 11,000 l. per annum for management.

The rates of management authorised by the Act 24 Vict. c. 3, for the Bank of England, and those proposed for the Bank of Ireland in the Governor's letter of the 30th August 1864, are shown in the margin.*

The Bank of Ireland have a fair claim to be paid for the management of the debt in Ireland at a rate equal, at least, to that paid to the Bank of England. The number of accounts, per million of stock, are—

At the Bank of England, 377 for every million of stock.
At the Bank of Ireland, 740 - - - ditto.

The proposals of the Bank of Ireland are right in principle; they should be paid directly for their responsible duty and risk in connection with the management of the public debt, instead of receiving an equivalent in the shape of an exceptional rate of interest on their loans to the Government; and the Government should be free to regulate the public balances with reference solely to the interest and convenience of the public service.

If the proposal of the Bank of Ireland, which appears to us to be fair and reasonable, should be acceded to, the effect will be to restore to them 4,425 l. out of the 6,576 l. 18 s. 5 d. per annum surrendered by them in 1859.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 27 January 1865.

THE Chancellor of the Exchequer states to the Board that in consequence of communications made to him by the Governor and Directors of the Bank of Ireland in the course of last year regarding the subsisting arrangements between Her Majesty's Government and the Bank of Ireland as respects the management of the debt and the conduct of the other business of the Government by the Bank in that country, and suggesting a revision of those arrangements, he had instructed their Lordships' Assistant Secretary and the principal officer of the Finance Department of the Treasury to have a conference on the subject with the Governor and Directors.

He submits a letter he has received from the Governor consequent upon that conference, containing a proposal for a new arrangement, and a report made to him in reference to that letter by Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Anderson, in which they state that they consider the arrangement proposed by the Bank to be right in principle, and fair and reasonable. The Chancellor of the Exchequer states to the Board that he concurs in that opinion, and recommends the adoption by the Board of the proposed arrangements.

The points to which the Chancellor of the Exchequer directed the attention of the parties to the conference, were as follows:—

1. That the interest to be henceforth paid to the Bank, on the debt due by the Government, should be reduced to 3 per cent.
2. That the Bank should be paid a rate to be agreed upon for the management of the public debt in Ireland.
3. That the Bank should receive a reasonable remuneration for expenses in carrying out the Acts of Parliament regarding the unclaimed dividends.
4. That the balances in the hands of the Bank from time to time should be considered and regulated solely with reference to the public requirements.

By the 8 & 9 Vict. c. 37, the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland, in consideration of their managing and paying all interest, annuities, and dividends payable at the Bank, in respect of the public debt, without any charge, were were to receive on the Government Debt of 2,630,769 l. 4 s. 8 d. due to the Bank, interest at the rate of 3 l. 10 s. per cent.

For any excess beyond £.40,000,000	"	150	"

In 1858, the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, being empowered by the Act 21 & 22 Vict. c. 72 (Landed Estates Court, Ireland) to invest so much of the proceeds of the sales of estates as they might consider to be a surplus in excess of the cash balance required to meet current expenses, or to make such other arrangements with the Bank as they might deem expedient for rendering such cash productive while deposited in the Bank; it was considered preferable to suffer the balances to remain with the Bank, rather than to incur the risk of fluctuations incident to investments in the funds, and it was arranged that the Bank, in consideration of retaining the balances, should reduce the interest on the Government debt from 3½ to 3¼ per cent, such reduction amounting to 6,576 l. 18 s. 1 d. a year. Undoubtedly it was intended in the arrangement of 1858, to give to the Bank a fair equivalent for this diminution of interest, on the balances of the Landed Estates Court account, which, on the weekly average of the year 1858, amounted to 573,500 l. These balances, however, have been since gradually diminishing until at the present time they amount to about 114,000 l., in addition to which the Bank has sustained further losses in the reduction of other balances, while the business they have to transact for Government has increased.

Independently of the claim made by the Bank of Ireland, my Lords are of opinion that the principle which has been adopted in this country of paying the Bank of England directly for the management of the debt is preferable to that of paying, as in the case of the Bank of Ireland, indirectly, whether in the form of an increased rate of interest, or in allowing balances of public money to remain in Bank in order to afford a remuneration to the Bank. Their Lordships, therefore, concur with the Chancellor of the Exchequer as to the adoption of the proposal of the Bank of Ireland, and subject to the approval of Parliament, they are pleased to sanction the arrangement accordingly, which is as follows:—

1. That the interest on the sum of 2,630,769 l. 4 s. 8 d. due to the Bank, shall be reduced to 3 per cent.

2. That in consideration of this reduction of interest, and of the Bank transacting as heretofore all the Government business in Ireland, comprising not only the management of the debt, but the several other matters and things mentioned in the Governor's letter (with the exception of the unclaimed dividends, for which a separate arrangement has been made) there shall be paid to the Bank of Ireland:

(a) When the amount of the stock in the books of the Bank of Ireland shall not exceed 30,000,000 l, at the rate of 450 l. per annum per million.

(b) When the amount shall exceed 30,000,000 l., and shall not exceed 40,000,000 l., at the rate of 300 l. per annum per million.

(c) When the amount shall exceed 40,000,000 l.; at the rate of 300 l. per million up to 40,000,000 l., and of 150 l. per annum per million upon all stock in excess of that amount.

The stock to be computed in the manner, and the payments to be made at the times, and for the period, set forth as regards the Bank of England, in the 2d section of the 24 Vict. c. 3.

Let a copy of this Minute be transmitted to the Governor of the Bank of Ireland.

Let a Bill be prepared to be submitted to Parliament, providing, on the one hand, for the reduction of the interest, and on the other, for the payment out of the Consolidated Fund of the proposed charge for management.

— No. 6. —

The Governor of the Bank of Ireland, to the Right Honourable the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Sir, Bank of Ireland, Dublin, 1 February 1865.

I, YESTERDAY, brought before our Board of Directors Mr. George A. Hamilton's letter, forwarding a Minute of the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, dated the 27th ultimo, regarding the arrangements between Her Majesty's Government and this Bank, as respects the management of the debt and conduct of the other business of the Government; and I am desired by the Board, in at once adopting the proposed arrangement as one fair and equitable on both sides, at the same time to express their sense of the consideration evinced by you on all occasions towards this Bank in its relations with the Government.

I have, &c.

The Right Honourable the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

BANK OF IRELAND.

UNITY BANK.

RETURN to an Address of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 16 March 1865;—for,

"COPY of any LETTERS between the Secretary of State for the Home Department and Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, on behalf of Persons interested in the Affairs of the UNITY BANK, respecting the PROSECUTION of Messrs. Terry and Burch."

Whitehall, 17 March 1865. } H. WADDINGTON.

Messrs. Lewis & Lewis to Sir George Grey, Bart., M.P.

Sir, 10, Ely-place, Holborn, 19 January 1865.

WE are requested by the liquidators of the Unity Bank, who have considered it their duty, in the interests of public justice, to institute a prosecution against one Joseph Wakefield Terry, and one Thomas Burch, the manager and secretary of that Bank, for a series of frauds committed upon that Bank and its shareholders, to seek the aid of the Treasury in the further conduct of this case.

The two defendants have both been committed by the Lord Mayor of the City of London to take their trial at the Central Criminal Court; and, inasmuch as the expense necessarily attendant upon a lengthened inquiry like the present must be would require a large outlay, the liquidators have not funds at their command to apply to this purpose. They have, however, not hesitated to incur such reasonable expenses as were within their power, to bring to public justice the two defendants, who, they conceive, have committed great and serious commercial wrongs, by which they have laid themselves open to the criminal charges now preferred against them; but they are unable to meet the expenses of the forthcoming trial. We have, therefore, on their behalf, to ask you, Sir, that some direction or order may be made to recoup to the liquidators the taxed costs to which they would then submit themselves, or that all further proceedings may be conducted at the expense of the Treasury.

In aid of this application, we may mention the case of the Royal British Bank, which was a prosecution similar in every respect to the present, and in which case the taxed costs of the prosecution were paid by the Treasury to the solicitors who conducted the same. We do not apprehend that the costs of this prosecution will much exceed 1,000 l.; but many of the shareholders of the Unity Bank having been ruined by their connection with it, and others having died, they are unable to contribute such a sum of money, even if a failure of justice by the acquittal of the defendants were to follow.

Apologising for trespassing so long upon your time,

We have, &c.
(signed) Lewis & Lewis,
Solicitors for the Prosecution and the Liquidators.

To the Right Hon. Sir G. Grey, Bart.,
Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Mr. T. G. Baring, M. P., to Messrs. Lewis & Lewis.

Gentlemen, Whitehall, 24 January 1865.

I AM directed by Secretary Sir George Grey to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, in which you apply, on behalf of the liquidators of the Unity Bank, for the assistance of the Government in the prosecution of the managers and secretary of that Bank; and I am to inform you, that Sir George Grey is not aware of any peculiarity in this case to call for the special interference of the Government.

I am, &c.

Messrs. Lewis, 10, Ely-place, Holborn.

Messrs. Lewis & Lewis to Sir George Grey, Bart., M. P.

The Queen against Terry and Burch.

WE beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th instant, in which you inform us that you are not aware of any peculiarity in this case to call for the special interference of the Government; and, in reply, we beg to submit for your consideration the following facts, that the liquidators have not the funds to enable them to continue this prosecution, and that if the Government fail to render assistance, the defendants will not further be prosecuted, and public justice will thereby be thwarted.

That the offence charged against the defendants is not one of a private grievance, affecting one individual, but is a crime against the whole banking and commercial community of this country.

We trust, for these special reasons, that our application of the 19th instant will be complied with. May we respectfully ask for a reply by Monday, as the inability of the prosecutors to further prosecute must, upon that or the following day, be mentioned at the Central Criminal Court.

We have, &c.

To the Right Hon.
Sir George Grey, Bart.,
&c. &c. &c.

Mr. T. G. Baring, M. P., to Messrs. Lewis & Lewis.

Gentlemen, Whitehall, 28 January 1865.

I AM directed by Secretary Sir George Grey to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th instant, and to inform you that he sees no reason for departing from the opinion already expressed by him in the case of The Queen v. Terry and Burch.

I am, &c.

Messrs. Lewis, 10, Ely-place, Holborn.

Messrs. Lewis & Lewis to Sir George Grey, Bart., M. P.

Sir, 10, Ely-place, Holborn, 7 March 1865.

The Queen v. Terry and Burch.

We beg to inform you that this prosecution, which was originally instituted by the Unity Bank, will not further be prosecuted by the Bank, owing to there being no funds which, according to its charter, is applicable for such purpose. We therefore respectfully call your attention to the fact that these defendants, charged with the serious misdemeanor already brought to your notice, will go unprosecuted unless you will give directions to the Solicitor of the Treasury to appear on behalf of the Crown.

We have, &c.

To the Right Hon.
Sir George Grey, Bart.

Mr. T. G. Baring, M. P., to Messrs. Lewis & Lewis.

Gentlemen, Whitehall, 9 March 1865.

I am directed by Secretary Sir George Grey to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 7th instant, respecting the prosecution of the case of The Queen v. Terry and Burch; and I am to inform you that the Secretary of State must decline to interfere in the matter.

I am, &c.

Principal Librarian.

VIII.—PROGRESS made in the Cataloguing and Arrangement, and Account of Objects added, in the Year 1864.

Department of Printed Books.

I. Works added to the Collection during the year have been placed on the shelves of the Library as soon as catalogued. The press-marks, indicating their respective localities, have been marked on the inside, and affixed to the back of each volume; also on the title and entry in the Catalogue. The total number of these press-marks amounts to 151,759.

II. Cataloguing:—(a.) New General Catalogue.—The number of titles and cross-references written for this Catalogue amounts to 13,029. The number of titles transcribed fourfold for this Catalogue is 40,070, and of index slips prepared and transcribed, 729; 19,305 title slips and 666 index slips have been incorporated into each of three copies of this Catalogue, from letter A to H, inclusive. This incorporation has rendered it necessary, in order to maintain the alphabetical arrangement, to remove and re-insert in each copy 18,820 title slips and 45 index slips, and to add to each copy 541 new leaves: 61,355 title slips of letters I and K (including 22,951 new titles), have been laid down in one copy of this Catalogue, and 66,138 title slips in a second and third copy; of each of the last two sets, 22,252 were new titles.

(b.) Supplementary Catalogue.—The number of titles and cross-references written for this Catalogue is 50,844, besides 212 for the Hebrew Catalogue; in all, 51,056. The number of titles transcribed fourfold for this Catalogue is 24,213, besides 605 index slips prepared and transcribed; 23,050 title slips, and 598 index slips have been incorporated into each of three copies of this Catalogue. In order to maintain the alphabetical arrangement, 27,741 title slips have been removed and re-inserted in each copy; 957 leaves have been added to each copy.

The number of new entries made in the Hand Catalogue of the Periodical Publications is 99, and in that of the Academies, 421.

(c.) Maps.—The new titles and cross-references written for Maps amount to 6,599. The number of titles transcribed fourfold for this Catalogue is 5,563. The number of title slips incorporated into each of three copies of this Catalogue is 5,930. In order to maintain the alphabetical arrangement, 3,940 title slips have been removed and re-inserted; 134 new leaves have been added to each copy.

(d.) Music Catalogue.—The new titles and cross-references written for this Catalogue amount to 4,070; 4,415 titles have been transcribed fourfold for this Catalogue. The number of title slips incorporated into each of three copies of this Catalogue is 6,746. In order to maintain the alphabetical arrangement, 2,379 title slips have been removed and re-entered; 139 new leaves have been added to each copy.

(e.) Carbonic Hand Catalogue.—64,467 title slips of the fourth transcript of the General Catalogue have been mounted on cartridge paper, 75,099 have been arranged according to the press-marks, and 74,959 have been incorporated into the general series: 5,800 title slips of the fourth copy of the Map Catalogue have been mounted, and 2,500 arranged in like manner, and 6,704 title slips of the fourth copy of the Music Catalogue have been mounted on cartridge paper.

(f.) List of Books of Reference in the Reading Room.—The number of alterations and additions made in the interleaved copy of this list, and also in the hand list of the books of reference, in order to record the changes made in the books of reference by the addition of new works, and the exchange of old for new editions, amounts to 339 in each.

(g.) Hebrew Catalogue.—The titles of this Catalogue, about 15,000 in number, are now prepared for printing. The Catalogue is in the press, and is printed as far as the commencement of letter C.

III.—The number of volumes bound is 13,816 in 11,655, including 2,210 pamphlets. The number of volumes repaired is 667: 644 Maps have been mounted.

IV. Reading Room Service.—1. The number of books returned to the shelves of the General Library from the Reading Room is 211,239; to those of the Royal Library, 9,354; to those of the Grenville Library, 993; and to the closets in which books are kept from day to day for the use of the Readers, 151,177. Adding the number of volumes returned to the shelves of the Reading Room, about 847,524, the whole amounts to 1,220,287, or 4,150 per diem.

2. The number of Readers has been 105,899; on an average 360 per diem, the Reading Room having been kept open 294 days; each Reader has consulted, on an average, 11 volumes per diem.

V. Additions.—1. The number of volumes added to the Library (comprising 221 received ceived under the International Copyright Treaties) amounts to 38,842 (including Music, Atlases, and Newspapers), of which 2,730 were presented, 28,426 purchased, and 7,686 acquired by copyright.

2. The number of parts of volumes (comprising 627 received under the International Copyright Treaties) is 21,459 (including Atlases and Music), of which 622 were presented, 5,986 purchased, and 14,224 acquired by copyright. The total number of Newspapers acquired is 1,154, besides 135 single numbers of English, Chinese, Russian, Greek, Danish and American newspapers. Of these, 804 (viz., 206 published in London, and 598 in the country) have been received from the Inland Revenue Office in England, 145 from the branch of that office in Ireland, and 143 from the branch of the same office in Scotland; 31 newspapers and 93 single numbers have been presented, and 31 newspapers and 42 single numbers have been purchased.

3. The Maps, Charts, and Plans amount to 819, in 3,326 sheets, the Atlases to 44 complete, and 59 parts of Atlases in course of publication. Of the Maps and Charts, 37 were presented, 480 purchased, and 302 acquired by copyright. Of the Atlases, 7 were purchased, and 37 complete, and 59 parts of Atlases, acquired by copyright.

4. The number of pieces of Music, each comprising a complete work (including 415 received under the International Copyright Treaties) is 2,378, of which 5 were purchased, 1 presented, and 1,957 acquired by copyright: 1,035 parts and numbers of works in progress (including 54 received under the International Copyright Treaties) have been acquired by copyright, and also 390 works, not included among the pieces of music, of which 234 were purchased, and 156 (including 28 received under the International Copyright Treaties) acquired under the Copyright Act.

5. The total number of articles received (including Broadsides, Engravings, and other miscellaneous pieces, not enumerated above) is 72,214, of which 1,283 were received under the International Copyright Treaties. Of the articles received (exclusive of Broadsides, Engravings, &c., and comprising 653 received under the International Copyright Treaties), 36,799 are complete works. Of the complete works, 25,121 were purchased, 793 presented, and 10,885 acquired by copyright.

6. Each article acquired has been stamped. The number of stamps so impressed is 300,276.

J. Winter Jones.

Department of Manuscripts.

1. The Catalogue of Additions for the years 1846 and 1847 has been published, and a revised abridgment of the Catalogues for the years 1848–1853 prepared for the press.

2. The Catalogue in detail of the Birch Manuscripts has been continued from No. 4,126 to No. 4,200, from No. 4,254 to No. 4,261, and from No. 4,300 to No. 4,306.

3. The Catalogue of Icelandic Manuscripts has been revised and continued, from No. 4,857 to No. 4,896, and from No. 5,174 to No. 5,181.

4. The entries in the Hand Catalogue of the Additional Manuscripts, placed in the Reading Room, have been continued from No. 24,735 to No. 24,842 (Devon Papers), and from No. 25,175 to No. 25,611.

5. The Additional Charters and Rolls have been described from No. 11,929 to No. 12,630, from No. 12,729 to No. 12,922, from No. 13,370 to No. 15,644, and from No. 15,903 to No. 16,157. The slips have been revised from No. 6,293 to No. 8,339, and transcribed into the General Catalogue (two copies) from No. 5,910 to No. 7,182. A brief descriptive List has also been made of the Charters acquired in 1848–1853, including Nos. 6,339–8,515.

6. The Original Seals, Impressions and Bullæ, obtained in 1848–1853, have been described.

7. The Indexes of titles and authors to the Catalogue of Arabic Manuscripts have been completed for press. Eighty-six volumes in Arabic and Persian have been described in detail, and 218 in various Oriental languages for the Catalogues of Additions.

8. The Catalogue of the Syriac Manuscripts has been continued, and Nos. 12,140–12,181, 14,425–14,566, and 17,102–17,125, described in detail.

9. The General Classed Inventory of the Oriental Manuscripts has been kept up to the end of the year.

10. Transcripts of the Catalogues of the Davy Collection of Suffolk Portraits and Views have been made for the use of the Department of Prints.

11. Indexes have been made to the Harleian MSS. 7,523–7,526, Birch 4,300–4,306, and Additional 4,245, 6,261–2, 23,119–23,125, 23,134, and 23,138, and partly copied fair into the respective volumes.

12. The Register of Donations to the Department has been kept up to the end of 1864.

13. The "James Burton" Papers, the Correspondence of Pope and Warburton, and a large Collection of Plays, have been arranged and prepared for the binder. The Birch MSS. Nos. 4,300–4,306, Additional Nos. 25,437, 25,598–9, Cottonian Faustina D.v., and Harleian 6,589, have been re-arranged.

14. The whole of the remaining fragments on vellum and paper of the Cottonian and Old Royal Collections (injured in the fire of 1731), have been, as far as possible, identified, arranged, and partially bound. Portions of the following Manuscripts have been recovered: Tiberius A. XII., E. XI.; Caligula D. III.; Galba A. I., II., III., VII., XIV., XVII.; Otho A. V., VIII., IX., XI., XII., XIII., XIV., XVIII., B. III., IV., IX., XIII., C. IV., VII., VIII., XII., XV., D. IX., E. XIV.; Vitellius A. VI., VII., C. V., D. I., V., VIII., XI., XII., XIII., XV., XVI., XX., E. I., II., IV., VII., IX.; Old Royal 9 A. iii.; and leaves have been restored to twenty-five other volumes of the Cottonian and seven of the Old Royal Collections.

15. The Additional Manuscripts have been numbered and registered, from No. 25,491 to No. 25,905; and bound, repaired, lettered and stamped, from No. 24,743 to No. 24,842, and from No. 25,175 to No. 25,611.

16. The Egerton Manuscripts have been numbered and registered, from No. 1,946 to No. 1,962; and bound and stamped, from No. 1,952 to No. 1,960.

17. The Additional Charters and Rolls have been arranged, numbered, and marked with the date of acquisition, from No. 16,281 to No. 16,331; and registered from No. 11,801 to No. 12,397.

18. Six hundred and fifty-five of the Additional Manuscripts, 259 Sloane, 123 Lansdowne, 15 Cottonian, 2 Old Royal, and 11 of the Egerton Collection, have been folio'd.

19. Stamps have been placed on every tract, letter or separate document, in 6 volumes of the Cottonian Collection, 2 Old Royal, 4 Harleian, 1 Lansdowne, 22 Egerton, and 1,169 Additional Manuscripts; also on 132 Additional and 3 Egerton Charters, and 416 Books of Reference. Extra stamps have also been placed on 59 volumes of various collections. The total number of stamps affixed amounts to 38,472.

20. Forty-eight Cottonian, 13 Old Royal, 49 Harleian, 8 Lansdowne, 5 Arundel, 12 Egerton, and 566 Additional Manuscripts, with 416 Books of Reference, have been bound, repaired, or lettered. Two hundred and twenty-five Arundel Manuscripts have been armed, and 153 Additional Manuscripts permanently press-marked.

21. The Additional Charters and Rolls have been cleaned, repaired and stamped, from No. 16,281 to No. 16,316.

22. The whole of the various Collections (with the exception of the Charters and Rolls) have been verified with the shelf-lists.

23. The Additions made to the Department in the course of the year are as follows:—

To the General Collection—
Manuscripts	609
Original Charters	51
Bullæ and Seals	71
To the Egerton Collection—
Manuscripts	17
Original Charters	3

Among the acquisitions more worthy of notice may be specified—

A folio volume on vellum, containing a Martyrology of the Spanish Church, written at the Monastery of Cardeña, diocese of Burgos, in the year 919.

A very fine copy on vellum, of the 14th century, of the "Catholicon" of Johannes de Janua, large folio.

"L'Histoire Ancienne, depuis la Création jusqu'à Titus," with miniatures, 14th century, vellum.

The "Liber de Vita Christi," of Ludolph of Saxony, finely written and illuminated on vellum at the close of the 15th century, 3 volumes folio. It belonged afterwards to Cardinal George d'Amboise, whose arms appear in it.

Several illuminated Horæ, one of which appears to have belonged to Mary Stuart, when wife of the Dauphin, afterwards Francis II.

A beautiful little volume written on vellum, with numerous miniatures, containing "Le Chapellet de Jhesus et de la Vierge," apparently executed for the Emperor Charles V. or his brother Ferdinand, and, from the binding, believed to have belonged afterwards to Margaret Tudor, wife of James IV. of Scotland. Presented by the Right Honourable the Earl of Home.

The Poems of the Persian Poet Nizami, written and illuminated in exquisite style, and dated A. H. 840=A. D. 1441.

A considerable Collection of Arabic, Persian and Syriac MSS., which belonged to the late Rev. William Cureton, D. D., Canon of Westminster, and among which is the Biographical work of Ibn Khallikan, written A. H. 655=A. D. 1257, in the Author's Autograph.

The

The Original Correspondence of Pope with Dr. Warburton, Ralph Allen, and Hugh Bethel, and the Correspondence of Warburton with Dr. Hurd, the Honourable Charles Yorke, Dr. Middleton, and others.

The Minute Books of the Court of Directors and other proceedings of the South Sea Company, from 1711 to 1756, with their Charter of Incorporation and other documents. Presented by the Trustees of the late South Sea Company.

Department of Oriental, British, and Mediæval Antiquities, and Ethnography.

I.—Arrangement.

A statue in the northern vestibule of the Egyptian Galleries has had a glass case placed over it for its better protection.

187 objects belonging to the Egyptian Collections have been catalogued; a case-book of Papyri has been completed; progress has been made in the description of the Egyptian Collections for the Synopsis; and 121 Egyptian objects have been mounted, including some of large dimensions; 18 objects have been framed and glazed, and one tablet repaired.

Of the Papyri, 5 more or less complete and several smaller fragments and pieces have been unrolled; 42 pieces have been cleaned and mounted; 32 pieces have been joined; and 29 pieces have been glazed; 2 large Papyri have been framed, glazed, and fixed to the Southern Wall of the North-West Staircase, for public exhibition.

In the Assyrian basement, the adjoining room, in which Phœnician and other Oriental remains are deposited, has been whitewashed; and some of the objects, temporarily removed during the process, have been replaced.

Two sockets of basalt for gates, found at Mugheir, and inscribed with the names of the Monarch Urukh and of one of the Abed-Tsin Dynasty, have been mounted on pedestals and placed in the Assyrian Ante-room.

An additional table-case for the display of objects hitherto not exhibited, and for the reception of inscribed terra-cotta tablets, has been placed in the Kouyunjik Gallery.

The examination of the Assyrian ivory carvings has been continued with a view to re-joining and repairing the different fragments, and 172 pieces have been cleaned, joined, and mounted.

64 engraved Assyrian stones and cylinders, and 46 clay seals have been mounted; 74 moulds have been made of Assyrian cylinders in hard stone, and 54 type-impressions taken.

The engraved cylinders and gems have been chronologically arranged in a table-case in the Kouyunjik Gallery.

22 Assyrian objects in bronze, including a shield, have been cleaned and mounted, and 26 objects of the same material repaired.

The whole of the Assyrian sculptures in stone have been identified, and the registration marks renewed; 5 of the larger Assyrian inscribed cylinders of terra-cotta, and several fragments of the same have been repaired and rejoined, the numerous fragments of which they are composed having been identified.

Two inscribed cuneiform stone tablets, giving an account of the execution of the Susian chiefs, have been fixed in the Kouyunjik Gallery near the bas-reliefs to which they belong, and some additional portions have been joined to the bas-reliefs themselves.

583 fragments of bilingual and grammatical Assyrian terra-cotta inscriptions have been temporarily arranged for publication and other purposes.

112 small pieces of Assyrian terra-cotta tablets with inscriptions have been cleaned and repaired, and 256 card-boxes made for holding similar tablets.

32 Assyrian inscribed bricks have been arranged in their places in the Assyrian basement room.

A Hebrew tablet from Aden has been mounted on a stone plinth.

Three Roman leaden coffins and other antiquities, presented by the Metropolitan Board of Works, have been exhibited in the British Room.

A block of conglomerate, from the floor of a cave at Les Eyzies, Dordogne, containing flint flint weapons, and the bones of reindeer and other animals, has been placed in a case for exhibition in the British Room.

A large collection of bone implements and other objects, from the caves at Bruniquel, comprising more than 1,300 objects, have been cleaned, washed in gelatine, and, where necessary, rejoined, and a considerable selection of the same exhibited in the British Room.

128 moulds of impressions of Great Seals of England, and 2,767 moulds and type impressions of seals of England and Wales have been counted and arranged.

14,248 impressions and moulds of mediæval seals have been counted, 24 mediæval seals have been copied, and 82 additional type impressions of seals of Worcestershire made.

189 entries of seals in the Sloane catalogue have been transcribed.

The walls and ceiling of the Ethnographical Room have been thoroughly scoured and cleaned, the objects above the cases taken down, dusted, and partially re-arranged; the lower part of one of the table-cases has been enclosed, the upper part repainted, and rods, for suspending Ethnographical objects, have been fixed along the sides of the room.

The contents of 12 cases on the south side of the Ethnographical Room have been removed for the purpose of repainting, and the contents of 12 cases on the north side replaced and arranged in a more systematic manner. The collection of Peruvian vases has been re-arranged.

Two Chinese tablets have been exhibited in the Ethnographical Room; two Indian sculptures, and five terra-cotta seals with inscriptions in the Pali character, repaired.

In the department generally 2,886 objects have been registered, comprising most of the acquisitions of this and arrears of previous years; 794 descriptive labels, 43 printed and about 3,200 registration numbers, have been added to various objects; six books have been catalogued, and nine stamped.

Assistance has been rendered towards the preparation of a catalogue of English medals intended for publication, and also towards forwarding the publication of Assyrian inscriptions.

II.—Acquisitions.

The most important acquisition of the year is an extensive collection of the remains of human industry of a very early period, discovered by the Vicomte de Lastic in a cave on the banks of the Aveyron, near Bruniquel (Tarn et Garonne.) These remains were found with the bones of men and of various animals, of which some are now extinct in France, while others are considered to be entirely extinct. They consist of flint implements of various kinds, evidently made on the spot by the inhabitants of the cave; heads of fishing spears, javelins, and arrows, elaborately worked and with numerous barbs; chisels, needles, and various other implements, made out of the horns of the reindeer, or the bones of the horse and ox. There are likewise a number of specimens with engraved designs, of which the most remarkable are two engravings in outline, one of them the head of a reindeer, slightly, but artistically, scratched on a bird's bone; the other, the heads of a reindeer and a horse, more deeply cut on a flat bone implement.

The other acquisitions of the year are 812 in number, and may be classed as follows:—

Egyptian.—A small collection of antiquities, including an hieroglyphical papyrus of the class called "Solar Litanies," or the passage of the sun through the hours of the night, formerly belonging to Viscount Strangford.

Portions of Rituals and other documents on papyrus from the Sams Collection.

Handle of a terra-cotta vase, with the name of an heretical king of the 18th Dynasty (a disk-worshipper), found among the ruins of a house at Tel-el-Amarna, and presented by Sir J. Gardner Wilkinson.

A small collection of antiquities presented by Henry Christy, Esq., F.S.A.

A bronze sphinx, an object of rarity, presented by A. W. Franks, Esq.

A head of a priest in basalt, of the Romano-Egyptian period.

Fifty Egyptian antiquities, comprising several smaller objects of interest, such as an inscribed sandal, a fragment of an alabaster vase, with the royal name of Aahmes I., and an inscribed saucer, collected in Egypt by the Rev. Greville Chester.

Five Christian lamps from Nubia presented by the Rev. Greville Chester.

Babylonian and Assyrian.—Two bricks from Nimroud, with ornaments in vitreous colours, and a portion of the "Standard Inscription" of Asshur-izir-pal, with important variants, presented by A. H. Layard, Esq., M.P.

A weight of onyx in the form of a duck, with an Assyrian character on the side; three Babylonian cylinders of stone and one of silver (the only one in the Museum of that material), two other engraved seals, and seven Sassanian gems.

An ornament in the form of a Chimæra's head, finely carved in ivory, of Assyrian or early Persian work, presented by William Burges, Esq.

Phœnician and Early Oriental.—A Phœnician sarcophagus in white marble, the cover of which terminates with a representation of the head of the deceased, carved in the Egyptian style; it was excavated on the site of the Necropolis of Sidon, by Niven Moore, Esq., late Her Majesty's Consul at Beyrout.

A stone door, sculptured in imitation of bronze, from the Hauran; a colossal bust in high relief, representing a man, or deity, holding a cornucopia, from a temple erected in honour of Herod Herod Agrippa, at Siah, near Kunawat, in the Hauran; three other sculptures from the same district, and two circular covers of marble with Byzantine inscriptions from Palmyra, all procured by E. T. Rogers, Esq., Her Majesty's Consul at Damascus.

A collection of 80 Gnostic and Basilidian gems from the Praun Collection, mostly engraved and described in a recent work by the Rev. C. W. King on Gnostic Gems.

British and Mediæval.—The Foreign illustrations of this section have been increased by the following additions:—

1. A series of flint implements from the Drift at St. Acheul, near Amiens, presented by Henry Christy, Esq. F.S.A.

2. A series of flint implements and bones found in a cave at Les Eyzies, Dordogne, with a slab of breccia presented in 1863; also a similar series, together with casts of remarkable carved bones, found under a rock at La Madeleine on the Vesere; all presented by Henry Christy, Esq. and M. Edouard Lartet, of Paris.

3. A section from a Danish Kitchen-midden, or refuse heap, exhibiting shells, bones, and flint implements, presented by Henry Christy, Esq.

4. Two flint implements from the Campagna, near Rome, presented by Edmund Waterton, Esq.; and a celt of peculiar and rare form, from Carnac, in Britany, presented by the Rev. E. L. Barnwell.

The British Series has received the following additions:—

A flint implement of the Drift type, from Herne Bay, presented by George J. Strong, Esq.

A series of flint implements found on the shore of Lough Neagh, Ireland, presented by John Evans, Esq., F.R.S.; and a similar series from North Devon, presented by Townshend M. Hall, Esq.

Part of a large flint celt found on Leith Hill, Surrey, presented by J. Wedgwood, Esq.; a flint celt found in the operations for the Main Drainage of London, presented by the Metropolitan Board of Works.

Portion of a British urn and bone implement found in St. Twynell's parish, Pembrokeshire, presented by the Earl Cawdor; and fragments of a British urn found near Victoria Park, presented by R. L. Roumieu, Esq.

A very remarkable hammer-head of horn-blende, a stone celt, and an iron sword, found in lowering the waters of Lough Gur, near Grange, county Limerick, on the estate of the donor, J. F. W. de Salis, Esq.

A series of Irish stone amulets of an uncertain date, presented by Henry Christy, Esq. F.S.A.

A bronze javelin-head from Fenton, Yorkshire, presented by the Rev. Edward Houchen; a very fine bronze sword, and three other implements of the same metal, from the Thames, presented by A. W. Franks, Esq.; and two bronze weapons from Ireland.

A number of bronze implements of various kinds, and several Celtic figures of boars found in different parts of a field at Hounslow. The latter are of a very remarkable character.

Three Roman leaden coffins found at East Ham, Essex, and a number of miscellaneous remains discovered in the works of the Main Drainage of London; presented by the Metropolitan Board of Works.

Part of a Roman Mosaic pavement, with floral designs, Roman pottery and other antiquities, found on the site of the old East India House, Leadenhall Street; presented by William Tite, Esq., M.P.

A leaden cist containing human bones and two denarii of Vespasian, found in Endell Street, near the British Museum.

Various Roman remains found during recent works in Lothbury.

A bronze ornament for a chariot, with a bust of Minerva in relief, found at High Wycombe, Bucks; and a cake of pewter stamped with the Christian monogram and the name Syagrius, found in the Thames; presented by A. W. Franks, Esq.

A stamp for marking the collyrium of the Roman oculist Marcus Juventius Tutianus, found at Golden Bridge, county Tipperary, Ireland.

A fine Roman glass vase containing burnt bones, found at Barnwell, near Cambridge.

Two Roman vessels of clay found at Clearmont, near Weymouth, presented by John Fowler, Esq.

A quadrangular leaden cist with the inscription CVNOBARRVS FECIT VIVAS, found at Caistor, Lincolnshire, presented by the Rev. H. Maclean.

A gold Anglo-Saxon ornament, with chains and pin, found near Evesham.

A drinking glass from Whitehall, in the stem of which is enclosed a coin of Charles II., presented by G. P. Scott, Esq., M.A.

A casket very elegantly carved out of the wood of Shakespeare's Mulberry tree, enclosing the freedom of the town of Stratford-on-Avon, conferred on David Garrick, 3rd May 1769; a ticket of admission to Garrick's house at Hampton, with his portrait; two medals and a miniature of Shakespeare. All bequeathed by the late George Daniel, Esq.

Mediæval.—Forty-two matrices of seals, among which may be noticed those of the Emperor Sigismund, as King of Hungary, the city of Basle, Conrad, Bishop of Hildesheim, the Scotch monastery at Ratisbon, the Friars-preachers of Scotland, and the Deanery of Blackburn.

A waxen tablet inscribed on both sides with accounts of various kinds, from a church in Switzerland.

A thurible or censer of bronze from Denmark, of the 13th century, presented by Henry Christy, Esq., F.S.A.

An Astrolabe with Arabic inscriptions recording it to have been made in 1485, by Auhad Ben Mohammad al-Auhadi for Tajuddin Ján Ali.

A Norwegian silver belt with ornaments of a peculiar character.

Ethnographical.—Eight Budhist sculptures from the Salpoore Hills, presented by L. Ashburner, Esq., Magistrate of Kandesh, Bombay.

Four Chinese bronze vases, and a pair of Japanese slippers, presented by Captain Beauvais.

Eight clay seals with inscriptions in the Pali character, found in Penang, presented by Mr. W. E. Jevons.

A small collection of figures and musical instruments from Siam.

Arms and implements from the Zambesi district, in Africa, presented by Henry Waghorn, Esq., M.R.C.S.

S. Birch.

Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities.

I.—Arrangement.

One hundred and thirty-six statues, busts, reliefs, and fragments of sculpture from the Mausoleum, Carthage, and the earlier collections, have been mounted on plinths. Thirty-one Greek inscriptions have been mounted on plinths. Two pieces of a Mosaic pavement from Halicarnassus have been repaired and mounted on slate; 410 gold ornaments and other objects have been catalogued; 158 objects have been registered; descriptive titles have been attached to 331 objects; 128 vases and 14 terra-cottas have been repaired. The first part of a new Guide to the Department is in the press.

II.—Acquisitions.

(1.) Statues from the Farnese Palace, Rome.—During the past year an important addition to the Sculpture Galleries of the Museum has been made by the purchase of the following statues from the Farnese Palace at Rome:

1. A Mercury holding a caduceus, identical in attitude and style with the statue of the same god in the Belvedere of the Vatican, and with one in the Lansdowne Collection. Several other repetitions of this figure are extant, and it is probable that they are all taken from some famous original. This statue is finely composed, and the head is remarkable for beauty of expression and good preservation.

2. A small figure representing an Athlete binding a diadem round his head, and hence generally considered to be an unique copy of the celebrated Diadumenos of Polykleitos. This statue is admirably modelled, and is evidently the work of a Greek chisel; the material is Pentelic marble. The style corresponds with all that we know of the characteristics of the school of Polykleitos.

3. An Equestrian statue restored as Caligula, but probably of a later period; of special interest as one of the very few equestrian figures which have been preserved from antiquity. It has undergone some restorations, but is on the whole in excellent condition.

4. An heroic figure well modelled and of a good period, the subject unknown.

5. A Faun playing with the infant Bacchus; interesting in the treatment of the subject, but of late and inferior sculpture.

6. An Apollo of heroic size, much restored.

7. A group of Mercury and Herse, the upper part of both figures restored.

8. The torso of a male figure, well modelled.

9. The head of a Roman Emperor, probably Commodus.

(2.) A Collection of Antiquities from Camirus, in the Island of Rhodes.—During the winter and spring of 1863-4, extensive excavations were carried on at Camirus by Mr. Vice-Consul Biliotti and Mr. Salzmann, under the direction of the Trustees of the British Museum.

Museum. In the course of these operations, more than 275 tombs were opened, and the Acropolis of Camirus was also explored.

On excavating on this latter site, various foundations of walls were laid bare, and under these foundations a curious system of galleries, with shafts at intervals, apparently to hold water, has been traced out. A variety of early antiquities in porcelain, bronze, ivory, gold, pottery, and various minerals, have been found in these shafts and galleries. The fruits of these excavations constitute some of the most important accessions which have been made for many years to the Department.

The Antiquities found consist of the following classes:—

Painted Fictile Vases from the earliest to the latest period of Greek Ceramography, and comprising a number of interesting and valuable specimens of the best style. Among these vases may be especially noted the following:—

1. A drinking cup, on the inside of which is a figure of Aphrodite borne through the air on a swan. Her name is inscribed above her. This design is drawn in brown, on a white ground. The drapery of Aphrodite is coloured red. The group is exquisitely composed and drawn with a mastery which shows that the vase belongs to the finest period of Greek Art; it is probably of the period of Phidias. Whether this cup be of Rhodian fabric or imported, it will challenge comparison with the finest examples of Ceramography from Vulci, Nola, or Athens. Height, 4 inches by 9½ inches in diameter.

Among the vases with red figures on a black ground are the following:—

2. A cup of the kind called Kantharos, representing on the obverse a combat between Theseus and Andromache, on the reverse a similar combat between Paris and Phorbas, all these names being inscribed. This cup is remarkable for the beauty of the drawing and for its form, which is of rare occurrence. Height, 10¾ inches.

3. A drinking cup on the inside of which is represented the Rape of Thetis by Peleus, with the names of Thetis and her companions inscribed above them; on the outside are the combats of Æneas and Diomed, and of Herakles, Cycnus, and Ares.

4. An Amphora on which is represented Phineus and the sons of Boreas.

Small bottles and jugs of variegated glass called amphoriski and œnochoæ. The series of these from Camirus is most remarkable for variety of colour and perfection of condition.

Terra-cottas.—Of these the most worthy of note are—A jar four feet high, with two handles, the shoulder and handles covered with figures and ornaments in relief of a very archaic character. Fragments of such jars are sometimes found in tombs in the Greek islands, but this specimen is believed to be the only jar of so large a size which has been discovered entire.

A terra-cotta coffin 6½ feet long.

Two small archaic groups in relief, one representing the Rape of Thetis by Peleus, the other Aurora carrying off Kephalus, both coloured.

A female figure, broken at the knees; its original height must have been nearly two feet. It is ornamented with earrings and two necklaces resembling those of the small statuettes which are found at Dali, in Cyprus, and which are, therefore, probably of Phœnician origin. This figure is painted in black and red, and is a most curious specimen of archaic art.

A number of small draped female figures (probably representing the Aphrodite Persephone), grotesque male figures, pigs and other animals, masks, and neurospasta or jointed dolls.

Porcelain.—A most interesting collection of objects in this material was found in the shafts and galleries on the Acropolis, at Camirus. These objects comprise statuettes of Egyptian divinities; vases in the shape of lions, sphinxes and other animals; other vases with friezes in very low relief, and scarabœi, one of which is inscribed with the name of the Egyptian king, Thothmes III., a proof of the very high antiquity of some of these remains.

Ivories.—In the same shafts and galleries were found numbers of amulets and other small objects carved in ivory, among which are archaic masks formed of segments of ivory beautifully jointed and united by a pin running obliquely through them.

Statuettes in Calcareous Stone.—A number of these, very rudely sculptured, were found in shafts and galleries in the Acropolis. They probably belong to the Phœnician period.

Gold Ornaments.—A few embossed plates from a necklace of the archaic period, similar to those obtained from Camirus in previous years, were found in tombs.

Alabaster jars (Alabasta). Of these there is a fine series.

Inscriptions.—A decree of the people of Camirus inscribed on a marble stelé. This appears to relate to the division of landed property, and is a very curious specimen of early Doric. Its discovery on the Acropolis of Camirus fixes the geographical position of that city. Altogether the collection presents a rich store of materials for the history of Greek

Art, and especially during that early period when it was first developed under the influence of Egyptian and Assyrian Art.

(3.) A bronze lamp with two spouts, found at Paris in an excavation in the ancient Roman Thermæ, of which the site is partially occupied by the Hotel Cluny. The form of this lamp is similar to that of a smaller lamp found at Pompeii and engraved "Mus. Borbon. XI. Tav. 13." Two dolphins united at the tails ornament the upper part of the lamp; at each side projects a half lion, and under each spout is a satyric head in relief. The whole composition is conceived in a bold and original style. The details are elaborately wrought; the eyes are inlaid in silver. This lamp is also remarkable for its great size, measuring 1 feet 1½ inches in length, and having been originally of the same height and breadth. It has been suspended by a chain attached to the dolphins' tails.

(4.) A bronze female figure found in a railway excavation near Naples. This figure, which is two feet high, is a most interesting specimen of early Græco-Italian or Etruscan Art. It is draped to the feet. On the breast is engraved a floral pattern, and on the upper arm the fastenings of the sleeves are rendered by the same process. The figure probably represents Aphrodite. This bronze is specially interesting as a very early and fine example of ancient casting. The forearms, which are advanced in front of the body, have been separately cast, and then soldered on.

(5.) A small collection of Sculptures and inscriptions acquired in the Levant by the late Percy Clinton, Viscount Strangford. Among these may be mentioned—

1. A small figure of Apollo, broken off at the knees; its height has probably been about four feet. This figure is an interesting specimen of archaic art, and probably belongs to the same transition period as the Æginetan marbles.

2. Part of a circular shield on which is sculptured in relief a battle of Greeks and Amazons. This fragment has a special interest, because the subject of the relief formed the ornament of the shield of the celebrated chryselephantine statue of Athene by Phidias. A small marble figure of this goddess, found at Athens some years ago, is believed to be a representation of the statue of Phidias, and has a buckler ornamented with a similar composition of Amazons.

(6.) A plaster cast from a fragment of the frieze of the Mausoleum preserved in the Museum within the Seraglio at Constantinople, where it was seen by Mr. Newton in 1852. This fragment, representing an Amazon rushing forward with uplifted battle-axe, belongs to the frieze of the order, and is sculptured with the same mastery as the rest. It is not known how it came into the Museum of the Seraglio.

(7.) A female head and part of an inscription discovered by Mr. Wood in excavations in the Odeum at Ephesus. The inscription is a letter from the Emperor Antoninus Pius, apparently, to the people of Ephesus. On the same site Mr. Wood has found fragments of two other Imperial letters, both addressed by Trajan to the people of Ephesus; also a dedication to the Emperor Marcus Aurelius. The female head is of the Roman period and coarsely sculptured.

The following presents have been received:—

A marble base with a Greek inscription in honour of Aurelius Priscus Isidorus and his wife, Ulpia Matrona, by the people of Tomi.

A dedication in Greek to the Empress Julia Mammæa.

A Greek sepulchral stelé in memory of one Teimokrates, on which is a relief representing the funeral feast.

A marble base with a Greek inscription in honour of Aurelius Prisciùs Annianus.

A sepulchral stelé in memory of one Chrestos.

A sepulchral stelé with a relief representing the funeral feast.

A Latin inscription in memory of Vibia Aurelia Valeria.

All these inscriptions were found in making a railway at Kustenji, the ancient Tomi. Presented by Wm. P. Price, Esq.

Casts from two of the seats recently discovered in the theatre of Dionysos at Athens. The inscription on one of these seats shows that it was assigned to the priest of Dionysos, the other was that of one of the ten Strategi. Presented by Miss Winifrede Wyse.

The torso of a male figure in bronze, and a terra-cotta sling bullet from Carthage. Presented by H. Christy, Esq.

A lamp and an amphora, both of unvarnished terra-cotta, and an iron key found with the bronze lamp described above. Presented by G. Witt, Esq.

Fragment of a terra-cotta lamp, ornamented with a female bust in relief, from Rome. Antifixal terra-cotta ornament found in the rubbish heap at Pompeii. Presented by the Rev. Greville J. Chester.

Facsimile of an inscription in Archaic Greek characters, from the tomb of Menekrates in Corfu. Presented by the Rev. Isaac Lowndes.

A collection of views in water colour, taken at Cyrene, by Captain Porcher, R.N. Presented by Captain Porcher, R.N.

C. T. Newton.

II.—Acquisitions.

The following table shows the number and classification of the coins and medals procured during the year 1864:—

	Gold.	Silver.	Copper.	Lead.	Glass.	Total.
Greek	-	293	913	139	5	1,350
Roman	371	54	87	-	-	512
Mediæval and Modern	112	240	122	-	-	474
English	12	45	37	-	-	94
Oriental	11	66	60	-	-	137
Total	506	698	1,219	139	5	2,567

Of these acquisitions, the following have been presented to the Trustees:—

A Greek coin of Ptolemy I. From his Grace the late Duke of Northumberland, K.G.

30 Australian tokens, two foreign medals of George V., of Hanover, and Wilhelm of Brunswick and Luneburg, an English medal of the Infant Orphan Asylum at Wanstead, and five French medals of Louis Philippe and Napoleon III. respectively. From the Right Hon. the Earl of Enniskillen.

295 Imperial Roman gold coins, of which 94 are unique or unpublished, and which are valued at not less than 3,200*l*. From Edward Wigan, Esq.

A medal of Mrs. Hay. From the Rev. Dr. Wellesley, Principal of New Inn Hall, Oxford.

Five very rare coins of the tenth century, found in the Canton Grisons. From J. F. W. De Salis, Esq.

A two cents piece for 1864. From the Mint of the United States.

22 copper tokens of Canada, Nova Scotia, &c. From the Hon. W. H. Pope, of Prince Edward's Island.

An English medal of Queen Anne. From Professor Van der Chijs, of Leyden.

A medal of Galileo. From the Prefect of Pisa.

A medal of the Tercentenary of Shakspeare. From Messrs. Hunt and Roskell.

A 20 kopek piece of the Empress Catherine II. of Russia. From G. Eastwood, Esq.

A medal of Queen Anne, four English tokens of the 17th Century, and a counter of Sir John Fortescue. From A. W. Franks, Esq.

An uncertain Greek coin, probably struck in Judæa, and bearing the name of Salvidienus. From John Evans, Esq.

217 coins, chiefly of the South American Republics, of which 65 are gold, and many very rare. From the Hon. Robert Marsham.

Three medals, in bronze, of the Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Canada, of the Hartley Colliery Explosion, and Caswasjee Byranjee. From Joseph Wyon, Esq.

Two medals, one in bronze and the other in white metal, of the British Museum Volunteer Corps. From Mr. Taylor.

The following coins may be specified as remarkable additions to the Cabinets in the Museum:—

In the Greek series: several rare coins of the Ptolemies, and many very rare coins of the Roman Emperors, struck at Alexandria, some of which are of the highest interest, particularly those of Pertinax, Septimius Severus, Julia Domna, Caracalla, Geta, Diadumenianus, and of the three wives of Elagabalus. Owing to these additions, the Egyptian series of the British Museum is now the most complete that has ever been formed.

In the Roman series: among purchases may be mentioned a very fine gold coin of Probus; two interesting specimens of the Severus family, one with the heads of Domna, Severus, and Caracalla, the other with those of Geta, Severus, and Caracalla; several legionary coins of Severus, which are extremely rare; a small brass coin of Victorinus of the Consecration type; and a very rare coin of Domitianus, called commonly Alexander Domitianus, struck at Alexandria.

Among the donations, the following may be noticed as part of the magnificent gift of Edward Wigan, Esq.: unique coins of the Antestia family, of Domitianus Ahenobarbus, of the Rustia family, and of Brutus; an extremely rare coin of Agrippa and Augustus; a magnificent coin of Augustus, with the head crowned with olive; a Caius Cæsar and an Albinus of the highest rarity; the finest known specimen of Barbia Orbiana; a most remarkable Postumus full-faced; a Carausius, two of Allectus, and a quinarius of Galerius Maximinus; all of extreme rarity. In this noble gift, there were no less than 223 gold coins, hitherto unrepresented in the Museum Cabinets.

In the Mediæval and Modern Series may be mentioned some valuable presents from the Honourable Robert Marsham: an octagonal gold piece of fifty dollars, struck at San Francisco in California in 1852; a large round gold coin of fifty dollars, struck at San Francisco in 1855; three gold coins of twenty dollars, and two of five dollars, struck by the Mormons at Salt Lake; three onzas de oro, struck for Mexico; sixteen pesos de oro, struck for Guatemala, and four onzas de oro, struck for Bolivia.

Departments of Natural History.

The additions to the Departments of Natural History, 12,973 in number, have been received in the year 1864 under the same conditions of restricted space as have been stated in "Annual Reports" from the year 1857 to 1864, inclusive, and have consequently compelled the application of the time and work of the staff in a proportionate degree to the labours of safe stowage and conservation of the specimens, with the view to their fitness for exhibition and scientific applications when the required space may be obtained.

The stuffed specimens of the class Mammalia have been kept in a state of preservation, without, without, for the most part, other deterioration than is inevitable in regard to the proportion of the exhibited specimens for which there is not accommodation in the glazed cabinets.

Specimens in which such deterioration has reached a certain degree have been removed, and replaced by new or better examples of the same species.

The unstuffed skins of the Mammalia in store are in such state of preservation as to subserve the purposes of scientific examination and comparison, and most of them are in a state fit for future preparation and exhibition.

The proportion of the collection of Bird skins and skeletons mounted and exhibited in systematic order is in a good state of preservation. Some of the cabinets are now more crowded than is consistent with the desirable facility of comparison and study, or with easy access to the specimens.

The remainder of the collection of bird skins, unmounted, in storage, preserved in boxes and cupboards in the basement vaults, are in a state of preservation, available for the purposes of study of characters and of comparison, but, in a certain proportion, not easily accessible for such uses.

The proportion of the collection of Reptiles and Fishes preserved and displayed is in a good state of preservation and of instructive arrangement. The greater proportion of this Collection, including the bulk of the specimens of Fishes, is stored in the basement, in a space now so crowded as to oppose great obstruction to their scientific study and comparison. Such stored specimens are preserved in alcohol, and their locality occasions rapid evaporation and deterioration of the preserving liquor. The preservation of the specimens under these circumstances is costly.

The arranged and exhibited series of the Shells of the Molluscous animals is in a good state of preservation, well placed, displayed and labelled for instruction and reference. This series includes a large proportion of the Conchology. The classes, orders, and families of Shell-less Mollusca are preserved in spirits and stored in the basement vaults, on shelves, now so crowded that access to any, not in the front row, is difficult or hazardous, and the scientific utility of this part of the collection continues to be gravely restricted.

The small proportion of the class Insecta publicly displayed is in a good state of preservation, and instructively arranged and labelled. The very large proportion of the class in the Basement Entomological Store Room is in a good state of preservation, and so arranged in drawers, as to be accessible for study and comparison.

A large proportion of the class Echinodermata is now exhibited and systematically arranged. All the specimens of this class are in a state of preservation.

The corals and other Radiata, in the public Gallery, occupy small detached glazed cases in such spaces as can, with least inconvenience, be taken from the gangways of the Mammalian Saloon. The instructiveness of this part of the Zoological Collection is affected by the want of an appropriate gallery, such as that which allows of the arrangement of the Molluscous Shells in the order of their progressive affinities.

The collection of the Osteological specimens, human and comparative, is in a state of preservation. The additions to this series have been unavoidably numerous, and, in the restricted space which can be afforded to the Collection in the basement, render more difficult the access to the specimens; the present conditions of their stowage cause great obstacles to application in the comparison of fossil and recent bones. All the specimens are preserved in a state fit for future articulation and arrangement, when a Gallery for their exhibition may be provided.

The exhibited series of Nests and Nidamental structures, and of the British Natural History, are severally in a good state of preservation. Present conditions of space necessitate the display of the extensive series of horns and antlers apart from the stuffed specimens and skeletons of the species to which they belong or are allied.

The spaces respectively allotted to such proportions of each class of the Zoology as can be shown to the public, are now so filled, or crowded, that the addition thereto of a specimen, the rarity or other quality of which may enforce its claim to exhibition, involves the removal of another specimen, and usually of more or less re-arrangement of the exhibited series.

The proportion of the series of the fossil remains which is exhibited is instructively arranged, and labelled, and in most instances of easy access for scientific examination and comparison. The proportion of the fossil series kept in store is partly arranged in glazed cabinets in a recess to which the public have not access, partly in drawers; but for the most part easily available to the student and scientific visitor. All the fossil specimens, exhibited and in store, are in a good state of preservation.

A large proportion of the series of Mineralogy is exhibited under conditions of arrangement, with illustrative models and indices, and with generic and specific labelling, greatly facilitating its instructive study and scientific applications. For full fruition and completely carrying out of the latter there are only wanting the Mineralogist's Laboratory and Goniometrical Room. All the specimens of Minerals displayed and in store, are in a perfect state of preservation.

A geographical group of animals—those of the Holy Land, most interesting to a large class of public visitors as well as Biblical students, and the absence of any specimens of which had been much felt—began to be supplied by the Collection of Fishes from the Lake or Sea of Galilee, presented by Mr. Beddome, and noticed in the Annual Report for 1863. In the past year Scriptural Zoology has been further exemplified by animals of other classes, collected in Syria and Judæa, and presented by the Rev. H. B. Tristram, M.A.

The "arneveth which cheweth the cud, and divideth not the hoof," rendered "hare" in our version of Deuteronomy xiv. 7, and Leviticus xi. 6, is represented in this collection by the Lepus Syriacus. The "shāphān which make their houses in the rocks," rendered "coney" in Proverbs xxx. 26, Psalm civ. 18, and elsewhere, is exemplified by the Hyrax Syriacus. The "Achbâr," rendered "mouse" in Leviticus xi. 29, may refer to the species of Arvicola, or Gerbillus, or Acomys, as well as Mus, in Mr. Tristram's Collection. The specimens of Ibex and Gazella are probably the species alluded to under the names "tzaphir," Daniel viii. 21; "Yehel," Job xxxix. 1, and "ez," Genesis xv. 9, and rendered "chamois" in Deuteronomy xiv. 5, and elsewhere. Of the "hâtalleph," rendered "bats" in Deuteronomy xiv. 18, and Isaiah ii. 20, the collection includes species of Rhinopoma, Rhinolophus, Noctulinia, Vespertilio, and Plecotus. It contains also a specimen of Syrian badger, although it is doubtful whether the "tachash" is rightly so rendered in Exodus and Numbers. The "dugong" (Halichore Hemprichii, of the Red Sea), which more probably supplied the covering of the Tabernacle, is still a desideratum. The species of Genetta, Herpestes, and other small Carnivores brought from Palestine by Mr. Tristram, are indicated by the term "Hholed" or "Chôled" in the Hebrew Scriptures, usually rendered "weasel" in the authorised version, Leviticus xi. 29. The "tanshemeth" or "mole" may have referred to the species of Spalax in the present Collection, in which there is no true Talpa. The specimens of Testudo Græca, and of Emys Caspica, which Mr. Tristram has shown to range to the Holy Land, exemplify the forms to which reference is made by the Hebrew "tzav," or "tsab," rendered "tortoise after his kind," in Leviticus xi. 29. The brief notices of the serpents in the Old Testament preclude a determination of their species; but the number of these, including three or more poisonous kinds, collected in Palestine by Mr. Tristram, accords with the references to such by diverse names, as e. g., "nahash," and "shephîphon," respectively rendered "serpent" and "adder," in Genesis xlix. 17; the poison of the "nâchâsh" and "pethen," rendered "serpent" and "adder" in Psalm lviii. 4; the species "which stingeth like an adder," "epheh" and "tzepha," Proverbs xxiii. 32; the serpent whose bite inflames, "saraph," rendered "fiery serpent" in Numbers xxi. 8.

In acknowledging the valuable materials above briefly exemplified, which Mr. Tristram has contributed to the Museum, in behalf of the students of Biblical Zoology, it is to be remarked that much remains to be done, by collections in Syria and Palestine of animals of different classes, in order to supply the deficiency in the Zoological Department to which the attention of travellers was requested in the Annual Report of 1862.

Other noteworthy additions to the Zoological series are specified in the report from that department.

Amongst the additions to the Department of Geology the most interesting in relation to questions as to the antiquity of man, and the cranial and dental characters of primitive races, are the partly petrified remains of the men who inhabited the Limestone Caverns of the South of France at the period when chamois, bouquetin, wild horse, reindeer, the great extinct ox, &c., existed, and especially the reindeer, abounded, in that part of Europe; and at a period when the use of metals being unknown, the primitive implements were chipped flints, by means of which diverse weapons and instruments, including needles, were manufactured from the bones and antlers of the beasts captured and killed for food. On some of those bone instruments the reindeer and horse had been delineated in outline, with much truth and spirit, and these are probably among the earliest examples of the graphic art. The value of this series of human remains, discovered at Bruniquel by the Vicomte de Lastic in 1863, depends upon the care and accuracy with which every material fact as to "matrix," "position," "chemical condition," &c., of the crania was ascertained, on which a conclusion as to their contemporaneity with the remains of the extinct animals could be satisfactorily arrived at. To this end the cavern was visited by the reporter in January and February 1864; the human remains were inspected, and others were then exposed in situ, and one almost entire cranium was removed and transferred to the British Museum, with the large mass of breccia, detached at a depth of four feet from the stalagmitic floor of the cavern, and exhibiting, with other human remains and numerous implements, conditions of imbedding identical with those of the bones and teeth of the Cervus tarandus and Bos primigenius.

Whilst these evidences expand our knowledge of the relations of the human species with quadrupeds locally or absolutely extinct, others have been received indicative of the continuance of species now extinct to a more recent period than we had previously evidence of. Among such specimens are the valuable donations by the Hon. William Owen Stanley, noticed in the Report from the Geological Department. The jaws and teeth of the Northern Elephant (Elephas primigenius) were discovered, with remains of red deer, stumps of large trees, hazel-nuts and alder-berries, in a bed of compact peat, about three feet thick, covered by a deposit of blue clay of varying thickness, overlaid by a sandy deposit with shells of existing and neighbouring marine species, all cut through in excavating the harbour at Holyhead.

But, amongst the evidences of past animal existence, perhaps the oldest, geologically, are of highest interest. The Museum has been enriched by donation from the Directors of the Geological Survey of Canada, with fossils of crustaceous and testaceous rank from the Cambrian or Lower Silurian shales; and more especially with a beautifully etched section of the still Lower Laurentian Marble, exhibiting evidences of the protozoal foraminiferous organism called Eozoon Canadense, which, at the present phase of Geological science, is the most ancient fossil organism known.

The

The unique and beautiful specimen of Solaster Moretonis, presented by the Earl Ducie, F.R.S., being the type of the species described by Professor Edward Forbes, is one of that class of donations meriting special acknowledgment.

Of the total number of additions, 12,973, to the Departments of Natural History, 7,688 are registered in the Department of Zoology, 4,651 in the Department of Geology, and 634 in the Department of Mineralogy.

In conclusion, it has to be remarked that the present space allotted to the Natural History collections restricts the labours of the staff, in regard to a large proportion of the specimens, to the business of conservation: whereas the purpose of the collections is to be instructively exhibited, or arranged under conditions of light and access facilitating scientific scrutiny and comparison.

Not only the Birds, the Shells, and the Minerals should be shown in serial sequence, but every other class of Natural History: nor ought the bulk of the specimens, in certain of these, to be a bar to such display; for it is only in a National or British Museum in which adequate space for such means of advancing Natural Science can be afforded or expected.

Richard Owen.

Department of Zoology.

During the past year, 7,688 specimens of animals of different classes have been added to the several parts of the Zoological Collection; namely,—

Vertebrate Animals - - - - - -	3,462
Molluscous and Radiated Animals - - - -	1,350
Annulose Animals - - - - - - -	2,876
Total - - -	7,688

Each of these additions to the collection has been regularly marked with the date and number, and has been described in the manuscript register of Accessions, with a notice of the locality where it was found, and the manner in which it was acquired. These particulars give the history of each specimen for future use, and add greatly to its value.

The more important specimens which have been received during the year have been inserted in their proper systematic places in the collections which are exhibited to the public; the specimens in these collections which have become deteriorated by exposure and dust have been removed and replaced, and the specimens exhibited have in many cases been re-arranged, to keep the collection on a level with the progress of the science of Zoology, and thus afford the means of studying it in the most efficient manner.

The labels that had become antiquated, or injured by exposure, have been verified or restored.

Several animals, or groups of animals, that are especially interesting to the public on account of peculiarities in their structure or their habits, have been placed in isolated cases upon the glass cases in the public rooms, so that they may be better exhibited.

Various parts of the Entomological Collection, and of the collection of objects which are kept unstuffed for more easy study, have been re-arranged, as the additions that have been made to them have rendered such a proceeding necessary or desirable.

The scientific students and artists who make use of the collection, and especially those who come to prepare and illustrate works, have been attended to and assisted.

A large proportion of the specimens that have been in the Museum for years, and some of those acquired during the past year, have been described by various zoologists of this country and abroad, and by the officers of the Museum, which renders them of more importance, as they become the typical specimens which future naturalists must consult when they desire to see the authentic specimen from which the species has been described.

The following Catalogues have been published during the year 1864:—

Catalogue of the Coleopterous Insects of the Canaries, by T. V. Wollaston, F.L.S.
Catalogue of Lepidoptera Heterocera, Parts 29 and 30, by Francis Walker, F.L.S.
Catalogue of Fishes, Vol. V., by Dr. Günther.

The illustrations for several scientific and popular works have been made from the specimens in the Museum.

Mammalia:—307 Mammalia have been added to the collection; the following may be especially mentioned.

Perhaps the most important accession in a physiological point of view is the receipt of a male, a female with rudimentary pouch, and a very young porcupine ant-eater (Echidna) in spirits; presented by Dr. Müller of Melbourne, Australia.

A collection of the Mammalia of the Holy Land, collected by the Rev. Mr. Tristram, and and specially interesting as showing the animals mentioned in Scripture, and as adding to our knowledge of the geographical distribution of many species not before known.

A large series of skulls of the different races of Negroes that are brought to the coast near the mouth of the Gaboon, and skins and skeletons of the Gorilla, Chimpanzee, and the African Sea Cow, or Manatee, have been received from M. Du Chaillu.

The nest of the nest-building Chimpanzee, and remains of other Mammalia, transmitted from the Gaboon by M. Du Chaillu, have been presented by John Murray, Esq.

Dr. Kirk has presented a series of Mammalia from the Zambesi River, including a Galago, and some Bats and an Antelope, that are new to science and to the collection.

The Rev. O. P. Cambridge, of Blandford, has presented some species of Bats.

Birds:—520 specimens of Birds have been added to the collection.

The most remarkable and interesting (on account of the belief that the bird has lately become extinct) is a mummy specimen of the Great Auk (Alca impennis), which was found pressed flat with the flesh converted into adipocire, on an island to the northward of Newfoundland, several feet below the surface, in a deposit of "frozen guano." With the exception of the extremities of the toes, this example is perfect in every respect, even to the pen-feathers on the wing; the beak is as perfect as the day the bird died. It was sent to Mr. Matthew Jones, and presented to the Museum by the Bishop of Newfoundland, who also procured the specimen that was previously sent to Mr. Alfred Newton, the skeleton of which has been described by Professor Owen in the Transactions of the Zoological Society.

A specimen of the rare genus of Pigeons named Didunculus, which is supposed to be the nearest ally to the Dodo, from the Navigator's Islands, sent to the Zoological Society by Dr. George Bennett, F.L.S. This bird is apparently becoming extinct.

Some specimens of birds from Eastern Africa, including two new species described by Dr. Sclater, presented by J. Dickenson, Esq.

A specimen of Porzana, from Newport, presented by the Rev. A. Morgan.

Reptiles:—The additions to the class of Reptiles are 847 in number; all the specimens are preserved in spirits. The following collections may be specially noticed.

A large collection from Bandjermassing (Borneo), presented by L. L. Dillwyn, Esq., M.P., containing many species which were formerly desiderata.

Three collections from Angola, made and presented by Dr. F. Welwitsch, J. J. Monteiro, Esq., and M. Barboza de Bocage, containing several forms of Ophidians and Batrachians, new to science. These collections, although small, were the more valuable as that province of Western Africa is herpetologically almost unknown.

A very fine collection of the Reptiles of Palestine, formed by the Rev. H. B. Tristram, contained such an unexpected variety of forms (one of which proved to be a new genus of snakes) that the British Museum now possesses the most complete materials for the study of this part of the Fauna of the Holy Land.

The typical specimens of the species of burrowing Snakes, described by Captain Beddome, from Ootacamund, Madras Presidency.

Several collections of most valuable specimens of rare Australian Reptiles, presented by Gerard Krefft, Esq., Curator of the Australian Museum at Sydney.

A collection of Reptiles and Fish from Egypt, presented by the Rev. O. P. Cambridge.

Fishes:—The additions to the class of Fishes are 1,706 in number; most of the specimens are preserved in spirits, only a small proportion being dried skins; they have been received from sources so numerous that only the most important can be mentioned here.

A very extensive collection formed by a collector on the Essequibo River, whence since the time of Schomburgk's travels (whose Zoological collections were for the greater part lost) no specimen had been received. Many of the species were desiderata in the National Collection, and others were quite new.

A collection of the Fishes of the Bosphorus, made by Dr. Millingen of Constantinople. No specimens from that sea were previously in the British Museum.

A complete set of the Fishes of the Holy Land, formed by the Rev. H. B. Tristram, has been secured. Several of the species are new to science, whilst others assist in the determination of forms described during, and not re-discovered since, the Linnæan period.

Very valuable additions to the collection of British Fishes have been made by presents from his Grace the Duke of Roxburgh, the Earl of Enniskillen, Sir Philip de Malpas Grey Egerton, Bart, M. P., the Rev. Chancellor Augustus Morgan, William Peel, Esq., and others.

It has been found necessary to complete the collection of British Salmonoids by series of examples, preserved in spirits, from various localities, as skins alone are perfectly inadequate to furnish characters for an original description, or to assist in the study of this important group of fishes, the knowledge of which is at present very imperfect.

A Male Salmon from the Tay, 46 lbs. weight, one of the finest specimens ever brought to the London market.

Two collections of Bavarian Fishes, formed by Dr. Gemminger and Dr. von Siebold, illustrative of the species described by the latter gentleman.

A collection of Fishes from Lapland, formed by Mr. Wheelwright.

A second collection of typical specimens of the Pharyngognathous species described by Dr. P. Bleeker. This collection renders our series of that part of the class of fish the most complete of all in the Natural History Museums.

A collection

A collection of Fishes from Zanzibar, partly dried, partly in spirits, presented by Lieut.-Colonel Playfair, H. M. Consul at Zanzibar.

A collection of Fishes from the Cape de Verde Islands, presented by the Rev. R. T. Lowe, contained several new species.

The typical specimens of some new genera of deep sea Fishes from Madeira, discovered and presented by J. Y. Johnson, Esq.

Several collections of Fishes from Central America, made and presented by Captain Dow, C.M.Z.S.

Several smaller collections of Australian Fishes were presented by G. Krefft, Esq., as illustrative of the species described by him.

Large specimens of a Salmonoid from Dalmatia, presented by G. Lenox Conyngham, Esq.

After the very large addition made to the collection of Insects last year, including, as it did, the munificent donation of Mr. John Bowring, the addition of only 2,800 and odd specimens may appear to be a great falling off; but such acquisitions are not to be expected yearly, or even more than once in a lifetime. Amongst the above specimens, however, are included many very interesting additions to the collection, especially a series of large Beetles from Central Africa.

During the past year the Insects belonging to the families Cetoniadæ, Buprestidæ, and the straight-horned Curculionidæ have been re-arranged, incorporating with the collection previously in the Museum those portions of the Bowring Collection which were particularly rich in these families, not only on account of the number of species, but because a large proportion of them were type specimens from which many species had been described and figured.

Several families of Diurnal Lepidoptera have also been re-arranged, to insert in their proper places the additions made since the last arrangement, and to revive the nomenclature.

Eleven hundred and six specimens of Mollusca and Radiata have been added to the collection during the past year. Among them may be specially mentioned—

A very interesting small collection of Shells made by Dr. Kirk during the Zambesi Expedition, from Eastern Africa, Lake Nyopa, &c., containing several new and rare species from countries seldom visited by Europeans.

Several rare and valuable Shells have been purchased at different times, as specimens of the rare genus Mulleria from Bogota, the Oleacina priamus, a rare Fusus (F. nobilis), &c.

Collections of Pteropods and Pelagic Shells have been presented by Captain Baxter of the ship "Blenheim," and Captain Jones; several of them rare and good additions to our collection.

A collection of British Shells, the produce, in part, of Mr. J. G. Jeffrey's dredging off the Shetland Islands, consisting of several fine specimens, and some new additions to the species in our collection.

A small collection of Shells from Trinidad, the type specimens of a series described by Mr. Guppy of that island, and presented by him.

Several smaller collections of Shells have been received; such as a collection made by the late Captain Speke in East Africa, Lake Victoria, Nyanza, illustrative of his journey to discover the source of the Nile; part of a collection of Shells to be presented by the Smithsonian Institution; a collection of Shells from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, &c.

A fine specimen illustrative of a new genus of Echinoderms has been presented by the Trustees of the Free Museum, Liverpool.

Several additions have been made to our collection of Annelides, amongst them several specimens of the new Chætopterus from the Menai Straits, and several undescribed species from the Frith of Clyde and from the Shetland Islands.

John Edward Gray.

Department of Geology.

Of the additions to this department the following are the most important:—

Vertebrate Classes.—A very extensive Collection of Mammalian Remains, accompanied by skulls and other parts of the skeletons of human beings, together with flint and bone implements, from the Cavern of Bruniquel, in the South of France; procured by purchase from the Vicomte de Lastic. Among the Mammalian Remains are characteristic parts of the Red Deer, Reindeer, Ox, a species of Chamois, a species of Ibex, the Horse, Wolf, Fox, and Hare. The collection also contains some Bird Remains.

A nearly perfect skull, with the tusks (of about nine feet in length), of the Mammoth (Elephas primigenius); from the brick-clay of Ilford, in Essex. Presented by William Hill, Esq.

Teeth and parts of the skeleton of Hippopotamus major, and Bos primigenius, from the Pleistocene deposits at Moulsham, near Chelmsford, Essex. Presented by William Roper, Esq.

Remains of Sus scrofa, from Lough Gur, Limerick. Presented by W. F. De Salis, Esq., F.G.S.

Lower jaw of Elephas primigenius, with remains of Bos longifrons, Bos primigenius, Horse, Reindeer, and lower jaw of the Bottle-nose Whale (Hyperoödon); all found in the neighbourhood of London. Presented by the Commissioners of the Metropolitan Board of Works.

A fine lower jaw, with four molars in situ, of Elephas primigenius, and antlers of Cervus Elaphus, from the excavations in Holyhead Harbour. Presented by the Hon. William Owen Stanley, M.P., F.G.S.

A lower jaw of the Red Deer, from 40 feet beneath the surface of a shoal off Nettlestone Point, Isle of Wight. Presented by Thomas Harris, Esq., Engineer.

A fine series of remains of Marsupial Animals, including a portion of the upper jaw, an entire pelvis, tibia, and other bones of Diprotodon Australis, and portions of the skeleton of Macropus and Phascolomys, from fluviatile deposits, Darling Downs, Queensland, Australia; together with remains of Dinornis, from New Zealand. Presented by Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart.

Skull and lower jaw of Canis spelæus, from Bernberg.

Antilope brevicornis, from Pikermi, near Athens.

Palatal portion of the upper jaw, with two molar teeth in situ, of Elephas antiquus, from the Pleistocene clay at Peckham, and an ulna and radius and other bones of Elephas primigenius, from Ilford.

A skull of the rare species of extinct Ox (Bos frontosus), from the gravel-bed at Vauxhall; a portion of a skull of Bos primigenius, and various parts of the skeleton of the same species, from Ilford.

A nearly perfect skeleton, of about 12 feet in length, of a new species of Plesiosaurus, from the Lower Lias of Charmouth. This very interesting addition to the Reptilian Class has received the name Plesiosaurus rostratus from Professor Owen.

A series of Reptilian Remains from the Coal Measures near Airdrie.

An entire lower jaw of Belodon Kapffi, with many detached bones of the skeleton of the same species; also a right ramus of the lower jaw of Belodon Plieningeri; a probably unique specimen of Teratosaurus suevicus, described and figured by H. von Meyer in the Palæontographica; and remains of a rare Chelonian reptile (Chelytherium obscurum, v. M.), from the Upper Keuper sandstone of Stuttgardt. These were purchased of Dr. Kapff, together with a fine series of bones of Nothosaurus and Simosaurus from the Trias (Lettenkohle) deposits of Hoheneck, Wurtemberg.

A specimen of Ichthyosaurus tenuirostris, with portions of the dermal covering attached, from the Lias at Barrow-on-Soar.

Specimens of Pleuracanthus, Palæoniscus, and Acanthodes, from the Coal Measures of Germany. Presented by Sir Roderick Impey Murchison, K.C.B.

Some new genera and species of Fossil Fishes, including Parexus incurvus, Euthacanthus McNicoli, Ischnacanthus gracilis, and others, from the Old Red Sandstone of Forfarshire. Presented by James Powrie, Esq., F.G.S.

Remains of Cephalaspis and Pteraspis, from the Old Red Sandstone, Heightinton, Salop.

Several slabs, containing teeth, cephalic and dorsal spines, and showing the shagreen structure of the skin, of several species of Hybodus; fine examples of Eugnathus, Pholidophorus, Lepidotus fimbriatus, Conodus Chirotes, Chondrosteus, Dapedius, and Æchmodus, from the Lower Lias of Lyme Regis and Charmouth.

A nearly entire specimen of a new genus of Fishes, allied to Dercetis (Plinthophorus robustus, Günther), from the Lower Chalk, Dover.

Various Fish Remains from the Trias of Sunderland, Massachusetts.

Fine specimens of Cœlacanthus Hassiæ, Strophodus arcuatus, Dictea striata, Acrolepis, and Pygopterus, from the copper slates of Richelsdorf.

A fine series of the palatal teeth of Ceratodus, from the Trias of Hoheneck, and of Semionotus Kapffi, and S. Bergeri, from the Upper Keuper Sandstone of Stuttgardt.

Invertebrate Classes.—Seven casts of remains of new species of gigantic Crustaceans, from the Old Red Sandstone of Forfarshire. Presented by James Powrie, Esq., F.G.S. (Described by Mr. Henry Woodward at the meeting of the British Association, Bath, 1864.)

Cast of a new and remarkable Cystidean (Comarocystites punctatus), from the Lower Silurian, Canada. Presented by Dr. J. A. Grant, Ottawa City.

Five Fossil Plants from the Coal Measures of Germany. Presented by Sir Roderick Impey Murchison, K.C.B.

A slab from the Carboniferous Limestone of Dunbar, covered with Spirifers, and plates and spines of a Cidaris. Presented by David Robertson, Esq.

Shells from the basement bed of the London Clay, Bickley, Kent. Presented by C. J. A. Meyer, Esq.

Slab from the Mountain Limestone, containing a section of a very large and perfect specimen of Actinoceras, from the Newbery marble quarries, The Peak, Derbyshire. Presented by Francis Wright, Esq.

Two

Two very perfect examples of Lobocarcinus Paulino-Wurtembergensis, from the Nummulitic Limestone near Cairo. Presented by Mrs. Bowie.

Land and Fresh-water Shells, from Kuardo, Kashmir. Presented by R. Godwin-Austen, Esq., F.G.S.

Nautilus zic-zac, from the Miocene of Malta, and Skulls from Nubia. Presented by Dr. A. Leith Adams, F.G.S., 22d Regiment.

A very fine slab of Lower Silurian Shale, from Lake Huron, covered with Trilobites, also a section of Lower Laurentian Rock, exhibiting the remains of Eozoön Canadense, the oldest organism known. Presented by Sir W. E. Logan, F.R.S., F.G.S., Director of the Canadian Survey.

The type specimen of Actinocrinus brevicalix, from the Mountain Limestone, Clitheroe. Presented by John Rofe, Esq., F.G.S.

The type specimen of Solaster Moretonis, from the Great Oolite, Windrush Quarry. Presented by the Earl of Ducie, F.R.S., F.G.S.

A series of specimens of Middle Lias Corals, from Cherrington, Warwickshire. Presented by the Rev. P. B. Brodie, F.G.S.

Turrilites tuberculatus, Nautilus Saxbyi, and a fine series of other Testacea, from the Hard Chalk of Ventnor, Isle of Wight.

Two series of Cephalopoda, from the Lias of Lyme Regis, including Belemnites with cone, ink-bag, and hooks, associated together; specimens of the new genus of Fossil Cuttle-fishes, Xiphoteuthis Bechei; examples of Ammonites stellaris, A. fimbriatus, A. margaritatus, and 11 other species.

A small series of Shells from Piedmont, and 11 species from the Miocene of Bordeaux.

Uncites gryphus, from the Upper Devonian of Ebelsdorf, and three species of Pentamerus, from the Upper Silurian of Gotland.

Specimens of Ammonites sublaevis, A. Goweri, A. Koenigi, from the Kelloway Rock, Wiltshire.

30 Shells from the London Clay of Dulwich.

A large Hamite, and a series of other Gault Fossils, from Folkestone.

The type specimen of Lingula squamiformis, figured by Davidson, from the Carboniferous Strata of Ireland.

Ammonites Layeri, A. Simonyi, and A. Haidingeri, from the Trias of Styria.

22 Shells from the Upper Greensand, Warminster.

Specimens of Goniatites Listeri, Anthracosia robusta, Lingula, and Bellerophon, from the Coal Measures, Burnley, Lancashire.

A collection of Thanet Sand Shells, Herne Bay.

A series of Cretaceous Shells, from Algoa Bay, South Africa.

40 Cretaceous Shells, from Teruel, Spain.

A fine example of Hoploparia Saxbyi, from Ventnor, Isle of Wight; and of Necrocarcinus Woodwardi, from the Grey Chalk of the same locality.

An entire specimen of Homalonotus delphino cephalus, from the Wenlock Limestone, Dudley.

Remains of Paradoxides Davidis, and other Trilobites, from the lowest Silurian Rocks of St. David's Head, Pembrokeshire.

A large Asaphus, from the Slate Quarries, Angers.

Specimens of Sphærexochus, and Phacops, from the Wenlock Shale, Dudley.

Several well-preserved examples of Hoploparia longimana, from the Greensand of Lyme Regis.

Specimens of Scapheus ancylochelis, from the Lias of Lyme Regis.

Slab with Asaphus Canadensis, Collingwood, Canada West.

A series of Lingula-flag, Trilobites, from Wales.

Calymene Blumenbachii, from Gotland.

Enoploclytia Sussexiensis, from the Chalk of Burham.

Five Gault Crustacea, from Folkestone.

Æglina, Phacops and Dindymene, from the Skiddaw Slates, and Coniston Limestone.

A series of remains of Pterygotus Anglicus, from the Old Red Sandstone, Forfarshire and supposed eggs of Crustacea (Parka decipiens) from the same locality.

Eryon antiquus, and new species of Glyphæa and Æger, from the Lias of Lyme Regis.

Specimens of Echino-encrinus armatus, Periechocrinus moniliformis, and Cyathocrinus arthriticus, from the Wenlock Limestone, Dudley.

A specimen of the rare Oreaster bulbifrons, also of Goniodiscus Hunteri and six other Star-fishes, and of Diadema, Goniaster, a Bourgetocrinus and other Radiata, from the Upper Chalk, Bromley, Kent.

A series of Devonian Starfishes, and Crinoids, from Birkenfeld.

A slab of lias with Pentacrini.

Two series of Fossil Corals and Sponges from the Upper Greensand of Warminster.

Corals from the Oolite, Wenlock Limestone, and Devonian formations.

Base and portion of the stem of a very beautiful Calamite from the Coal Measures, Lancashire.

A collection of upwards of 50 Plants, from the Inferior Oolite, and Lias of Bayreuth, and the Devonian, of Silesia.

Four Fossil Plants, from the Coal Measures of Airdrie.
Section of Palm-wood, Seeds of Plants, &c., from Brook, Isle of Wight.

During the past year four thousand six hundred and fifty-one specimens have been submitted to examination, labelled, and entered in the Inventory, viz.:—

Plants	204
Radiata	408
Testacea	2,652
Articulata	408
Vertebrata	979
	4,651

By an alteration in the disposition of the Table-cases in Room V. space has been acquired for an extra Table, much wanted to display some recent additions to the Cephalopodous Mollusca; and with this additional space, the whole of the exhibited Ammonites and allied genera have been re-arranged, and now occupy seven Table-cases in the Room mentioned.

The series of seven Half-Table Cases on the North side of the Room devoted to small Mammalian remains, Crinoids, Foraminifera, &c., have in part been re-aranged. The Corals have been removed from Room VI., and re-arranged in Room V., and space has thus been gained for the exhibition of a more extensive series of British Eocene Shells, a large number of which have been mounted on tablets and displayed. In the same Room (VI.) an extra Table of Foreign Tertiary Shells has been exhibited. The whole of the Foreign Miocene Shells not exhibited to the public have been collected together, and arranged in 64 drawers in this Room; and the greater portion of them has been named and registered. A series of slabs containing Fossil Plants from Solenhofen has been exhibited for the first time in Room I. A large number of Crustacea and Radiata have also been arranged and exhibited.

The fine new Plesiosaurus rostratus, already mentioned, has been mounted in a frame, and exhibited on the North side of Room III.

Numerous additions have been made to the exhibited collection of Vertebrate Animal remains, especially from the Solenhofen Collection, obtained from Dr. Haberlein, many of the specimens of which have been developed by the mason, and mounted in frames.

The incorporation of these additional specimens has necessitated the partial re-arrangement of the Cases. The Wall-cases in Room III., containing the Ruminant remains from the Sewalik Hills, have been entirely re-arranged.

The specimens from the Cavern of Bruniquel have been arranged in the Wall-cases at the West end of Room VI.

Geo. R. Waterhouse.

Department of Mineralogy.

In the Mineral Department the following work has been done during the past year.

The Crystallography of the collection has made progress, and the inscription of the symbols on the crystalline planes of important species has been carried forward.

The numerous, and generally speaking very inferior Mineral specimens contained in drawers in the basement have been carefully examined: the best have been selected, cleaned, and, where they were not merely duplicates, have been arranged in their places in the reserve drawers.

A new Wall-case has been placed in Room I., to correspond with that in which the Aërolites (stony Meteorites) were arranged last year. In it the iron Meteorites have been arranged. Several of these have been polished and etched to exhibit the crystalline structure which constitutes one of their most important peculiarities.

The ends of two more Table-cases have been fitted with glazed compartments for the exhibition of unusually large and otherwise remarkable specimens.

New Species-labels have been placed with the Minerals in the first 15 cases, and labels inscribed with the localities have been affixed to the specimens in 66 of the drawers containing reserve and duplicate minerals.

The arrangement of the two cases containing the pseudomorphs, begun last year, has also been completed.

The Mineral Collection has received additions during the past year, amounting to 634 in number, some of which are of a very choice character. These have been registered, labelled, and incorporated in the collection.

Among

Among the more important of these acquisitions are the following :—

Presentations.—A fine mass of Graphite, Battugol, Irkutzk, Siberia, by M. Alibert.

Two specimens of Cinnabar, Arizona; by Major A. de Vecchi.

A hollow Enhydros of Calcedony, remarkable for its size, and for being almost entirely filled by a fluid. It represents an amygdaloidal cavity, from near Salto, Uruguay; by W. G. Lettsom, Esq., H.M. Chargé d'Affaires at Monte Video.

A fragment of a new Aerolite from Chili, 1 oz. 406 grs., by M. Lutschauine.

Analcime on Clay Ironstone, Duingen, near Göttingen, presented by Professor K. von Seebach.

Purchases.—Among the acquisitions by purchase the following may be especially recorded :—

A fine mass of Meteoric Iron, discovered at Obernkirchen, in Oldenburgh, weighing 120 lbs., described by Professor Wöhler, of Göttingen, through whose assistance it was obtained for the Museum.

Excellent specimens of the very remarkable black carbonaceous Aerolite which fell near Montauban, in France, on May 14, 1864.

The total additions of new Meteorites to the now unique collection of these bodies in the Museum has amounted during the last year to 13 falls, not before represented in the Collection.

A crystal, by far the largest and most remarkable known, of Iceland Spar (Calcite), twinned, and carrying a new plane, has been acquired by the department. Its weight is about 3 cwt. Its crystallography has been illustrated by the inscription of the symbols on its planes, and it is now exhibited in the glazed front of Case 30.

A dish of green quartzose Avanturine from India.

From Cornwall several remarkable Minerals have been procured, through Mr. Talling, of Lostwithiel. Among them are extremely beautiful specimens of Chalcotrichite and a fine Chalybite; also, for Cornwall, very fine specimens of Argentite and native Silver. Very large crystals of Fluor, with their angles modified, from the Menheniot Mines, and three new minerals, forming a new group with Brochantite, have this year been also found in Cornwall, viz., Langite, Waringtonite, and Devillite. The finest specimens yet raised of these are in the Collection. Atacamite also occurs with them.

Among other purchases may be mentioned :—

Native Gold, from Leadhills.
Native Gold in Galena, from Beresowsk.
Native Gold in quartz, from Break o'Day Gully, Bendigo Creek, Victoria.
Native Platinum, from Nijni-Tagilsk.
Native Sulphur, from near Senigaglia, Rome.
Crystal of Diamond, from The Ovens Gold Field, Victoria.
Steinmannite, from Neudorf.
Argentite, in large cubes, from Himmelsfahrt Mine, near Freiberg.
Enargite, from Parad, Hungary.
A series of Silver Ores, from Chili.
Crystals, probably unique of a Bromo-iodide of Silver, from Copiapo.
Kenngottite, from Felsöbanya.
Proustite, from Charnarcillo.
Iodide of Lead, from Atacama.
Troostite, a large Crystal, from New Jersey.
Phenakite, from Siberia.
Gadolinites, from Ytterby.
Crystals of light brown Tourmaline, from Carinthia.
Rubellite, from Mursinsk.
Lapis Lazuli, crystallised, from Lake Baikal.
Uwarowite, from Bissersk, Perm.
Alexandrite, from near Ekaterinburg.
Brochantite, from Nijni-Tagilsk.
Zircon, (Hyacinth).
Yellow Tourmaline, from Amity, New York.
Reddish brown Tourmaline, from Rossie, New York.
Edingtonite, from Kilpatrick, and specimens of Lanarkite, Leadhillite, and Matlockite.

Nevil Story-Maskelyne.

Department of Botany.

The principal business of the department during the year 1864 has consisted—

In the naming, arranging, and laying into the General Herbarium of a large Collection of Plants of New Holland, formed by Dr. Ferdinand Müller; of a Collection of Plants of New Caledonia, formed by Mr. M'Gillivray; of extensive Collections of West African Plants, formed by Perrottet, Le Prieur, Heudelot, and others; of Plants of Madagascar, collected by Forbes, Hilsenberg, and Boivin; of further portions of the American Herbarium of the late Professor Nuttall, and of the Philippine Collection of Mr. Cuming; of numerous specimens of Leguminosæ and Piperaceæ, from various quarters; of Ceylon Ferns, from Mr. Thwaites, Bornean Ferns, from Mr. Wallace, and Cuban Ferns, from Mr. Charles Wright; of a continuation of M. Billot's "Flora Galliæ et Germaniæ exsiccata;" of M. Rossmässler's Collection of Spanish Plants; of the Oaks of M. Kotschy's Eastern Collection; of Anderson's Scandinavian Willows, Schultz's Hieracia and Wirtgen's Menthæ:

In the re-arrangement of the Families of Palmæ, Balanophoreæ, Menispermeæ, Araliaceæ, Laurineæ, Begoniaceæ, Aristolochieæ, and of the Ferns with naked sori, with numerous additions to each, and also of a portion of the Collections in the large outer room:

In the examination and partial arrangement of the extensive Collections of European Plants lately received from Messrs. Bourgeau, Reichenbach, and Rabenhorst, of M. Forcade's Plants of the Pyrenees, of Zollinger's Plants of Java, and of Ralph's Plants of New Zealand:

In the selection of an extensive set of Plants of Panama from the Collections of Mr. Sutton Hayes, and of Californian Plants from the Herbarium of Mr. Gruber:

In the re-arrangement of the British Fungi, with large additions, and in adding to the British Herbarium Mr. Woods's Collection of Roses, an extensive series of Hieracia, and numerous other critical plants from various localities, a large number of Cryptogamous Plants from the Collections of Forster, Borrer, and Carrington, and of Phænogamous Plants, presented by the Rev. W. W. Newbould:

And in the continued examination of the volumes of the Sloanean Herbarium.

The principal additions which have been made to the department during the same period consist of—

Upwards of 2,000 specimens of Mosses, from various localities, chiefly British, forming the Herbarium of Mr. A. O. Black.

450 species of British Fungi, from the Collection of Mr. Cooke.

216 species of British and Foreign Fungi, presented by C. E. Broome, Esq.

17 species of Plants from Jersey, presented by W. Griffiths, Esq.

3,000 species, forming 64 livraisons of Desmazière's "Plantes Cryptogames de France."

100 species from the French Maritime Alps, collected by M. E. Bourgeau.

672 species of Plants of the Pyrenees, collected by M. Forcade.

303 species of Plants of Spain, collected by M. E. Bourgeau.

79 species of Plants of Spain and Algeria, collected by M. E. Bourgeau.

665 specimens of Lichens, collected in the neighbourhood of Duomo d'Ossola, presented by Professor Gagliardi.

500 species of Plants, forming livraisons 12–22 of the "Erbario Crittogamico Italiano."

100 species of Plants, forming two fasciculi of Van Heurck's Plants of Belgium.

200 species of Plants of the Tyrol.

178 species of Plants of various parts of Europe, collected by M. E. Bourgeau.

20 species of Hepaticæ, forming parts 29, 30 of Rabenhorst's "Hepaticæ Europeæ."

50 species of Characeæ, forming parts 1, 2 of Rabenhorst's "Characeæ Europeæ."

70 species of Algæ, forming parts 159–165 of Rabenhorst's "Algæ Europeæ."

75 species of Lichens, forming parts 24–26 of Rabenhorst's "Lichenes Europei."

550 species of Plants of Palestine, collected by Mr. Lowne.

129 species of Plants of Syria and Armenia, from M. E. Bourgeau.

232 species of Plants of Syria and Cyprus, collected by M. Kotschy.

700 species of Plants of the Rocky Mountains of North America, collected by Messrs. Hall, Harbour, and Parry.

A set of the Mosses of Columbia, collected by Mr. D. Douglas.

81 species of Plants of California, collected by Mr. Gruber.

1,102 species of Plants of Panama, collected by Mr. Sutton Hayes.

330 species of Ferns and Mosses of Cuba, collected by Mr. Charles Wright.

209 species of Lichens from Cuba, collected by Mr. Charles Wright.

40 species of Australian Algæ.

34 Microscopic Slides of Diatomaceæ, eight of which were presented by J. Staunton, Esq.

87 sets of Palm Fruits and Seeds, from various quarters.

A copy of Griffith's Palms of British India, presented by C. W. Downing, Esq.

John J. Bennett.

Department of Prints and Drawings.

The following progress has been made in the Department during the year 1864:—

An additional volume of the woodcuts of Albert Durer has been arranged, and the references to Bartsch and Heller attached to each.

Twenty woodcuts by Lucas Cranach, and thirty-six by Hans Burgmair, have been inserted in the volumes containing the works of those Masters, and the references to Bartsch attached to each.

The works of the Masters using the monograms and have been arranged.

Volumes V. and VI. of the works of Callot have been arranged, and the reference to Meaum's Catalogue attached to each print.

The Collection of the works of D. Chodowiecki has been arranged in six volumes, and the reference to Engelmann's Catalogue attached to each print.

The etchings of Carl Vittinghoff have been arranged in two volumes.

The whole of the works of Cornelius Visscher have been entirely re-arranged in six volumes, agreeable to the order followed in Smith's recently printed catalogue of the artist's works, and the reference to that work has been attached to each print.

One hundred and twenty-eight drawings have been mounted in a manner to secure the surface from injury by friction.

Four thousand one hundred and forty-four articles have been inserted in the register of purchases and presentations, to the whole of which the register mark has been affixed, which has also been placed on three thousand three hundred and ninety-one, forming illustrations to books, &c.

Three thousand seven hundred and four slips have been written for the general catalogue of prints in the Collection.

The following are some of the more important acquisitions made during the past year:—

Italian School:—

Drawings.—By Andrea del Sarto, P. C. Landriani, G. D. Campiglia, and Donato Creti.

COPY "of REPORT presented to the Lords of the Treasury in June 1860, by a COMMITTEE appointed to consider the various Questions connected with the Employment of SUPPLEMENTAL and TEMPORARY CLERKS in the CIVIL SERVICE."

Treasury Chambers, 2 May 1865. F. PEEL.

REPORT TO THE TREASURY.

My Lords, 1 June 1860.

IN obedience to the directions contained in your Lordships' Minute of the 9th February, we have met together for the purpose of considering the various questions connected with the employment of Supplemental and Temporary Clerks in the Civil Service.

As the Minute in question did not direct us to put ourselves in communication with the several public departments with a view to ascertain the precise nature and extent of the supplemental establishment in each case, and as it appeared to us that we might obtain sufficient information for the purposes of a first Report by reference to the Estimates, and to various other documents within our reach, we have for the present limited ourselves to a general inquiry, the results of which we have now to lay before your Lordships in the paper annexed hereto.

Notes as to the employment of officers, &c.

From this statement your Lordships will perceive that while the number of supplemental clerks at present employed in the Civil Service is not less than 362, and their cost not less than 46,684 l. a year, their employment does not obviate the necessity of having recourse to the services of almost an equal number of temporary or extra clerks in addition to them. The table which we have prepared, and which will be found in the Appendix, shows a body of at least 332 temporary and extra clerks,* costing 37,870 l.; and there is no doubt that this estimate is considerably within the mark, as it is very difficult, without calling for precise and minute returns, to get at the whole number of extra clerks employed in each office. It may be observed that in the Army Estimates for 1860–1 no less a sum than 41,005 l. is asked for temporary and extra clerks in Great Britain and Ireland, and that a sum of 24,401 l. is asked for the same purpose in the Navy Estimates, making a total of 65,406 l. for these two estimates alone.

It appears, then, that the supplemental establishments of the various offices are at present far from being sufficiently strong to discharge the whole of the duties which have to be performed, and that recourse is had to a very large amount of temporary assistance. This system has some conveniences, but it has also some disadvantages. The extra clerks can be taken on as they are wanted, and dispensed with at the shortest notice. They have no claim to superannuation, and no right to promotion. There is, however, a less security for the character and efficiency of the men thus obtained than there is for that of established clerks. If the men are engaged, as is frequently the case, through the intervention of a law stationer, a large proportion of the sums paid to them (generally about one-third) is taken by the stationer as his profit. If they are engaged directly by the heads of departments, and are not called upon to pass the examination of the Civil Service Commissioners, a door is opened for the appointment, through favour, of men who have failed in other employments, and who fall back upon the Civil Service as a last resource. It is certain that in in both these cases the Government must suffer,—in the former case by paying a larger price for the services of the clerk than he would himself accept for them; and in the latter case, by obtaining inferior men. There is, however, a third mode of employing extra clerks. It is the system adopted at the War Office, where the extra clerks are, in the first instance, appointed by the Secretary of State, and retained for one month on probation, after which time they are required to pass the examination of the Civil Service Commissioners. All vacancies occurring upon the establishment are filled up by means of competitive examinations, which are open to all extra clerks who are recommended by their superiors as meritorious servants, and whose ages do not exceed the limit prescribed for the established clerks. The number of extra clerks at the War Office being very large in proportion to the size of the establishment, no difficulty is found in obtaining a sufficient number of candidates to ensure a fair competition for the appointments.

Whatever may be the merits of such a system when applied to offices in which the number of extra clerks is very large in proportion to that of the established clerks, in consequence of the work being liable to large fluctuations, we doubt whether it would be equally applicable to offices where this is not the case. In such Departments as the Treasury, or the Home, Foreign, and Colonial Offices, the maintenance of a large body of extra clerks would soon lead to abuses. Men who looked to rise to the highest posts would have to enter the service as extra clerks, and those of them who failed to gain situations on the establishment would become discontented with their position, and would be continually urging the claims of the supplementary clerks to further advantages.

From the various statements which have been laid before us, and of which the general results will be found in the Appendix, we have come to the conclusion that the maintenance of two distinct orders of clerks in the same office must, in the great majority of cases, lead to difficulties and embarrassments which cannot easily or permanently be surmounted. Every improvement in the qualifications of the supplementary clerks tends to render the distinction between them and the established clerks more odious and untenable, so long as all are equally borne on the books of the same Department; and every privilege which is conceded to the supplementary clerks in one office leads to demands for corresponding privileges in other offices, and increases the temptation to make unsuitable appointments from too high a class.

In confirmation of this view we need only call your Lordships' attention to the fact, mentioned in the Appendix, that the supplementary establishments, recommended by the Committees of Inquiry into various Public Offices, and sanctioned by your Lordships in 1854, have, in almost every instance, already changed their character; and that, instead of one uniform body of public servants, receiving salaries commencing at 80*l.* a year, and advancing by an annual increment of 5*l.* to 180*l.*, with a further increase in cases of particular merit, to 250*l.*, we have now a number of establishments attached to different offices, each of which differs from all the rest, both in respect of the rate of pay and in the classification and prospects of the clerks. In some of these the rate of pay rises to 300*l.*, and in the Treasury apparently to 500*l.* a year; and in other cases the supplementary classes are becoming junior established classes, from which promotion to the higher ranks of the office may be expected.

Observing then, as we do, that the system of attaching supplementary clerks to the establishment of each office does not obviate the necessity of employing a considerable number of law stationers' clerks, and other temporary assistants, and that it has an obvious tendency to produce confusion and dissatisfaction within the offices to which it is applied, we are led to consider whether the advantages which it was expected to produce may not be better attained in another manner.

In the Report of the Committee of Inquiry into the Establishment of the Board of Trade in 1853 a suggestion was thrown out that arrangements might be made for the establishment of a copying office for the assistance of the Government departments in the neighbourhood of Whitehall. We are of opinion that a step of this nature might be taken with considerable advantage. It may be matter for consideration whether a central copying office should take in work from different departments and return it completed; but we apprehend that there could be no difficulty in forming a Government corps of writers who might undertake at the departments themselves the work now executed by by the law stationers' clerks, receiving remuneration either by the piece or by the day as circumstances might render desirable. The mere saving of the middleman's profit upon the number of law stationers' clerks now employed in the public offices would probably cover the expense of the staff required for the management of such an office as we contemplate; and we think that many collateral advantages would be derived from its establishment.

We propose, therefore, that the distinction between established and supplementary clerks in the several departments be abandoned; that no more appointments be made to the supplementary classes; and that they be allowed gradually to die out, unless it be thought desirable and found possible to transfer any portion of the men at once to the department of which we are about to speak.

We further propose that a central copying office be established, under the control of a superintending officer, to which the several public departments may make application from time to time for as many writers as may be required.

We propose that this establishment comprise two classes, the lower consisting of youths employed at weekly wages, and on a temporary footing, with no claim to superannuation; and the higher of men employed in an established capacity, at moderate rates of annual salary, and with the same right to superannuation as other Government officers. We think that the lower class should be filled by lads entering at from 15 to 17 years of age, who might, we think, be appointed by a system of open competition; and that the best of these should be selected from time to time to fill the vacancies occurring in the upper class. We recommend the experiment of making the lower class a purely temporary one, and of allowing no member of it to continue in the service beyond a certain number of years, or beyond a certain age, if he does not obtain an appointment to the upper class within that time.

We propose that the weekly payment in the lowest class be 15 s. for the first year, 17 s. for the second, 18 s. for the third, 19 s. for the fourth, and 1 l. for the fifth year. A small bonus of 5 l. for each year of good service might be given at the end of the term of engagement, which might absolutely terminate either at the expiration of five years' service, or on the clerk's attaining the age of 20 or 21.

The age of admission into the upper class should be from 18 to 21 or 22. Preference should be given to deserving lads in the lower class; but should none of them be fit for the upper class, the vacancies in the latter should, we think, be filled by open competition. The salary should commence at 100 l., and should rise by progressive annual increase to 300 l. It might be well to divide this upper class into two, and to assign to the lower division sa aries rising from 100 l. by 5 l. to 200 l., and to the higher division salaries rising from 200 l. by 10 l. to 300 l. Promotion from the lower to the higher division should be in all cases by merit. It has been our object in fixing these rates of remuneration, and particularly in fixing the maximum, to create a class of offices which shall be prizes for the class of men best qualified to fill them, but shall offer little attraction to those whose attainments or connexions must either unfit them for such a position, or indispose them to remain in it.

The Controller should make provision in the Copying Office Estimate for as many clerks as the several departments are likely to require; and this Estimate, when approved by the Treasury, should be laid before Parliament with the other estimates in Class II. He should then be responsible for providing a sufficient number of clerks for the demands of the public service, and for apportioning them to the various departments. The copying clerks to be sent to each department should be selected by the Controller of the Copying Office; but when once sent to any department they must be placed entirely under the direction of the head of that department. A system of weekly or monthly reports of the conduct of each clerk might be organised, which would supply a record of his conduct and fitness for ultimate promotion. Should the head of the department to which a copying clerk has been sent be dissatisfied with him, he should have the power of sending him back, and requesting that another person may be sent in his place.

It must be obvious that there are many other details which would require careful regulation in the event of the adoption of such a system as we have sketched out; but we abstain from entering upon them until your Lordships have decided whether the plan is one that ought to be entertained.

We will only add, therefore, that we are of opinion that should such a copying office be contemplated, it would, on many accounts, be convenient to attach it to the office of the Civil Service Commissioners. Their acquaintance with the young men who offer themselves as candidates for Civil Service appointments, the facilities which they have for conducting examinations, keeping registers, and managing the machinery which would be required for working the plan proposed, point them out as the best persons for undertaking its superintendence. One or more officers would of course be required for the special conduct of the business; and we would propose that these should be attached to the Commissioners' establishment.

It is to be expected that this plan, if successfully carried into operation, will not only relieve the Government of a great deal of embarrassment with regard to the position of the supplementary clerks, but will ultimately render the establishments of the several public offices more efficient for their purpose at a much less cost than the present.

We have not attempted to form an accurate estimate of the immediate financial results of the plan we propose, but some idea of them may be formed from the following rough calculation. It appears that the present ordinary number of supplemental and temporary clerks in the service is about 700, costing about 82,000 l. a year. If these were replaced by a body of 100 clerks of the 1st class (200 l. to 300 l.), 250 clerks of the second class (100 l. to 200 l.), and 350 lads (15 s. to 20 s. a week), the mean expense would be as follows :—

100	first class clerks - - - - -	£.25,000
250	second class clerks - - - - -	37,500
350	lads - - - - - - -	15,750

We do not present this as an estimate, nor do we propose to constitute the Copying Office on this precise footing, as regards the proportion which the different classes should bear one to the other. We are of opinion that this proportion must be determined with reference to the kind of work which it may be found possible to assign to this class of civil servants. If their duties are to be limited to mere copying and other strictly mechanical work, a much smaller number may be found sufficient for the highest class, if even such a class should be found necessary at all; but as we find that the supplemental clerks in various offices are now employed upon work of a higher kind than that of mere copying, and as we believe that a well-organised staff of copyists might be largely turned to account in the ultimate reduction of the more expensive portions of the several establishments, we have made our calculations according to a scheme which would probably afford the means of effecting such a reduction. The extent to which the substitution of these copyists for other officers may be carried must be a matter for the discretion of the Treasury. We apprehend that your Lordships would immediately upon the constitution of the new department issue directions that no more temporary or extra clerks were to be employed in any Government office except such as were obtained through the Copying Office; and that further instructions would be given to the effect that no vacancy in any junior appointment of any establishment was to be filled up without a special reference to the Treasury, which would thus have the power of deciding in each case whether the establishment should be kept up to its present strength, or should draw more largely upon the Copying Office for assistance.

* In the year 1859-60 about 188 temporary clerks were employed in all the branches of the department at a gross cost of 22,856 l. 10 s.

In addition to the amounts above stated, various sums amounting altogether to 45,925 l., are taken by the Poor Law Board (Ireland), National Education Office (Ireland), and Customs Departments, to meet, among other things, the expense of extra clerical assistance; but it is impossible to ascertain how much of the amount is applied to this purpose. No estimate of the cost of Law Stationers' Clerks paid out of the amount provided for contingencies is included under any of these heads.

NOTES TO LIST.

Copyhold, Inclosure, and Tithe Commission.

There seems to be no supplementary establishment in this department, though from the sums taken annually for "services beyond those of the regular establishment for copying," it is probable that some portion of the work is such as might be committed to supplementary clerks. The present arrangement, viz., the employment of copying clerks, paid "either by the piece or by the time they are kept at work," is the plan recommended in the Report of the Committee of Inquiry; the reason assigned for the recommendation being "the extent to which the amount of work to be performed fluctuates, and the necessity of keeping it from falling even into temporary arrear." It is believed, however, that during the last few years there has been a very large increase in the work performed by the department; so much so, indeed, that although when the Committee reported, the mechanical work of the office fluctuated too much to justify its being met, even in part, by the employment of permanent extra clerks, it must probably now present a constant minimum which might properly be so provided for. Page 254.

Customs.

The supernumerary clerks employed in the Receiver-General's office (five, at a cost of 400 l. per annum) are, it is believed, not a subordinate class, but really junior clerks appointed in anticipation of vacancies, and are put on the establishment when vacancies occur.†

We have no information as to whether the supernumerary clerks in the Comptroller-General's office (three, at a cost of 240 l. per annum) are in the same position.

Persons are employed in the Customs Department called variously "Extra Clerks," "Treasury Extra Clerks," and "Assistant Clerks." The "Customs Estimate" does not mention the number of these, taking credit, on account of the chief office, for—

"Pay to Extra Clerks, including increase of establishment, 8,000 l."

The increase in the Estimate for the establishment between 1857 and 1858 was 3,000 l., and assuming that the same sum was allowed in the Estimate for 1858–9, for increase in that year, we should have 5,000 l. for "Extra Clerks, &c." This sum would provide more than 60 Extra Clerks (at 78 l. a year).

Assuming that Extra Clerks are employed in the ports of London and at Liverpool, in the same proportion to the cost of the establishment as at the chief office, we should have—

Port of London	37
Port of Liverpool	14

which, including the estimated number of those at the chief office, would give a total of 111. No estimate can be made of the number of Extra Clerks at the outports. In 1848 the total number of Extra Clerks employed in the Customs was 128.‡

Inland

* In addition to this amount, the sum of 4,230 l. is spent by different departments on temporary assistance, but it cannot be ascertained among how many persons the sum is distributed.

Inland Revenue.

Supernumerary Surveyors of Taxes.

There are 70 of these officers for England, and 11 for Scotland. The promotion is regular to Surveyorships. Their position is therefore analogous to that of junior clerks in the head office.

Estimates.

Hop Officers.

£. 4,000 is taken for the remuneration of these officers. This sort of assistance can hardly in fairness be considered "supplementary to the ordinary establishment." They are engaged to meet an emergency, and have no share in the regular business of the department.

Post Office.

There are 26 "Supplementary" clerks at Dublin, and 22 at Edinburgh, but the following facts show them to be in reality third-class or junior clerks:—

Estimates.

(3.) No other clerks are certificated at those places by the Civil Service Commissioners, whence it is inferred that they are in the regular line of promotion to the higher classes.

Certain persons are employed in the Post Office under the designation of "Assistants to Postmasters," the number of whom may be estimated as follows:—

England - - - - - - - - - - - -	393
Ireland - - - - - - - - - - - -	81
Scotland - - - - - - - - - - - -	60

These persons (Assistants to Postmasters) are recognized by the Post Office as servants of the Department. They are estimated roughly from the payments (any charge under 60 l. being taken as for one assistant, and anything over 60 l. as for two).

Registry of Seamen.

Up to 1857, extra clerks were employed in this office, but in that year † the department was re-organised, and 12 of the extra clerks previously employed were put upon the establishment, which now consists of three classes, with salaries ranging as follows:—

In the Estimates (1857–58) no mention is made of extra clerks, but a fourth class is named (numbering 14), which, on the re-organization of the department, was absorbed in the third class. From a comparison of the numbers, the members of the fourth class seem to be the same persons spoken of in the correspondence as extra clerks.

War Office.

(Commissariat Department.)

A class of "Assistant Clerks" is employed in the above-named department, whose duties are usually analogous to those of "Temporary Clerks"† in the War Office. The department having been re-organized within the last year and a half, it is impossible to arrive at the numbers.

Ordnance Survey.

Eight hundred and ninety-two clerks were employed in 1856,‡ but it is impossible to ascertain how many of these (if any) were in the position of supplementary clerks.

Registry of Deeds (Dublin).

Transcribers.

These seem to be in fact only a fourth class of clerks. The words used in the Treasury Minute § imply that vacancies in the third class of clerks are to be always filled by promotions

* Report of the Civil Service Superannuation Commission, Appendix, p. 60.

motions from the class of transcribers, provided competent persons can be found in that class.

But up to July 1858, when the establishment was placed upon its present footing, the work of the department was performed by three clerks only (besides the staff officers), assisted by 52 copyists. It is probable, therefore, that the great majority of the 32 clerks now on the establishment are employed on such work as is ordinarily performed by supplementary clerks.

Nineteen * Transcribers:—20 s. per week + 1 s. to 30 s. per week.

* Certificates have been granted for one clerk and 19 transcribers, whence (as vacancies for clerks are to be filled by the promotion of transcribers) it is inferred that there are no transcribers besides these 19. This view is confirmed by Thom's Almanack.

Note.—In the Sheriff Courts of Scotland both civil and criminal business is executed, and the salaries to the Sheriffs and Sheriff Clerks are applicable to both descriptions of business without distinction. The salaries of the Procurators Fiscal are for criminal business only. The offices of the nine Sheriff Clerks whose salaries are chargeable on the Consolidated Fund were regulated by the Lords of the Treasury under the Act 1 & 2 Vict. c. 119, before the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 94, came into operation. The offices of the thirty-three paid out of Votes of Parliament were regulated after that statute passed. The offices of the remaining four will be regulated as they fall in. Thirty-three of the Procurators Fiscal were placed upon fixed salaries on the regulation of their offices by the Treasury, and those of the remaining twenty will also be regulated as they severally come within the terms of the Treasury Minute for that purpose.

CUSTOMS OUT-DOOR OFFICERS.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 13 March 1865;—for,

COPIES "of the MEMORIALS and other DOCUMENTS from the OUT-DOOR OFFICERS of CUSTOMS of the principal Ports, complaining of the Insufficiency of their Pay:"

"And, of the TREASURY MINUTE of the 25th day of April 1864 on the subject."

Treasury Chambers, 20 March 1865.

F. PEEL.

MINUTE of BOARD of CUSTOMS, dated 18 July 1863.

THE Board have received and attentively considered the applications from the out-door officers, both in London and at the out-ports, for an improvement in their pay and prospects of promotion.

The Board are, and have at all times been, willing to entertain and give their best consideration to the appeals of all officers of the department who have any just reason to consider themselves aggrieved, and have never been backward in representing to the Treasury any real cause of complaint existing among them, with a view of obtaining relief from their Lordships.

The Board, however, in answering the various memorials forwarded to them by the out-door officers, must in the first place refer them to the measures which have, of late years, been taken by the Board to improve their condition and to add to their comfort.

The officers employed on waterguard duties at the out-ports have, in all cases where practicable, been relieved from boarding duty, and employed instead on the less arduous duty of patrol on shore; while in London, officers coming from Gravesend in charge of ships, or from other stations in lighters (to the docks), have been relieved as soon as they reached the docks, and saved from much work that was both tedious and severe.

Both these measures have enabled a large proportion of the officers to pass their nights at home, and have tended to shorten their periods of continuous duty.

The Board think it right to remind the out-door officers generally, that they accepted their situations as day-pay servants of the Crown, with the knowledge that their income would depend on the extent of employment which the business of their respective ports might afford.

In contrasting, therefore, their former and present position, as regards the amount of their pay, the officers ought to remember that their loss of pay arising from want of employment, sickness, or leave of absence, has of late years been greatly lessened by the conversion of at least two-thirds of their day-pay into a proportionate increase of salary, whereby their actual loss on those occasions is reduced to one-third of its former amount, and bears a far smaller proportion than formerly to their whole daily earnings.

In addition also to this improvement in their position, the discontinuance by Parliament of the abatements formerly made from their salaries on account of superannuation (which abatements all who entered the service subsequent to the year 1829 were fully aware would be made) cannot be looked upon in any other light than as a positive increase of their emoluments to the extent of 2½ per cent., or an average of about 2 l. to each person.

The Board have made inquiry into the rate of pay allowed to subordinate officers in other branches of the public service, also to persons employed on analogous duties by the Dock Companies, and in other large mercantile establishments, and the Board are satisfied that the pay received by the out-door officers under their control affords a sufficient remuneration for the work performed, and is equal to, and in many cases greater, than that paid for corresponding work in other public and mercantile establishments.

In comparing the rate of pay of the out-door officers with that received by men of the same rank of life who are employed in trade or as artizans, it must not be lost sight of that these men have to provide against sickness and for their maintenance in old age ; whilst the out-door officer, when sick, receives the greater part of his pay, and in London has the advantage of skilful medical attendance gratis ; and when unfit through age and infirmity for further duty, he receives, if well conducted, a superannuation allowance in proportion to his length of service—an advantage which he would be unable to obtain by insurance or otherwise, without sacrificing a large portion of his income.

Upon these grounds the Board do not feel justified in recommending any alteration in the amount or mode of payment to the out-door officers.

As regards the allegation of the memorialists, that their prospects of advancement have been injured, they must be aware that the loss of prospective advantages which may have been the result of reduction of establishment, rendered necessary by decrease of business or consolidation of office, affords no ground for compensation.

The legislative alterations in the tariff in 1860, which it became the duty of the Board to carry out, rendered large reductions and changes of the establishments necessary, but no officer under the revision of the establishment was subjected to any loss of present salary, and of late years greatly improved prospects of advancement to higher positions have been opened to the class of out-door officers, viz :—

In London.

One-third of the vacancies of examining officers are filled by selection of out-door officers ;

One-third by competition among out-door officers ;

Two-fifths of the vacancies of gauger by competition.

At Liverpool.

Two-thirds of the vacancies of examining officer are filled by selection of, or competition amongst the out-door officers, as in London.

At the other Out-Ports.

All vacancies of principal coast officer and assistant examining officer are filled by selection of out-door officers ;

One-third of vacancies of examining officer are filled by selection of assistant examining officers, thus creating vacancies which are again filled by out-door officers ; and

One-third of vacancies of examining officer are open to competition of out-door officers.

Whereas, prior to 1847, out-door officers were not declared to be eligible for the office of principal coast officer, and were only allowed to succeed to the rank of landing waiter as lately as the year 1853.

The Board therefore cannot but consider that these various improvements in the prospects of promotion of the out-door officers generally, have fully compensated for any deterioration in the present position of some of them, which may have been entailed by the necessary alterations of 1860, especially as no officer suffered any actual loss of salary thereby ; and they think that a consideration of these various measures that have been adopted for their benefit should tend to allay the feeling of dissatisfaction now too plainly visible among them, a feeling which, it must be evident to all, cannot but seriously interfere with the proper discipline and well-being of the Department.

And copies of this minute are to be delivered to the Assistant Secretary, the Surveyors Surveyors General, the Inspector General, and the Controller of the Out-door Department, the latter officer communicating the Board's decision on this subject to the officers under his control; copies are also to be transmitted to the Collectors at those out-ports from which applications from the out-door officers have been received.

LONDON.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs of the Port of London.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs of the Port of London,

Sheweth,

THAT your petitioners having memorialized the Honourable Board of Customs to abolish the system of day-pay, to be substituted by salary with an annual increase, thereby improving the position and prospects of your petitioners, also setting forth the losses they have sustained by the late amalgamation; but, having failed to obtain any redress of their grievances, and still believing in the justice and reasonableness of their claims, with the permission of the Honourable Board, they have presumed to submit them for your Lordship's consideration with the view of obtaining such amelioration in the mode of payment and of promotion.

Your petitioners would state that their remuneration is insufficient to maintain that respectability and independence demanded of them in the performance of their duties, and which is inadequate to meet the most humble expenditure necessary for the comfort of their families.

That such remuneration is less than that of the ordinary mechanic or artizan, who receives an average pay of about 1 l. 13 s. per week, that of the out-door officers at this port 1 l. 9 s. per week; and although it may be urged that the prospect of superannuation is an equivalent for the extra pay of the mechanic, the immediate benefit of the higher amount is of the greatest importance when families are dependent thereon, your petitioners having to forego that benefit when most needed, and are unable to give those depending on them such an education as was generally bestowed on themselves, while few live to enjoy a retiring allowance, the average for the last two years being scarcely 1 per cent. on the whole Department.

That mechanics or artizans are at liberty to engage in any avocation, by which many of them attain to affluence, and have often the privilege of placing members of their families to the business at which they are employed, thus, without expense, giving them a start in life which will maintain them in a position of respectability.

Your petitioners would mention the day-pay system as alike expensive, prejudicial to their interests, and a degrading distinction between officers performing analogous duties, involving the loss of time and expense of recording, computing, controlling, and the paying for sundry official forms, so that its abolition, while benefiting the out-door officers, would create, at most, a trifling expense to the Crown.

Moreover, while the higher-paid lose no salary by sickness or leave of absence, your petitioners submit that it is unjust to subject the lowest paid officers to the loss of 1 s. per day during sickness, when extra expenses are necessarily incurred, and when some are placed in pecuniary difficulties, strictly forbidden by the rules of the service, but under such circumstances unavoidable, and from which it would not unfrequently be beyond their power to extricate themselves without friendly assistance.

Also when on leave of absence, granted for health and recreation to others in the service with full pay, but denied the out-door officers, unless forfeiting about one-fourth of their pay, although their hours of duty are longer, duties generally more arduous, and their leave only half of that allowed to those who enjoy the boon without loss.

Your petitioners would submit to your Lordships that the late amalgamation of lockers, weighers, and tide-waiters, has rendered promotion hopeless, the classes being so large, and the officers chiefly young men, that the juniors can never expect to reach the first class.

The classes in the Land Department of superintendent of lockers, lockers, and weighers having been abolished, maximum salary of first-mentioned grade 130 l. per annum, to which all of ordinary ability could attain; and the lockers and weighers, consolidated with the water-guard, the numbers of each class and salaries from first to fifth being respectively 50; 85 l. 100; 75 l. 150; 65 l. 240; 60 l. 280; 55 l., and 1 s. per day when on duty; this portion of your petitioners cannot but feel that the contract made on entering the service has been broken, having accepted their appointments with the understanding of becoming in a limited period salaried officers, some having attained to that position in seven years; but by the changes of 1860 even those who had all salary were reduced to day-pay, and the weighers who, but for those changes, would have received 80 l. salary in about eight years, must look forward, at the present rate of promotion, to 20 or 25 years' service before receiving 65 l. and 1 s. per day, promotion being therefore lost to them to the value of at least 150 l. per cent.

The allowance for extra attendance also constituting a considerable item of their income, creating no expense to the Crown, and never complained of by the merchants, has been reduced one-third, thus compelling many of them to attend before and after the legal hours for a lower rate of pay than they receive from the Crown.

That portion of your petitioners formerly known as tidewaiters, while gratefully acknowledging the kind intentions of the Honourable Board to improve their condition, beg respectfully to state that in no case is their circumstances so good as heretofore.

The boarding duty at Gravesend has been rendered more severe in consequence of officers being cleared from vessels on their arrival at the docks in London, which gives no relief from duty, but leaves them available for boarding others immediately on returning to Gravesend, where constant and regular attendance must be given day and night; also frequently they are exposed to the inclemency of the weather for several hours in an open boat before being again boarded, when extra watchfulness is required on their part for the protection of the revenue.

The barge duty they may volunteer to perform, but which is equally severe and harrassing, the attendance extending to all hours, and when sent in charge are in many instances placed in an open craft, which affords no shelter.

Your petitioners further state to your Lordships that the patrol system is not less arduous, having to perform night and Sunday duty.

That while attending to the discharge of ships in the docks they have now frequently to perform duty from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., which necessitates their being from their homes for a period of 14 hours, without extra remuneration or any relaxation whatever, and, considering the length of time so engaged, many are paid no better than dock labourers working the same time, and who receive 4 d. per hour.

To such a state has the late changes brought this portion of your petitioners, whose duties are now more severe, hours more extended, and who have lately been obliged to provide a more expensive uniform.

Previous to the amalgamation, tide-waiters, while attending to the landing of goods liable to duty before eight a.m. and after four p.m., received 6 d. per hour, the reason assigned for the smallness of the amount being that they had to remain on board ship, and could devote their time to no other purpose; also that provisions were found them, which were estimated as equal in value to 20 l. per annum.

Those reasons, however, no longer exist; not being stationed on board ship, and having all to provide out of their own limited means, which, to 200 of them, is 10 l. per annum less than they would be receiving had there been no change in the classification.

The increased severity of duty, loss of provisions on board ship, and withdrawal of remuneration for overtime, is more irksome, since no assurance, and little little hope, is held out that the performance of such, and the losses lately sustained, will lead to other duty more profitable and less severe.

Promotion in the Tide Department formerly depended on seniority, good conduct, and sufficient ability to perform the duties of Tide Surveyor and Inspector of the River, which being the case, as the seniors were promoted to another grade, the juniors advanced in their respective classes, in itself promotion; but under the present system, juniors being placed over seniors, the latter are prevented passing to the higher classes, which is equal to punishment inflicted for dereliction of duty.

Your petitioners would respectfully state to your Lordships, that from late changes in the service, and the great increase of business in this port, their duties are altogether of a higher and more responsible nature, besides sometimes 100 and upwards being employed in the capacities of examining offices and timber measurer, levying probably three-fourths of the duties of dry goods, namely, tea, coffee, sugar, &c., and from 15 to 20 of their number being engaged in gauging wines and spirits, with but faint hope of attaining to the position in which they are acting.

That the standard of remuneration allowed them is greatly inferior to that of clerks in mercantile establishments and in the Docks, the merchants rewarding the faithful servant with rapid promotion, and the Dock Companies giving, in addition to a fair remuneration, good bonuses as an encouragement for activity and good conduct, besides admitting those depending on their employés into their service.

Your petitioners deplore the system of promotion by competition, which engenders bad feeling among many, and dissatisfaction throughout the body, as those who have served the Crown faithfully for 20 years and upwards, many of whom have long performed superior duties to the satisfaction and approval of their superior officers, are superseded, while men of much less service, and who have seldom, if ever, performed such duty, receive the higher appointments.

From such considerations they view this so-called boon as a calamity, which, while the system continues, must perpetuate the discontent that now prevails.

They would humbly submit that the more just practice be adopted of promotion by seniority, proficiency, and good conduct, and that every officer may have the opportunity of proving his capacity to perform superior duty, and having done so to the satisfaction of his superiors, be promoted as a reward for long and faithful services.

Promotion to examining officer and gauger being uncertain to the few and impossible to the out-door officers generally, falls far short of what can be deemed sufficient for their requirements, whose present remuneration is inconsistent with what is demanded of them by the rules of the service, the advance in price of late years on the necessaries of life, from 20 to 30 per cent., aggravated by the late changes, having rendered their case one of unceasing embarrassment and hardship.

And as society of late years has improved to a greater or less extent, the out-door officers, instead of advancing with those around them, have retrograded, every change made in their department having left their position in a pecuniary sense worse than before, while their responsibilities have increased in a corresponding degree.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Lordships will be pleased to abolish the day-pay system, and as more equitable than the present demoralizing one of promotion, which depends on the degradations, dismissals, and deaths of their brother officers, to grant a remunerative scale of salary according to length of service, with an annual increase.

And your Petitioners will ever pray,

LIVERPOOL.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Liverpool.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The Petition of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Liverpool,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT by the consent of the Honourable the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs, we, the out-door officers stationed at this port, beg leave most respectfully to call your Lordships' attention to our present disheartening condition and prospects, believing and trusting that your favourable consideration of our position and blighted expectations, will induce you to have them placed on a more equitable footing than they are at the present period, as compared with other departments of the public service.

That the necessity of our present appeal is principally owing to the insufficiency of our incomes to enable us to educate and maintain our families with due decency, to appear with that degree of respectability which the service imperatively demands, and to keep free from debt, the contracting of which, by the rules of the service, entails instant dismissal.

That we, your petitioners, being prevented from entering into or participating in any other business or calling, are entirely dependent on our pay, and we humbly submit that, as your Lordships are aware, during the last 20 years money has depreciated in value at least 30 per cent., owing to the increase in house-rent, and the cost of the prime necessaries of life, in consideration of which the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, and commercial firms generally at this port, have increased the salaries of their servants.

That the alterations in the tariff, and other changes effected from time to time in the regulations of the service, have had a deteriorating effect on your petitioners in a pecuniary sense, inasmuch as those alterations and changes have increased the hours of labour, by granting permission to discharge most cargoes from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., without the additional remuneration of overtime-pay formerly allowed in such cases.

That within the last 15 years the hours of those employed in the bonded warehouses have been increased to the extent of one hour per diem during eight months of the year, and half-an-hour during the remaining four months, and whilst other officers receive overtime pay for such additional hours of attendance, we, your petitioners, receive no extra remuneration whatever. We would further observe that whereas formerly the reward for working overtime, before the hour of eight a.m., and after five p.m., was one shilling per hour, it has by the altered arrangement been reduced to sixpence per hour, whilst the allowance of 2*s.* 6 d. per day, when engaged on superior duty, has been entirely abolished.

The alterations of the water-guard from boarding vessels to that of patrol duty, though done with the view of bettering their condition, has had the effect of increasing their expenditure, as they in most instances received their support on board. A comparison having been drawn between out-door officers and artizans, with regard to the emoluments received, it will be remembered that the artizan is engaged six days in the week, whilst your petitioners perform seven days' labour weekly, are constantly exposed to the inclemency of the weather, and of necessity require expensive and warm clothing, whilst the artizan may supply his clothing at a cheaper rate, and in Liverpool invariably receives a greater amount of compensation for six days' labour than your petitioners do for seven; therefore, your Lordships will please observe that the artizan, in a pecuniary point of view, occupies a more lucrative position, whilst his responsibilities bear no comparison with those of the Customs' officer.

That we, your petitioners, on entering the service, were sanguine that should our conduct prove exemplary we should receive promotion, as prior to the amalgamation of the Land and Waterguard Departments in 1860, being at that period eligible for the rank of patrol inspector, superintendent locker, timber measurer, tide surveyor, and river inspector, at salaries ranging from 100 l. to 350*l.* per 350 l. per annum; and we beg leave to bring before your Lordships' notice the frequent stoppages of promotion in the classes of out-door officers, thus retarding the prospects of many efficient individuals.

For some years past there have been, and at the present time are upwards of 30 out-door officers acting in the superior capacity of patrol inspectors, gaugers, and landing waiters, now termed examining officers, many of whom have received certificates of competency; and we would simply state that we are most willing to perform the duties we are appointed to, but have to regret that the present system neither secures us extra remuneration, nor affords any additional prospects for future promotion to the rank of examining officers, as clerks, boatmen, and junior officers from other outports are appointed in our stead.

That the present mode of remuneration by salary, and day-pay, and promotion by classification is inequitable, and a hardship upon your petitioners, inasmuch as the day-pay is stopped during the annual leave allowed as well as in time of sickness, a period of extra expenditure when additional nourishment is indispensably necessary, whereas, in no other department of the Customs is this the case, the boatmen excepted. With reference to classification by the amalgamation of 1860, nine classes, comprising lockers, tidewaiters, and weighers, and composed of over 500 men, were resolved into five classes, as follows: first class, 45 men at 80 l.; second class, 65 men at 70 l.; third class, 95 men at 65 l.; fourth class, 130 men at 60 l.; fifth class, 165 men at 55 l. per annum, and one shilling per diem when employed, with an increase of 5 l. on emerging from each class. The average time to pass through each class being about 10 years, as vacancies are dependent upon the death, dismissal, or superannuation of a brother officer, it will therefore appear plain to your Lordships how very remote and uncertain is promotion even from class to class.

Since this amalgamation of classes, a comparatively small number of officers are paid at the maximum rate, whilst the great majority are paid at the minimum rate, and the sum of 5 l. has been substituted in lieu of 10 l., as formerly paid, on emerging from the lowest class; this has seriously injured the position of your petitioners, who have in all the foregoing instances suffered great drawbacks and losses, which far outweigh the benefits received from the abolition of the Superannuation Tax, &c. Lockers were reduced from salary, to day-pay and salary; the junior was placed before the senior, thus ignoring length of service, setting aside the prospects of faithful and diligent officers, and thereby causing general disappointment; contrasting, therefore, the number and time to pass through the classes, promotion to the higher grades is rendered hopeless.

That the prayer of your humble petitioners is that your Lordships will be graciously pleased to take our case into your favourable consideration, by granting us such addition to our income as will enable us to live respectably, without pecuniary assistance from friends; and that your Lordships will recognise length of service, conduct and ability, by granting promotion to the rank of examining officer as vacancies may occur, merging day-pay into salary, with periodical or annual increment in lieu of promotion by classification.

We, your petitioners, humbly submit to your Lordships that by acceding to our prayer you would thus afford us the means of supporting and educating our children in a becoming manner, also secure increased efficiency, likewise elevate the moral character of the officers, and raise the service in the estimation of the public.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

BRISTOL.

Petition of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Bristol.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the undersigned, Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs, Port of Bristol,

Sheweth,

That, with the sanction of the Honourable Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs, the out-door officers of that department, Port of Bristol, beg leave most respectfully to lay before your Lordships their humble petition, with full confidence that your Lordships will give it that attention the urgency of the case requires.

That at no time has the payment in your petitioners' department been sufficient to enable them to maintain themselves and families in that degree of respectability the best interest of the service demands, or commensurate with the arduous and responsible nature of their duties.

That, in consequence of the superior educational acquirements and general capabilities of officers entering the department of out-door officers, the duties performed have very much advanced in importance and responsibility, they now including in ordinary routine functions, at one time only allotted to officers of comparatively high rank and salary, such as timber-measuring, taking and making up the weights according to which the duty is charged upon warehoused sugar, and taking weights and making up quantities of goods exported as ship's stores, besides being called upon in emergencies, and in some instances even permanently, to act in the superior grades of examining officers and clerks.

That, notwithstanding such increase of responsibility and importance in duties performed, no increase has been made in your petitioners' scale of payment; but, on the contrary, whereas prior to the year 1851 their total income ranged from a minimum of 59 l. to a maximum of 91 l. per annum, at this present time it ranges from a minimum of 60 l. to a maximum of only 80 l., showing an annual loss of no less than 11 l. upon the maximum sum received, or more than 12 per cent.

That the amalgamation of departments in Her Majesty's Customs which took place in 1860, and subsequent arrangements, have still further, to a most serious extent, injuriously affected your petitioners, as, until that time, your petitioners were eligible for promotion in their own ports to the grades of tide-surveyor, superintending lockers, patrol inspectors, appointers of weighers, and re-gaugers, with an increase of salary proportionate to an increase of rank, and also to a proportion of vacancies in the landing-waiting department at other ports, by special appointment; they also, whilst acting in a superior capacity, received an extra payment of 1 s. per day over their regular income, such extra payment in many cases amounting to an increase of a considerable per-centage upon their annual income.

That your petitioners have been deprived of the whole of these advantages; and, moreover, the amount of their payment for time employed beyond the legal hours has been reduced one-third, and is now only a bare average of what their ordinary payment amounts to an hour, although it is an established principle in all commercial and manufacturing establishments to pay from 25 to 50 per cent. premium for work done in "extra" time.

That notwithstanding, in answer to a memorial presented by some of your petitioners to the Honourable Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs in 1861, praying for the restoration of the 1 s. per day "acting" money, the following promise was given: "The applicants being now eligible for advancement to the offices the duties of which they are called upon occasionally to perform, we (the Honourable Board) cannot comply with their request"—your petitioners have only two-thirds of the vacancies open to them, including the before-enumerated classes, the vacancies to which were totally filled from your petitioners' classes whilst they were in the receipt of the 1 s. per day. And further, under present present arrangements, your petitioners cannot obtain any promotion equivalent to that lost, except by passing a competitive examination, and removing to other and probably distant ports; that such removal renders it quite impossible for many highly efficient and experienced officers to obtain promotion, inasmuch as it is obviously impossible for officers struggling with a family and an income varying in amount from 60 l. to 80 l. per annum, to break up his home and remove to a distant part of the country.

That your petitioners are now paid by a double system of salary and day-pay, such daily payment, amounting to 1 s., being stopped during sickness, holidays, and leave of absence. That, although the amount thus saved to the country is very insignificant per annum, yet the loss is severely felt by your petitioners, for expenses are always greatest during sickness; and many of your petitioners are prevented by the loss occasioned from taking the leave of absence allowed them by regulation, to the serious detriment of their health.

That, according to the present system of promotion by classes, any rise your petitioners may obtain must be gained by the death, disgrace, or superannuation of brother officers, which system is highly objectionable in itself, and most uncertain in its operation; and the proportion of numbers in the higher classes is so small in relation to that of the lower, that the juniors in the service have scarcely a rational hope of ever rising to the first class.

That your petitioners venture respectfully to draw your Lordships' attention to the fact that avowedly the tendency of the age is, and has been, progress; that, surrounded by universal advancement, your petitioners are pained to think that their department appears to be the only one in Her Majesty's service, or even in the community, that has positively retrogaded.

That the portion of your petitioners engaged upon "water guard" duties gratefully acknowledge that, about 14 years ago, by the substitution of the "patrol" system for that of "boarding," they obtained a considerable increase in regard to social comfort, but would respectfully draw attention to the fact that it was at the expense of their income, inasmuch as, when "boarded" upon a vessel, they were allowed their victuals at the vessel's expense; whereas, under the present patrol system, they are debarred that privilege. And your petitioners generally also gratefully acknowledge that, about eight years ago, the amount of the day-pay was reduced from 2 s. 6 d. and 3 s. to 1 s., and their salaries proportionately increased; also that, by the new superannuation law, they, in common with the whole Civil Service, were relieved to the amount of their former payments, which in their case amounted to 2½ per cent. upon their income; but, at the same time, respectfully urge that these advantages to no perceptible amount affect their main grievances, as before enumerated.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray your Lordships:

1st. That your Lordships will be pleased to grant an increase in the amount of your petitioners' income, abolishing the system of day-pay, and substituting the principle of annual increasements in the place of promotion by classes;

2d. And, to remove all restrictions upon promotion, so that your petitioners may have before them the prospect of rising in the service, in their own port, to any position their character and capacity may enable them to fill with credit to themselves and benefit to the service.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

HULL.

Petition of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Hull.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

May it please your Lordships,

The out-door officers of the port of Hull, in appealing once more to your Lordships, have to deplore that the manner in which they have attempted to bring their sufferings and losses under the notice of your Lordships, with a view to redress, has failed to convey to your Lordships' minds a conviction of the truth of statements and accuracy of the facts therein set forth.

In extenuation of their shortcomings in this respect, of the out-door officers, beg respectfully to submit that they thought it their duty to spare your Lordships the pain of wading through a detailed account of the social and domestic miseries entailed on them by their present position, which they would willingly screen from public view, and which they hoped your Lordships' regard for the honour of the service would on such a case prefer a statement in generalities to a minute detail of their actual condition.

But your Lordships having attentively considered the statements in the out-door officers' Memorial, and being unable to discover therein sufficient grounds to accede to its prayer, is conclusive that the statements were defective in the matter of detail.

Therefore, that the source of their grievances is insufficiency of remuneration to procure the necessaries of life for themselves and their families, the out-door officers respectfully submit will be self-evident to your Lordships from a perusal of the following instance of an out-door officer's weekly bill of fare for the merest necessaries of life, the family consisting of parents and three children:

Flour, 3½ stones	5	3
Yeast and baking	–	10½
Coals, 2 bags	1	9
Tea, 5 ozs., at 4*s.*	1	3
Coffee, ½ lb.	–	8
Butter, 2 lb. tub	2	4
Sugar, 2 lb., at 6*d.*	1	–
Candles, 1½ lb.	–	9
Soap and soda	–	6
Salt and pepper	–	1
Blacking and whiting	–	1
Milk for tea and coffee	–	7

Cost of breakfast and evening meal, and officer's meal for night duty for a week	–	15	3½
For a week's dinners, Sunday included, 1*s.* 6*d.* per day for meat, fish, vegetables, eggs, suet, &c., or little more than 3*d.* per head per day each	–	10	6
House rent	–	5	–
Total	£. 1	10	9½
Or per annum	£. 80	1	2

That there is nothing extravagant, nothing but the ordinary necessaries of an humble house in this bill of fare, the out-door officers anticipate your Lordships will freely admit; and yet the annual cost, even with flour at a low rate, absorbs the whole of the first-class officer's income. If he expends it all on those necessary items, he has no means of procuring clothing for himself and family, boots, shoes, &c.; nothing for his children's schooling, nothing for a sick club to fall back upon in illness, when his shilling a day is deducted for absence from duty; nothing to replace the wear and tear of furniture, bedding, and the numberless odds and ends known only to the housewife, who has to deplore the want of them.

That such being the fact, it is obvious that an officer cannot feed and clothe himself and family, but he must have clothing so as to attend to duty, and his family family must have sufficient so as to appear in public; therefore, if he neither has friends to fall back upon for relief, nor credit to borrow what he can never repay, he must make a compromise with his necessities, and make up his mind to be poorly clothed and insufficiently fed. And should he try to economise by living in a cheaper house, he will find himself no gainer at the year's end, for the doctor's bills and other expenses resulting from sickness, produced by the bad air of a small and incommodious house, will more than counterbalance his savings on the score of rent.

That if a first class out-door officer's family of five are driven to such straits for want of sufficient means to live, as it is proved they are, the condition of a fourth or fifth class officer, with a large family, must be wretched in the extreme. That, although poverty has at all times been the distinguishing badge of the out-door officers among their brethren of the service, the amalgamation, however, is accountable for the prostrate and degraded position in which they now find themselves.

That only the extreme of penury has forced them to seek redress is evident from the fact that they bore comparative want at former periods uncomplainingly, in the hope of better times; that before the amalgamation, when the departments were separate and the classes small, the promotion was comparatively rapid; that 91 l. 10*s.*, the maximum of their class, being in prospect, they struggled bravely with their difficulties until they attained it, being assisted frequently in their efforts by the 2 s. 6 d. and the 1 s. a day extra awarded them for acting in grade above their own, and by 9 d. an hour for working overtime; that house rents at Hull were fully 30 per cent less then than they are now, and butcher's meat, and fish, and butter were cheaper in a like degree; that cotton fabrics, which are the staple comfort of the poor, were to be had for one-third of their present price, and all other sound clothing moderate in its degree.

That, notwithstanding these favourable circumstances, and additional helps in those times, their income was so inadequate that to eke out the means of procuring the necessary amount of common fare for their families, they were forced to send their children out as errand boys at nine and ten years of age, for a shilling or two a week, exposed to the corrupting influences of the street, when they should be at school, and their female children at the same tender age to clean the hearths or wash the door steps of their better-off neighbours for a trifle, instead of assisting their mothers at home, and that the pressure of such miseries made some men resign in despair.

That the amalgamation changed all that was favourable in this state of things, by fixing the maximum at 65 l. and a shilling a day, instead of 76 l. and a shilling a day; by making 5 l. the uniform amount of promotion instead of 10 l. and 5 l. alternately as before; by so enlarging the classes, especially those worst paid, as to make promotion a shadowy and doubtful thing; by reducing all actual salaries 6 l., though still received as personal allowance, so that when promotion does come it brings no relief, for 5 l. of the 6 l. personal allowance is applied in lieu thereof, and so no increase of income follows by lopping off unconditionally all remuneration for acting in a superior capacity, and by reducing all overtime pay to the uniform rate of sixpence per hour, although it was paid by the merchant, and never reluctantly in the out-door officer's case.

That in reference to the promotions open to out-door officers at the out-ports, it is a circumstance of rare occurrence at Hull, that to coast waiter or assistant examining officer at 80 l. a year at some distant port cannot be accepted by a first or second class officer, because it brings no increase of income; and, if accepted, would compel him to break up his house, such as it is. And then, where is he to find funds to transport himself and his family to his place of appointment? The attempt would be ruin, so that any advantage arising from that sort of promotion is available only to men in the lower classes, or men with little or no family, thus palpably setting long service at a discount, when it should be at a premium.

That with respect to the appointments to examining officerships by competition, the out-door officers have found it to be a delusion for the successful candidate; in every instance of the kind they found owed his good fortune not to successful competition, but to secret selection. Officers of respectable capacity and practical knowledge of the duties have undergone this test, and discovered, from the successful candidates themselves, on such occasions, that they owed their selection to the favourable opinion and friendly recommendation of their respective superiors, and not to any competitive merit on their own part.

Therefore, having proved beyond dispute that their condition, at all times wretched from insufficient income, has become intolerably so by reason of the manifold wrongs, actual and prospective, superadded by the amalgamation, that their position cannot be much worse nor their hopes darker, the out-door officers appeal once more to the sense of justice and feelings of humanity inherent in the minds of English gentlemen, to graciously please to reconsider their case, to make such addition to their income as will be sufficient to supply the necessaries of life to themselves and their families, to recognise long service, by opening to such as have it promotion at their own ports to merge the shilling day-pay in salary, and substitute periodical increments for promotion by vacancies.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs,

Humbly Sheweth,

THAT, with the sanction of the Honourable Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs, we, the out-door officers stationed at this port, most respectfully beg leave to lay before your Lordships our humble statement of grievances, and prayer for redress.

Your petitioners are divided into five classes, with the following gradations of numbers and income.

Number of Officers.		Salary per Annum.
Classes.	In each Class.
1	4	60	And 1 s. per day when employed.
2	6	55
3	10	50
5	15	40

This gives an average salary of 47 l. - s. 5 d. per annum with the aforesaid 1 s. per diem to add, when employed; this is our average amount of remuneration for the performance of duties which are onerous and responsible, and for the most part arduous, no patrol being established at this port; also, all extra pay for the performance of superior duties has ceased, and at all times a portion of the out-door officers are performing such duties; added to this, promotions here are so rare as to cease to be an object to look forward to; so that at present your humble petitioners lack all incentives to the performance of their duties with that zeal and cheerful alacrity which is expected from an officer serving under the Crown.

At

At this busy port, which bears comparison only with London and Liverpool for export tonnage, thereby involving a large amount of business to be done in bonded ship stores, the re-packing duties of which were formerly performed at the respective bond warehouses by landing-waiters, whose salaries were from 150 l. to 250 l. per annum, and accompanied by a weigher with an income of 60 l. per annum; the same duties are now performed by the out-door officers, without a weigher, as well as the locking business of the warehouse in addition. Your humble petitioners, so far from receiving any extra pay for performing this, as well as many other duties, which has been a considerable saving to the Crown, have in reality suffered a reduction of income of from 2 l. to 3 l. per annum in the first four classes, which took place at the period of the amalgamation of officers, and also the payment for work over hours has been reduced one-third.

Your Lordships' humble petitioners have with sorrow to acknowledge that our present income is inadequate to meet the requirements of a family and to maintain that meed of humble respectability which is becoming as servants of the Crown; also the depreciation in value of the currency of the country being a fact so well authenticated as to call forth the remark in the House of Commons, that 70 l. a few years ago was equal in value to 100 l. at the present time; the truth of this fact we most unfortunately experience daily, in the increasing difficulty in maintaining and educating our families, and keeping free from pecuniary difficulties.

Your petitioners humbly beg your Lordships' consideration of our case, that you may be pleased to grant us increase of income by regular increments, dating from our commissions, and abolishing day-pay. We would further presume to submit to your Lordships' notice, that a great disparity in the amount of pay to out-door officers exists in different ports, and this for the performance of duties which are almost if not altogether identical; a substantial reason existed for this difference before the introduction of railways; the cost of living in a first-class port was then considerably more than in a provincial town; but that difference no longer exists, at least when applied to this port, as the necessaries of life, house rents, taxes, &c. have steadily advanced to city prices. Your Lordships' servants in the Excise have not the grievance of a difference of pay to complain of, the officer in a rural district receiving a pay equal to his brother officer in the metropolis; neither are they called upon to provide a costly uniform as we are, at our own expense, with such limited incomes.

Your petitioners humbly trust that our case will meet with that merciful consideration at the hands of your Lordships as may lead you to grant us a speedy relief, which shall call forth our lasting gratitude.

And your petitioners will, as in duty bound, ever pray, &c.

SOUTHAMPTON.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Southampton.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT with the kind permission of the Honourable Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs, we, the out-door officers at the Port of Southampton, humbly presume to approach your Lordships by this memorial, confidently believing that, for reasons herein offered, your Lordships will graciously condescend to enter into, and, if truthful, comply with the humble prayer of your petitioners.

That the insufficiency of pay, granted for the performance of duties of a highly responsible character, is every day pressing more heavily upon the domestic life of your petitioners, who are no longer able to obtain the common comforts of an humble English home, but are frequently compelled, either to become a burthen to their friends, or to contract such debts as render them liable to dismissal from the situations they at present hold.

That the difficulties of their position have been considerably aggravated by the increase in the price of all domestic commodities, house rents, &c. by the immense depreciation in the value of money, by the abolition of all remuneration for acting in a superior capacity, and by the reduction of payment for pursuing their particular duties beyond the legal hours of business.

That by the recent amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments, several superior offices, to which your petitioners were formerly eligible, have been permanently abolished; thus, in every instance, materially decreasing the prospect of advancement to the higher grades, and to the old and meritorious officer, hopelessly closing every avenue to future promotion.

That the average income of your petitioners, viz., 55 l. per annum, and 1 s. per day, is frequently curtailed by the disallowance of day-pay during sickness, leave, or when not employed; while every attempt to increase their earnings, by engaging in commercial pursuits, is strictly prohibited by the rules and regulations of the service.

That the classification of the new establishment has so increased the number of inferior officers in the lower classes, that your petitioners have no hope of ever attaining even to the maximum of their present grade, but are deeply discouraged by the certain prospect of being ultimately superannuated at a very reduced scale.

That the amount of remuneration granted to your petitioners is so manifestly inadequate to the requirements of their office, that their social position is considerably lowered in the estimation of the public of Southampton, and even their efficiency as officers of Her Majesty's Customs is materially impaired, through their being held in no greater esteem than dock labourers, porters, seamen, &c.

Confidently trusting, therefore, that for the above reasons your Lordships will generously give our case all the consideration it deserves, we here humbly and respectfully beg your Lordships' permission to suggest that such an addition may be made to our present incomes as will for ever allay all just cause of complaint, and will hereafter enable us to move in our different spheres with that respectability which the honour of the service demands; and that your Lordships will moreover graciously consent to complete the good work by abolishing day-pay, and substituting salary with periodical increments, irrespective of classification, and so give to long and meritorious services that reward which their fidelity has justly earned.

And your petitioners, as it duty bound, will ever pray.

GLASGOW.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Glasgow.

Unto the Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

May it please your Lordships,

WE, the out-door officers of Her Majesty's Customs at the Port of Glasgow, would most respectfully approach your Lordships a second time, humbly requesting that your Lordships would deign to reconsider our case, and the following additional statements herewith.

We are exceedingly grieved at the information that your Lordships did not consider the reasons given in our petition sufficient to induce your Lordships to comply with our request.

Your

Your Lordships' petitioners were of opinion that the same reasons which had caused all masters to increase the wages and salaries of their workmen and clerks, and also the Chancellor of the Exchequer to reduce the Income Tax, would have been applicable to our case, and particularly so when to these were added other reasons, that of our incomes being actually reduced in various ways, and our prospects blighted through the amalgamation of 1860.

The general reasons having already been submitted to your Lordships, no other course appears open to us but to present to your Lordships a detailed account of our incomes and expenditure for one year.

From feelings of delicacy, both as respects your Lordships and ourselves, we refrained from making such an exposure until compelled to do so by the nature of your Lordships' answer.

The following are correct and impartial specimens of our domestic circumstances: –

In this case, the money remaining for food is 22*l.* 16 s. 3*d.*, or 3¾*d.* per head per day; but still, it must be a sum totally unfit to afford the proper nourishment required.

If your Lordships have any doubt about the foregoing statements, the officers will be happy to furnish your Lordships with full proof of their truthfulness.

Observations on the foregoing Statements.

We respectfully submit, that house rents have advanced in Glasgow from 30 to 40 per cent. within the last 10 or 15 years, and the houses here noted are of the smallest possible description consistent with any regard to decency and morality.

We are bound to appear respectable, and your Lordships will not consider one suit of clothes every two years too extravagant. The nature of the duties we have to perform is destructive to clothing, so that by the close of that period they have neither appearance nor comfort.

A top-coat is also indispensable in this northern latitude; and as many of us have to perform night duty unsheltered, and the others to do duty on the quay and in the warehouses of such a nature that warm clothing is absolutely necessary, and yet many of us are unable to provide such a garment.

We have also mentioned a suit of clothes for Sabbath day wear to last three years; and we feel confident that your Lordships will be gratified to know that we wish to appear respectable in the House of God.

Our wives and children we are bound to clothe, maintain, and educate; and they must be, in some degree, in uniformity with ourselves in their clothing; and we cannot allow our children to be uneducated when all classes are being instructed.

The

The educational fees noted are the lowest, with the exception of the ragged school. Your Lordships cannot fail to see that the clothes of our wives and children must be very plain and cheap, and be carefully tended to last one year.

We have mentioned church accommodation and contributions for the maintenance of Gospel ordinances according to the religious principles we profess. These items are necessary unless we take the place of paupers.

Your Lordships will observe that there is no mention made of expenses caused by medical attendance, medicine, a birth, or a death; the casual visits of a friend, or the re-placing of worn-out bedclothes, furniture, &c. Neither can we devote anything of our incomes to the purchase of books, amusements, benevolent purposes, or to make provision for our wives and families in the event of our own demise.

We earnestly hope that these additional statements will appear to the judgment of your Lordships conclusive, and that they may impress your Lordships with the reality of our domestic difficulties, and the absolute impossibility of providing in a proper manner for our household necessaries with our small income.

May it therefore please your Lordships to kindly re-consider our case, and therefore grant to petitioners an increase of salary of 30 or 40 per cent.; the substituting of annual or other periodic increments for promotion by classification; payment by salary only, with day pay; and the opening up of a wider and more extended field of promotion.

And, as in duty bound, petitioners will ever pray.

In name of Out-door Officers.

LEITH.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Leith.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The Petition of the Out-door Officers at the Port of Leith,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT we, your petitioners, by the kind permission of your Honourable Board, most respectfully take the liberty to present a statement of our grievances to your Lordships, in the hope that your Lordships will be pleased to accord to us that kind consideration which is never denied by the just and high-minded to the reasonable prayer of the humble.

That the source of our grievances consists mainly and primarily in the insufficiency of the remuneration awarded for our onerous and responsible duties. Our circumstances have not kept pace during the last 10 or 15 years with the requirements of the times; the principal necessaries of life, the rise in house rents, local taxes, clothes, &c. taken collectively, having advanced within that period at least 30 or 40 per cent.

That the recent amalgamation proved injurious to our interest. At this port, the maximum of salary was then reduced from 63*l.* to 60*l.* per annum, and the instances are numerous where a pecuniary advantage looked forward to in the gradual rise from class to class was rendered more distant. Long service was ignored, we, your Petitioners no longer being promoted by seniority and good conduct to the situation of superintendent locker, inspector of patrol and tide surveyor, of which there were eight in all, with salaries ranging from 90*l.* to 200*l.* per annum. Those who perform the duties of examining officers have been deprived of all remuneration for such service, viz. one shilling a day. When employed at the boarding station, and that sometimes for a period of thirty-four hours, we receive sixpence a day less than formerly, while the extra men for the performance of such duty still receive the additional sixpence.

That our only hope of promotion now rests upon our advance from class to class, from the minimum of 40*l.* to 60*l.* per annum of salary (one shilling per diem added when employed), and this of an uncertain nature, depending entirely on the death, dismissal, or superannuation of brother officers; while in order to show more clearly to your Lordships the hardship of the present system, we may add, that some of the out-door officers at this port have been from 10 to 14 years in the service and have never received any additional income.

That we are deprived of one shilling a day when on leave or sick, which appears to be a tax on our misfortunes or recreations, we being the only class belonging to the service who suffer in this manner.

That though we have been placed on patrol instead of boarding duty, whereby, owing to the less number of hands employed, a saving must necessarily be effected to the revenue, our situation is not the less responsible. In that capacity we are employed seven days in the week and are exposed to the inclemency of the weather, and of necessity require expensive and warm clothing. We must provide ourselves with uniforms, which formerly we were not required to do, and this at our own expense.

That we cannot trade as merchants, &c., consequently our time and energies are solely devoted to the service, and this places us in a peculiar, and more unfavourable position than others of the same standing in society, while at the same time if we incur pecuniary embarrassments entails, by the rules of the service, instant dismissal.

That a large amount of property is daily committed to our charge on the quay, and in the bonded warehouses, and hence your Lordships will perceive it becomes a matter of primary importance, the efficiency and integrity of your petitioners; and what can be more calculated to lower the intellectual and moral standard of the service, than the miserable prospect of promotion now presented to the out-door officers, combined with their slender means of subsistence which is now so keenly felt and complained of?

That we humbly direct your Lordships' attention to the anomaly which exists in the scale of salaries of the out-door officers at Leith, when contrasted with those of the same department at the more favoured ports.

Confiding, therefore, in the high sense of honour and justice of your Lordships, we humbly entreat that your Lordships will please to take our case into your kind consideration, and make such additions to our present incomes as will remove all just cause of complaint and enable us to live, and by graciously consenting to merge day-pay in salary, and substituting periodical increments for promotion by vacancies, give long service its reward irrespective of classification, and crown the favour by admitting officers of character and ability, when vacancies occur, to the rank of examining officers at their own port.

And your petitioners will ever pray,

W. Falconer.

BELFAST.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Belfast.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The Memorial of the Out-door Officers of Her Majesty's Customs of the Port of Belfast,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your petitioners have memorialised the Honourable Board of Customs to abolish the system of day-pay, to be substituted by salary with an annual, increase, thereby improving the position and prospects of your petitioners; but having failed to obtain any redress of their grievances, and still believing in the justice and reasonableness of their claims, with the permission of the Honourable Board, they have presumed to submit them for your Lordships' consideration, with the view of obtaining such amelioration in the mode of payment and promotion.

Your petitioners would state that their remuneration is insufficient to maintain the respectability and independence required of them in the performance of their duties, and which is inadequate to meet the most humble expenditure necessary for the comfort of their families.

That such remuneration is less than that of the ordinary mechanic or artisan, and although it may be urged that the prospect of superannuation is an equivalent for the extra pay of the mechanic, the immediate benefit of the higher amount is of the greatest importance when families are dependent thereon, your petitioners having to forego that benefit when most needed.

Moreover, while the higher paid lose no salary by sickness or leave of absence, your petitioners submit that it is unjust to subject the lowest paid officers to the loss of 1 s. per day during sickness, when extra expenses are necessarily incurred, and when some are placed in pecuniary difficulties (strictly forbidden by the rules of the service), but under such circumstances unavoidable, and from which it would not unfrequently be beyond their power to extricate themselves without friendly assistance.

Also, when on leave of absence granted for health and recreation to others in the service with full pay, but denied the out-door officers, unless forfeiting about one-fourth of their pay, although their hours of duty are longer, duties generally more arduous, and their leave only half of that allowed those who enjoy the boon without loss.

That your petitioners, being 36 in number, are divided into five classes, namely, 1st class, 3 at 60 l.; 2d class, 5 at 55 l.; 3d class, 8 at 50 l.; 4th, 9 at 45 l.; 5th, 11 at 40 l. salary per annum, and 1 s. per day when employed.

That petitioners would humbly point out the great disproportion as regards numbers which the lower bear to the higher classes, and under the present working of the system, as far as petitioners are in a position to judge, it would take an officer in the 5th class about 25 years to attain the 1st class; that, even in the event of an officer placed in the lower class getting into the higher, the change, or as it must be called promotion, only brings him an increase of from 3 l. to 5 l. in his yearly salary.

That petitioners from their high sense of your Lordships' justice and honour, cannot but believe that their case will be justly and liberally considered, and that your Lordships will be pleased to make such additions to their present income as will remove all just cause of complaint, by graciously consenting to merge day-pay into salary, and substituting periodical increments for promotion by vacancies, thus giving long service its reward irrespective of classification.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray,

CORK.

PETITION of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Cork.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the Out-door Officers at the Port of Cork,

Respectfully sheweth,

THAT your petitioners, with the concurrence of the Honourable the Commissioners of Customs, and under the pressure of straightened circumstances, come before your Lordships with the respect due to your exalted positions, to pray for an increase of pay, and they beg to offer in support of their prayer the following statement for your Lordships' consideration:—

That petitioners submit, firstly, That their pay never was an adequate remuneration for the duties they perform; and secondly, That the reduction in the value of money has so circumscribed their means, that their pay is no longer equal to the support of themselves and families.

That in reference to under-payment, petitioners beg to observe that they at once admit the right and even the duty of your Lordships to obtain service on the lowest terms; but they venture to remind your Lordships that there are situations where it would be unwise to place servants on low pay; that there are places of trust and responsibility which can be only efficiently filled by persons of respectability, whose status in the social ranks of life places them above the grade of those whom they have to control, and whose position forbids the claim of association; that as high salary establishes rank, so will low pay compel low connexion; and petitioners submit it would be unwise to allow them only such a rate of pay as would send them to the back room, while the ship-lumper may occupy the front one. That petitioners anxious that your Lordships may form a just estimate of their duties and responsibilities, beg to state that they are the sole custodians of that vast amount of property from which a revenue of twenty-five millions a-year is drawn. That the water-guard portion of the out-door officers take and hold it in charge previous to examination, and the lockers keep it in theirs until the duties are paid. That they are not simply watchmen, or mere care-takers, looking only to the safe keeping of a specific thing. They must keep an account of every package and pound of this incalculable amount of goods, and the discharge of their duties requires an acquaintance with the habits and trade-marks of a commerce not less circumscribed than the globe; and also to a knowledge of the customs, laws, and system of accounts, the varied and intricate nature of which took the best efforts of an able Board of Commissioners during half a century to model and tone down to the smoothness and accuracy of machinery, so that now the examiner of accounts sitting at his desk in London can see the principal operations of the most distant ports, nor is this completeness effected without petitioners' share of the work. That the duties of the water-guard portion of petitioners are so notorious for their disagreeable nature and length of time, that they consider it unnecessary to refer further to an admitted fact, and will only pray your Lordships to bear in mind their night and day work, and the unceasing vigilance which the performance of their duties requires.

That when petitioners tell your Lordships that money has lost half its purchasing power during the last thirty years, they feel they make a statement which requires the cause to be distinctly shown, and that cause again supported by the test of prices before such a statement can be accepted as a sober fact. That the science of economy teaches, history proves, and petitioners' own experience make them feel, that the cost of living is always in proportion to the amount of money in circulation. That in order to indicate the amount of money in circulation during the last thirty years, petitioners beg to remind your Lordships that all the steamships of the three kingdoms had to be built, and many others during the last thirty years, that a million stationary steam-engines had to be constructed, that all the railways and their outfit had to be made, and probably one hundred thousand miles of railway bar for other countries.

countries. Telegraph communication had to be erected, and most of the wire for the world manufactured. That during this period also, manufacturers increased ten-fold, and a corresponding impulse was given to all branches of business and commerce. That all this work was in excess of the occupations the country usually affords, so that it is no exaggeration to say, the work of two centuries has been crowded into half the present one; that when all the cost of this work is summed up, petitioners believe the whole will be found to approach some twelve or fifteen hundred millions; that without referring at all to the influx of gold, petitioners submit that this enormous amount of capital thrown into circulation is in itself a cause quite sufficient to account for the advance that has taken place in the price of provisions. That petitioners will now pray your Lordships to look at the price of provisions thirty years ago, and what they are now: thirty years ago a stone of potatoes could be bought at this port for three half-pence, they are now sixpence; a pound of butcher's meat from three to fourpence, now eight to tenpence; butter five to sixpence, now twelve to fourteen pence; eggs, the dozen, six to sevenpence, now thirteen to fifteen pence; fresh fish only to be had now occasionally, and at still higher rates of advance, and this, too, at the cheap time of a plentiful year. That petitioners also find that a great national change does not simply mean an advance in the price of provisions alone; it means as well an advance from simpler to more expensive habits of living, and though petitioners under the pressure of inadequate means are compelled to the most rigid economy, they find that no inconsiderable portion of their pay is expended upon items which were heretofore unknown. That your petitioners are desirous your Lordships should also see how this great change has affected the country generally. Thirty years ago the public expenditure (less the interest of the national debt) did not exceed fifteen millions, it now exceeds fifty millions. Municipal taxation doubled in the time, and house and land property advanced in like manner; even in this country the wages of labour increased thirty per cent., and while petitioners were spectators of this great and general change, they were not even allowed to remain stationary: the authorities stood knife in hand, and trimmed off every branch of extras that might assist their slender incomes, till at length nothing remains now for support, but the denuded stump of insufficient pay, and that again dried up to half its worth, in consequence of the reduction in the value of money.

That petitioners looking upon under payment as their great and paramount grievance, and its redress as of more value to them than any alteration which could be effected in the service consistent with the proper working of the system; nevertheless, they believe there are existing regulations which might be modified, securing at the same time both the interest of the service, and some minor advantages to petitioners. They therefore pray your Lordships to consider whether uniformity of salary can be introduced in the room of the various rates of pay now given; whether fixed salary can be established in room of salary and day-pay combined; and, lastly, whether the advancement of officers by periodic increments in room of selections and competitive examinations can be adopted.

That in reference to various rates of salary, petitioners submit that the fact of different amounts of pay to officers in the discharge of same duties, and alike in point of time, is in itself anomalous, and can only be justified on the supposition that living is dearer at one port than at another; but petitioners believe that living at out-ports is now as expensive as at the great emporiums, as the cost of transit and the profits of intermediate merchants have to be added to those articles which are only imported direct into the larger ports. That the introduction of steam and its operations have equalised the cost of living at all places, and petitioners believe if a difference exists it lies in favour of the principal ports.

That respecting day-pay and salary combined, petitioners believe the arrangement has in view rather the constant attendance of the officers than any saving resulting from non-employment; but, like most other coercive measures, it falls most severe where its effects are the least endurable; thus when sickness prostrates the officer, and additional expense becomes a necessity, his means are lessened by the stoppage of day-pay. Petitioners also submit that the time wisely allowed by the Honourable Board as periods of relaxation is no more to them than a nullity, offered as it is at the cost of deduction, and particularly to men whose pence must get the consideration due to the pounds of others; and again, when the nation rests from its labours to celebrate the great festivals of Church and State, petitioners regret to have to tell your Lordships that those days bring them not joy but humiliation, deepened by the double reflection that the regulation applies only to their class and that of boatmen, and that they can discover nothing in their conduct meriting the unenviable distinction any more than the classes above them, where it was never applied nor needed.

That as regards the present system of promotion, petitioners have to observe that the Honourable the Commissioners, always desirous to promote their best officers and fully sensible of the value of the zeal and steadiness of the candidate, inquire into these matters even more searchingly than into his abilities; but as the Honourable the Commissioners from their position are not cognizant of the merits or demerits of any officer themselves, they must rely upon the reports of others to guide them, and petitioners believe your Lordships' experience of the world will enable you to comprehend how often the favourite and importunate will have recommendations, while the faithful and modest officer is left unnoticed. Again, the zealous and steady officer is placed at a particular duty, and his superiors, glad to find him do it to their satisfaction, leave him at it; on the other hand, the discontented and careless officer, not giving satisfaction in any place, is shifted from duty to duty till his very worthlessness is the means of cramming him for examination. These are some, and only some, of the secrets resulting from a system which looks plausible enough in theory, but which petitioners believe will not carry to higher ranks those most worthy of promotion, nor bring to the really meritorious the rewards due to length of service and the faithful performance of duty.

That petitioners humbly submit the foregoing statement for your Lordships' consideration, and believing that your Lordships cannot fail to see in the facts they refer to the proof that their position must be one of difficulty and severe struggle, and they beg to assure your Lordships that even the shabby-genteel appearance which they contrive to keep up is only upheld by social and family privations they would blush to see exposed.

Petitioners therefore earnestly pray that your Lordships will grant them such an advance of pay as will enable them to live and make an appearance suitable to the responsible situations they hold; and as they believe that a certain fixed allowance would be no less advantageous to the best interests of the service than acceptable to petitioners, they also pray that their salary may be a fixed sum increased by periodic increments.

And petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray,

J. Bermingham, Out-door Officer.

DUBLIN.

Petition of the Out-door Officers of the Port of Dublin.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

May it please your Lordships, Dublin, January 1864.

The out-door officers of the Port of Dublin, in appealing once more to your Lordships, have to deplore that the manner in which they have attempted to bring their sufferings and losses under the notice of your Lordships with a view to redress, has failed to convey to your Lordships' minds a conviction of the truth of the statements and accuracy of the facts therein set forth.

In extenuation of their shortcomings in this respect, the out-door officers beg respectfully to submit that they thought it their duty to spare your Lordships the pain of wading through a detailed account of the social and domestic miseries entailed on them by their present position, which they would willingly screen from public view, and which they hoped your Lordships' regard for for the honour of the service would on such a case prefer a statement in generalities to a minute detail of their actual condition.

But your Lordships having attentively considered the statements in the out-door officers' memorial, and being unable to discover therein sufficient grounds to accede to its prayer, is conclusive that the statement was defective in the matter of detail.

Therefore that the source of their grievances is insufficiency of remuneration to procure the necessaries of life for themselves and their families, the out-door officers respectfully submit will be self-evident to your Lordships from a perusal of the following instance of an out-door officer's weekly bill of fare for the merest necessaries of life, the family consisting of parents and three children.

Which is 5 s. 2½ d. per week, or 9 d. per day for each individual, or 67 l. 16 s. 4 d. per annum, leaving a balance of 12 l. 13 s. 8 d. for house rent, clothing, &c. for the 1st class out-door officers.

That there is nothing extravagant, nothing but the ordinary necessaries of an humble house in this bill of fare, the out-door officers anticipate your Lordships will freely admit; and yet the annual cost, even with flour at a low rate, absorbs the whole of the first class officer's income; if he expends it all on those necessary items, he has no means of procuring clothing for himself and his family, boots, shoes, &c., nothing for his children's schooling, nothing for a sick club to fall back upon in illness, when his shilling a day is deducted for absence from duty, nothing to replace the wear and tear of furniture, bedding, and the numberless odds and ends known only to the housewife who has to deplore the want of them.

That such being the fact, it is obvious that an officer cannot feed and clothe himself and family, but he must have clothing so as to attend to duty, and his family must have sufficient so as to appear in public, therefore if he neither has friends to fall back upon for relief, nor credit to borrow what he can never repay, he must make a compromise with his necessities, and make up his mind to be poorly clad and insufficiently fed, and should he try to economise by living in a cheaper house, he will find himself no gainer at the year's end, for the doctor's bills, and other expenses resulting from sickness produced by the bad air of a small and incommodious house, will more than counterbalance his savings on the score of rent.

That if a first-class out-door officer's family of five are driven to such straits for want of sufficient means to live as it is proved they are, the condition of a fourth or fifth class officer with a large family must be wretched in the extreme; that although poverty has at all times been the distinguishing badge of the out-door officers among their brethren of the service, the amalgamation, however, is accountable for the prostrate and degraded position in which they now find themselves.

That only the extreme of penury has forced them to seek redress is evident from the fact that they bore comparative want at former periods uncomplainingly in the hope of better times; that before the amalgamation, when the departments were separate, and the classes small, the promotion was comparatively rapid, and their prospects much better; they struggled bravely with their difficulties until the maximum of their class was attained, being assisted frequently in their efforts by the 1 s. a day extra awarded them for acting in a superior capacity, and 8 d. an hour for working overtime; that house rents at Dublin were then fully 30 per cent. less than they are now, and butcher's meat and fish and butter were cheaper in a like degree. That cotton fabrics which are the staple comfort of the poor, were to be had for one-third of their present price, and all other sound clothing moderate in proportion; and as the out-door officers have been considered eligible for performing the duties of a grade to which is allocated the sum of from 100 l. to 300 l. per annum, they would respectfully submit that while performing a measure of justice, a great saving would still be effected if those out-door officers were allowed extra remuneration (as formerly) for performing the duties of the higher grades.

That the amalgamation changed all that was favourable in this state of things by fixing the maximum at 65 l. and one shilling a day, instead of 68 l. and one shilling a day; by making 5 l. the uniform amount of promotion instead of 8 l. and 5 l. alternately as before; by so enlarging the classes, especially those worse paid, as to make promotion a shadowy and doubtful thing; by lopping off unconditionally all remuneration for acting in a superior capacity, and by reducing all overtime pay to the uniform rate of sixpence per hour for bonded goods, and abolishing all overtime payment for grain, &c., although it was paid by the merchant, and never reluctantly in the out-door officers' case.

That in reference to the promotions open to out-door officers at the outports, it is a circumstance of rare occurrence at Dublin, that that to coast waiter or assistant examining officer at 80 l. a year at some distant port cannot be accepted by a first or second class officer, because it brings no increase of income, and, if accepted, would compel him to break up his house, such as it is, and then where is he to find funds to transport himself and his family to his place of appointment? The attempt would be his ruin, so that any advantage arising from that sort of promotion is available only to men in the lower classes, or men with little or no family, thus palpably setting long service at a discount, when it should be at a premium.

That from the statement of the first financier of the present day, in his place in the House of Commons last Session, viz.: 60 l. per annum 20 years ago being equal to 100 l. of the present day, it will be seen that their present pay is totally inadequate, and therefore having proved beyond dispute that their condition, at all times wretched from insufficient income, has become intolerably so by reason of the manifold wrongs, actual and prospective, superadded by the amalgamation, that their position cannot be much worse nor their hopes darker, the out-door officers appeal once more to the sense of justice and feelings of humanity inherent in the minds of English gentlemen to graciously please to reconsider their case, to make such additions to their income as will be sufficient to supply the necessaries of life to themselves and their families, to recognise long service, by opening to such as have it, promotion at their own ports, to merge the shilling day pay in salary, and substitute periodical increments for promotion by vacancies.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

The Secretary of the Treasury to the Commissioners of Customs.

Gentlemen, Treasury Chambers, 27 April 1864.

I AM directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to transmit herewith, for your information and guidance, copy of their Lordships' Minute of the 25th instant, on the subject of the memorials addressed to this Board by the out-door officers of your Department.

I am, &c.

The Commissioners of Customs. (signed) F. Peel.

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 25 April 1864.

MY Lords have received a great number of memorials from out-door officers of Customs at different ports in the country, complaining of their condition in regard to the amount of their emoluments and the few promotions open to them, more particularly since 1860, when the out-door department was re-constituted and consolidated.

My Lords have also received from the Commissioners of Customs, to whom they in the first instance referred these memorials, reports showing in each case the past and present position of the out-door officers, and the opportunities afforded to them of rising to superior appointments.

My Lords will first refer to the application of the memorialists to be paid wholly by salary.

An out-door officer's emoluments consist at present partly of an annual salary, varying in amount with the class and port to which he belongs, and partly of 1 s. day-pay when employed; previously to 1856 he received two or three shillings day-pay, and only a very small yearly sum by way of salary, but in that year the day-pay, excepting only 1 s., was commuted into salary and added to that part of the officer's emoluments; actual employment as the condition of his being paid being thus to that extent dispensed with.

It is, however, not now difficult to find continuous employment for the out-door officer, and the day-pay system is become more an aid to discipline and a check upon evasion of duty than a means of adjusting the charge for pay to the amount of work to be done. My Lords have therefore considered whether it might not be practicable to found a distinction upon this system, whereby well-tried and approved men would obtain the privilege of being freed from day-pay, while those who had committed faults, or who had not sufficiently approved themselves to the Board by length of service and by their good conduct, would continue in part dependent upon it. With such a modification, the system would be useful, not only to maintain discipline, but also to reward good conduct; and my Lords therefore consent that, after an approved service of five years, an out-door officer shall, so long as he shall continue to conduct himself well, be relieved from day-pay, and receive instead an increased salary at the rate of 16 l. per annum, besides 1 s. for every Sunday on which he may be necessarily employed.

With reference to the stoppage of day-pay during absence on leave, or from sickness—a point submitted in all the memorials for their Lordships' considerate attention—my Lords are pleased to allow day-pay to be issued during ordinary leaves of absence, not exceeding 16 days in each year, and also during absence caused by sickness, when the Commissioners are satisfied by medical certificate, or otherwise, that the sickness is not pretended, and that the absence has been unavoidable.

My Lords will consider next the complaints regarding promotion, and the filling up the higher appointments in the out-door establishment.

The principle of giving a reward in the shape of increased pay by promotion from class to class, for continuous good service, has long been adopted in the Customs at all the ports at which, from the number of the out-door officers, it is practicable to place them in classes. Thus, in London, an officer rises from the 5th, or lowest class, with a salary of 55 l. per annum, besides day-pay, to the 4th, with 60 l.; to the 3d, with 65 l.; to the 2d, with 75 l.; and to the 1st, with 85 l.; and a classification of a similar kind, though varying in the number of classes and the rates, prevails at Liverpool and the other larger ports.

But besides this increase of pay from class to class, very many out-door officers are promoted to places of superior rank in the service, as examining officers, gaugers, and principal coast officers, and having regard to the effect of some of the alterations and reductions of establishment in 1860, my Lords desire, when they are able, to increase the proportion of the appointments which are filled in this manner. When the two classes of landing-waiters and tide-surveyors were amalgamated in that year, under the name of examining officer, my Lords reduced the number of appointments made directly by themselves, and allowed two-thirds of the situations of examining officer to be given by promotion to out-door officers. My Lords learn that the practice of the Customs is to fill half these vacancies by means of competitive examination, open to assistant examining officers, principal coast officers, out-door officers and boatmen, and half by selection of the Board; so that all deserving officers, even those who cannot compete in a literary examination, but who, from good character, conduct, and physical qualifications, are most eligible for promotion, have a fair chance of advancement.

What the memorialists appear generally to ask is, that each port may be isolated from every other for purposes of promotion, and that promotion may go only in the port in which the vacancy occurs. To this my Lords would not feel justified in assenting, but they are not unwilling to relinquish the portion of appointments still retained by them; that is, to give up the direct nomination to two out of each six vacancies of examining officers, and to allow all vacancies, instead of two-thirds only, to be filled from the ranks of the out-door officers and other officers now admitted to compete. In such cases, unless the Commissioners should otherwise advise, the vacancies might, perhaps, be filled up as follows: one half by competition, open to assistant examining officers, principal coast officers, out-door officers and boatmen, and the other half by selection from the same classes.

As, however, under this arrangement all the offices of examining officer will be filled from the under ranks of the service, it will be necessary, in order to obviate any inconvenience which might possibly arise in filling the superior offices of the out-door department, above those of the rank of examining officer, that the Board of Customs should have the power to select, when they may deem it necessary, from any branch of the service, the officers whom they may consider most eligible and best qualified for those appointments.

Another point affecting the out-door officers which has appeared to their Lordships to demand their attention, is the amount of the stamp duty payable on their appointments.

Under the Acts which impose that duty, all persons appointed to any office in the out-door department of the Customs who require to be furnished with a deputation or commission, are charged with a stamp duty on such commission in proportion to the income of the office to which they are appointed, and out-door officers and boatmen pay accordingly about 4 l. stamp duty on their admission to the service. As there can be no doubt that this charge must press with some severity, and as the duty does not fall uniformly or with equality, inasmuch as the enactments in force are held to be inapplicable to persons appointed to clerkships in the Customs, who are not supplied with deputations, my Lords will be prepared to take the subject into their early consideration with a view to giving such relief as will, in their judgment, remove any reasonable ground of complaint which may at present be held to exist.

Under regulations of recent years, out-door officers are required to appear in uniform when on duty, and this distinctive dress is, as my Lords are informed, found to be attended with marked advantage to the public. The officers provide the regulated clothing at their own expense, and as they necessarily require, during the chief part of the year, to wear some overclothing, a great-coat forms an article of the prescribed dress. In 1861 the Commissioners of Customs obtained the sanction of this Board to make a special gratuitous issue of a great-coat to such out-door officers in London as might, at once, provide themselves with the other articles of uniform; and my Lords, on consideration of the subject, are of opinion that it would be conducive to the good of the service, besides being a sensible boon to the officers, that similar aid should should continue to be given from time to time as required, in London, and at other ports where the uniform clothing is worn.

These are the points contained in the memorials in which my Lords are able to deal favourably with the case before them, and to give what they trust will have a due effect in improving the condition and prospects of this particular branch of the service; and it now only remains for them briefly to say that they cannot comply with the other applications made to them, to increase the emoluments generally of the out-door officers, so as to raise them into a new position altogether; and further, instead of classifying the establishment, to allow all indiscriminately to advance according to length of service with a progressively increasing pay.

Comparing, as my Lords have done, the pay of the out-door officers and of similar classes of labour in large private as well as in other public establishments, my Lords see no reason to conclude that the former is inadequate or inferior, even taking into account such special circumstances in the out-door officer's lot as his being prevented engaging in particular businesses which may interfere with the duties of his official calling. And it is certainly a strong argument to show that the remuneration is really sufficient, notwithstanding what is alleged as to the increased cost of living, that the competition to enter the service at all times more than supplies the means of filling the vacancies in it. At the same time, my Lords desire to increase the inducements to those who are in the service to perform their duty with zeal and fidelity, and they look to the attainment of that object for the justification of the benefits conferred by the measures to which they have in this Minute given their assent.

My Lords desire that this Minute shall take effect from the 1st of June next, and that, besides the out-door officers, watermen and watchmen in London and boatmen at the out-ports shall be considered to be included in it.

REPORT of the PROCEEDINGS of the REGISTRAR of FRIENDLY SOCIETIES in Scotland, in his Office of Registrar, and of the principal Matters transacted by Friendly Societies which have come under his cognizance during the past Year.

OF no institution can it be said with more truth than of that of Friendly Societies, that as its nature and objects become known its value must more and still more commend itself to the esteem and consideration of the public.

This may well be the case. The institution is peculiarly for the benefit of those who, although they form "the very pith and marrow of the State," without whom all would be weakness and vanity, are yet, from their very precarious circumstances, so subject to all the vicissitudes which the uncertainty of obtaining work, the rise and fall of the value of labour, and many other distresses occasion, that in the midst of their wives and families clinging to them for support, their hearts are ready to faint and fail within them, and the strongest and most sanguine minded of them are prone to become dismayed.

It is in the darkness of this melancholy condition of things, that the Friendly Society presents itself as a messenger of peace and consolation, restoring strength to the weak, homes to the houseless, free from the goading and humbling sense of the workhouse, food and raiment, and spirit to seek and obtain work with the voice and manner of a freeman.

Such are the benefits of Friendly Societies, whose kind and precious influence, silently, and all but unperceived it may be, pervades the land and permeates its society, and its many thousands of families, and yet often so gently that the dew itself falls not more softly nor more sweetly.

The Reporter may be excused for thus writing of one of the most valuable institutions of this country, but of which many know little or nothing, and in place of lauding with well-deserved praise, and earnestly striving and seeking to promote, almost injure "with faint praise," or charge with blame unmerited. In turning again to the more pleasing side of the picture, for it has a bright side, even a very bright side, as well as a dark one, there is much to cheer and encourage the friends of Friendly Societies. As in a Report of a former year, the Reporter had occasion to observe, very few societies have been dissolved during the last year. Several instances occurred in several societies, where even influential members wished to bring about a dissolution of a society, in order that the funds might be divided, and that they might obtain their individual shares, but the conviction of the majority of the members of the great value and usefulness of the society overruled all their influence.

Several Annual Societies also, from the conviction of the members of the greater usefulness and value of Permanent Societies, have had their Rules revised and certified by the Registrar, and have become Permanent Societies. The Registrar may again take this opportunity of impressing most anxiously on the minds of the working classes, and on those interested in the welfare of the working classes, the greater value and usefulness of Permanent Societies than of merely Annual Societies. Merely Annual Societies are not entitled to any of the privileges under the Act of Parliament relating to Friendly Societies, nor to any protection from the provisions of the enactments regarding them. They are subject to many contingencies, and to many losses, from their inability to secure their funds in any of the modes so wisely provided by the Legislature in the Statutes relating to Friendly Societies. The great inducement to persons to become members of Annual Societies is, the division of the funds at the end of every year. This expectation is very often utterly disappointed, for as the treasurers are not obliged to give any security, there being no statutory constraint on them to do so, the funds by the end of the year become non inventa, having taken wings and fled.

The Reporter considers it to be a matter of great importance and satisfaction that Female Friendly Societies are increasing. The objects of these societies are most important, they tend greatly to elevate the condition and add to the comforts of females, enabling them by their own prudence and industry to provide for their maintenance, and to procure aid and relief to those who are dear to them, who would otherwise be destitute.

The Reporter will again venture to refer to the Female Society of Catrine, in the parish of Sorn, Ayrshire, twice noticed by him in previous Reports. This society continues to prosper, and yet the whole capital of the society, consisting of only 38 members, is only 131 l. 15 s.; and with means so limited, the society has, on an average of several years, been able to dispense about 20 l. a year among those of its members, who, from illness, or other causes, have been temporarily deprived of work.

The Reporter cites this case again, because he is of opinion that it cannot too prominently be brought before the notice of the public, as showing that the funds of a Friendly Society, though very small, even scanty, yet if perseveringly contributed, will be sufficient to preserve the society in vigorous action, and to minister to many a poverty-stricken family most important aid and relief.

The Reporter is happy to be able to state that Female Societies continue to increase. Although for some time Female Societies were best known in Ayrshire, and increased most there, they are becoming more frequent in other parts of Scotland. They do a great deal of good, and are in general very well and judiciously managed.

The Reporter is again much gratified by being enabled to report that, as on former occasions, he has had occasion to be much gratified by the wise and very prudent manner in which the business and affairs of both the Friendly Societies and Co-operative Societies have been managed and conducted. This remark applies equally to both classes of these societies with equal truth and justice. There is, however, a distinction between the two classes of these societies, it is this: the Co-operative Societies are from their nature and constitution, and from the nature and mode of their transactions also, of a more mercantile character; their office-bearers are exposed to many temptations from which the office-bearers of the Friendly Societies are free; their office-bearers, therefore, deserve the greater praise, and possess the greater merit, in abstaining from taking advantage of many opportunities of investing the funds of the societies with which they are connected under circumstances which, while apparently offering very desirable opportunities of increasing and benefiting the funds of the societies, might, by an unexpected and unforeseen risk, endanger their safety. The office-bearers are evidently fully impressed with a most deep sense of their personal responsibility.

Many of the secretaries and treasurers of Friendly and Co-operative Societies, in order to avoid any risk of speculation, as they term it, and also in order to avoid all liabilities, pay their accounts weekly, and thus they add "we have no liabilities." Other societies have funds for peculiar exigencies and casualties. Reserved funds for the provision of unexpected contingencies and need are becoming more frequent.

All which is very humbly and respectfully reported by

A. Carnegy Ritchie,
Registrar of Friendly Societies for Scotland.

REPORT, &c.

THE Committee appointed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for investigating and reporting upon the subject of local rates on Government property have inquired into the general matters adverted to in their Lordships' Minute of Instructions of the 1st of September last, and they have now the honour to make the following Report:—

In dealing with the subjects submitted to them the Committee have avoided the question of what constitutes in law rateability to local rates, and they have not attempted to define the line which separates, although not always with desirable distinctness, Government property in respect of which rates are payable from that in respect of which those outgoings are not payable. They have thought it more convenient, in proceeding with the inquiry, to regard Government property as practically divided into such as is the subject of local rates and such as is not, without reference to the grounds of the division. This course has been found by the Committee sufficient to enable them to consider the questions contained in the Minute of Instructions, and one or two collateral questions directly growing out of it. The actual law and practice of rating, however uncertain as affecting Government property under different circumstances, did not come within the scope of the inquiry, and they have abstained from offering any opinion upon either. For the sake of brevity, the Committee speak of property as being rateable or liable to rates, or the contrary, instead of using the longer but accurate description—property in respect of which the occupier is or is not rateable or liable to local rates.

1. Government property liable to local rates is occupied by ordinary tenants in their private capacity, or by officers of the Crown as residences provided for or assigned to them by the Government. The property in the occupation of ordinary tenants did not fall within the inquiry made by the Committee, which, as far as it concerned rateable Government property, was confined to the houses or residences occupied by officers. And their Lordships having adopted, as a general rule, that officers who occupy Government houses, and are thereby saved the necessity of providing themselves with other residences, should themselves pay the local rates assessed upon them, restricted the duty of the Committee in this portion of their inquiry principally to the consideration whether there are cases or circumstances in which any of such officers should be relieved by the Departments to which they belong from the payment of those rates.

Officers who occupy Government houses, or parts of such houses, as residences, are divided into two large classes, viz., those who, up to the time of the adoption of their Lordships' rule, have had the local rates, to which they are subject, paid for them by their Department, and those who have paid those rates themselves. Their Lordships, in their Minute of Instructions, state to the effect that officers now in the occupation of Government houses who, by an understanding or agreement at the period of occupancy, were not to pay the local rates themselves, should continue during their occupation to be relieved from the rates, and that the rates should be paid for the officers by the Departments to which they respectively belong. In this exception to the rule adopted by their Lordships the Committee concur; and they think that equitably it should be extended to the few cases of officers now occupying Government houses upon whom, during their occupation, rates may be legally made from which they were regarded as legally exempt at the commencement of their occupancy, but in favour of whom no such understanding or agreement as that above referred to was made. It is possible, in the present unsettled state of the law of rating, as regards Government property, that an occupation not regarded at one time by the Courts of Law as the subject of local rates, may be determined at another to be rateable, and officers thereby made liable to outgoings which, not having been contemplated, were not provided against, either expressly or tacitly, at the time their occupation began.

The cases in the foregoing paragraph appear to the Committee to be the only exceptions which should be made to the general application of the rule adopted by their Lordships. It does not appear to them that, with these exceptions, there is any such variety in the occupation of Government residences by officers of the Crown as to demand that a difference should be made or continued between the officers belonging to one Department and those belonging to another, or between the officers of the same Department, in regard to the payment of the local rates assessed upon them.

Two classes of cases were discussed by the Committee, which they think deserve to be specially mentioned, although they did not, after much consideration, come to the conclusion that either class ought to form an exception to their Lordships' rule. The first cases were those of officers who occupy houses too large for them, and whose rates consequently are heavier than if the houses were of a size suitable to their circumstances, it being understood that officers have not a voice in the selection of Government residences assigned to them. Such cases may occasionally occur; and the Committee are of opinion that in practice they must be treated as accidental inequalities in the advantages derived by officers from occupying official residences, which manifestly cannot be exactly adjusted to their different wants or wishes. It seems to the Committee impossible for the Government to determine satisfactorily the degree to which a residence is not adapted, in regard to size, to the circumstances or views of the officer to whom it is given; or consequently the extent to which an alleged excess in size should be dealt with as an exception to their Lordships' rule.

The other cases were those of the successors of officers whose local rates have hitherto been paid by the Departments to which they belong. The value of the appointments held by such officers will not be affected by their Lordships' rule so long as they are enjoyed by their present possessors, who are excepted from its operation; but the value will be diminished in the hands of their successors, to whom the rule will apply to the extent of the rates paid by them. The Committee consequently considered the question whether the successors might not be regarded as exceptions to their Lordships' rule; but it appeared to them that exceptions so numerous would virtually defeat the intention of their Lordships in adopting it, as it could not be assumed that that intention was that the rule should be restricted to officers who already pay their own rates, and their successors who will be subject to the same outgoings.

But it appeared to the Committee that upon other grounds the successors to the present officers whose rates are paid by their Departments should not be made exceptions. They are of opinion that the object of the rule is, as soon as existing interests will permit, to place the payment of local rates upon Government houses in the occupation of officers upon a uniform footing, and at the same time to provide efficient security against undue assessments or demands of local rates by parochial or district authorities. Under the rule, according to which all officers occupying Government houses as part of their remuneration will finally pay the rates assessed upon them, a uniform system will be established, established, accompanied by the best security which the case allows against undue charges, namely, the personal interest of each rated occupier to resist them. And if the Treasury give their support to officers in cases where resistance is proper, which the Committee recommend should be done, it seems to them that the object of their Lordships will be perfectly attained.

A uniform system might doubtless be adopted by the Treasury paying the local rates in all cases, instead of the officers. But there is a formidable objection to the Government placing itself in the position of a ratepayer in respect of a large number of separate houses, from its inability, unless through an expensive staff of officers, surveyors, &c., to check and pay a multitude of local rates of different kinds, recurring in different amounts, at uncertain periods, and in various parts of the country, and, at the same time, to protect the property from which the rates arise from being overcharged by the local authorities. The Committee, moreover, feel confident that this could not be undertaken by the Government Departments without differences of practice prejudicial to the public interests quickly growing up.

Although the general application of their Lordships' rule will diminish the value of appointments in the hands of the successors to the present holders, whose local rates are paid for them by their Departments, that consequence is entirely free from the hardship which would be inflicted on the present holders of the appointments if they were called upon to pay the rates themselves. The consequence is also remote, and will scarcely, if at all, affect any existing interest or expectation ; and the appointments will be accepted by the successors of the present holders with knowledge of their diminished value. The Committee, nevertheless, are of opinion that their Lordships may properly consider whether compensation for the diminished value of the appointments may not be provided. The future holders of the appointments may look upon themselves as aggrieved by not fully enjoying the advantages possessed by their predecessors, and as having a claim to indemnity on that account.

2. The expediency of claims for local rates under compulsory enactment, or under the Defence Act of 1860, or otherwise, being examined and adjusted through the agency of the same Department, another of the subjects adverted to in their Lordships' Minute of Instruction has been considered by the Committee, and they are of opinion that such an arrangement, under certain limitations, is very desirable for the public interests. The claims upon the Treasury for contributions out of the Parliamentary Grant are now referred by their Lordships to Her Majesty's Office of Works for examination and recommendation in each case ; and the Committee are of opinion that the agency of the same office should be employed in all cases of claims for the payment of local rates upon the public Departments in respect of Government property, as without some such single agency a uniformity of action could not be maintained. The Committee do not, however, think it necessary that the payment of local rates should form any part of the duty of that office, or that the payments by the Departments should in every instance of payment be preceded by an examination in the Office of Works ; but the Committee recommend that the duties of the office should extend to the examination of every case in which a claim upon any Department for the payment of local rates in respect of any particular property is made for the first time, or in which the claim is made under circumstances differing from those under which it had been previously made. The Committee are also of opinion that the same office should be directed to exercise strict observation over attempts to wrongfully impose new charges upon Government houses occupied by officers, and also over the appeals of officers against local charges made upon them in respect of the Government houses occupied by them.

3. Their Lordships having adopted as a principle that contributions, when given by them in aid of the poor rates of any parish, in respect of Government property not rateable situated within it, shall be regulated by the proportion borne by the value of the Government property to the value of the rest of the parish, the best means by which these values may respectively be ascertained were carefully considered by the Committee. It did not appear to them that as regards the parish there were grounds for recommending any other criterion of value than the rateable value for the purpose of poor law assessment. It is true that previously to the Act of last Session (25 & 26 Vict. c. 103) the rateable value of a parish, as shown in the rate books, and according to which the poor rates were made, frequently did not correspond with the real rateable value. The rateable value might never have been ascertained by actual valuation; or a valuation, if made, might not have been made agreeably to the principle of the Poor Law Assessment Act; or if made agreeably to that principle, a change in the rateable value of the parish might have subsequently taken place. The Committee, however, are of opinion that, if fairly carried out, the Act of last Session will very speedily afford an accurate knowledge of the rateable value of the greater number of parishes in England and Wales. That Act confers upon the Guardians of every Poor Law Union, through the agency of a Committee appointed from amongst them, and invested with certain legal authority, the power of obtaining a correct valuation of each parish within its limits, according to one general principle; and the Guardians possess a strong inducement to carry the provisions of the Act into effect. Amongst the parishes to the poor rates of which the Treasury have hitherto made contributions, there are only two not coming within the control of the Act; and the Committee do not understand that there is reason to suppose that the rateable value of these parishes has not been duly ascertained.

The method of ascertaining the value of much of the Government property which is not rateable presents considerable difficulty, from the difference of opinion existing amongst surveyors as to the principle according to which that value should be calculated. Practically, however, members of that profession are able to assign a rateable value to property of that description; and it was done on an extensive scale for the Treasury by Mr. Hall, an eminent surveyor, in the parishes to which contributions in aid of poor rates are now made, in a manner which has not given rise to any dissatisfaction. It is not probable that any principle could be suggested for arriving at the rateable value of the property in question which would not provoke considerable dissent; and the Committee are of opinion that, should any further valuation of Government property of any large extent not liable to rates become necessary, to fix its rateable value, their Lordships would consult the interests of the public as well as that of the parish in which the property may be situated, by following the course they have already adopted, viz., by employing Mr. Hall, or some other equally competent surveyor, in whose experience, judgment, and fairness, their Lordships and other parties interested may confide.

4. It is stated in their Lordships' Minute of Instruction to the effect that, when the Government property not liable to be rated exceeds in value a certain fraction of the value of a parish seeking a contribution in aid of a poor rate, they will contribute an amount equivalent to the value which would be levied upon the Government property if it were rateable, but excluding police, county, or other local rates made or levied with poor rates; or, in other words, that, under the circumstances adverted to, their Lordships will contribute to any given poor rate after deducting the other local rates included in it, in the proportion borne by the Government property to the rest of the parish. The proportion in which their Lordships will contribute appears to be free from doubt; but the Committee believe that in practice, generally speaking, the difficulty is very great, if not insuperable, of ascertaining the precise share of the poor rate in respect of which the contribution is to be made.

If upon a poor rate being made by the parish officers the portions of it to be applied to the payment of other local rates were exactly defined, the residue upon which the contribution is made would also be defined. It is, however, well known that, although this may possibly occur, the reverse is commonly the case; and that ordinarily a poor rate is made without any accurate estimate being framed of the amount of each of the charges to which it is applicable. The amount of other local rates to be paid out of a poor rate is generally not known, or is a matter of conjecture when it is made. Moreover, these charges are subsequently paid in such a manner as to render it impracticable (except in very rare cases) to determine the precise portion of the rate applied to each.

Poor rates, when collected, become nearly in every case mixed up with balances of previous rates and other moneys in the hands of the overseers; and the payments made by these officers are from this mixed fund, and not from the proceeds proceeds of any particular rate or rates. Whence it is obvious that the portion of any given rate applied by the overseers to any particular object does not, as a rule, admit of being ascertained. The principal disbursements by the overseers consist of payments to the guardians of the union to which their parish belongs. These payments, when received by the guardians, are not treated by them as proceeding from any particular rate or rates requiring separate accounts to be kept of them, but are carried indiscriminately to a running account between the union and the parish. All the receipts by the guardians from the overseers or from other sources on account of the parish form an aggregate fund from which the disbursements by the guardians on its behalf are made. It is manifest, therefore, that the proceeds of any particular poor rate cannot be traced with certainty in their application to the objects for which the rate was nominally made; and it becomes impossible, consequently, to determine, with a few rare but possible exceptions, the portions applied to the county, police, or other local rates, whether paid by the overseer, or, as is more generally the case, by the guardians, or, consequently, the residue or portion of it in respect of which the Treasury contribution is given. The Committee have reason to believe that this cause has occasioned a large amount of trouble and some uncertainty in the calculation of contributions since they have been made on account of a portion or residue of the poor rate. For although it cannot be determined how much is taken for any given rate for county or other local rates to which it is applicable, yet it is necessary to make a deduction on account of them, so long as the contribution is to be made in respect of the residue after excluding them. The deduction in each case is, more or less, upon conjectural grounds; and it is possible that errors to a large amount may occasionally arise from this source.

It appears to the Committee that the plan now followed of contributions being given in respect of rates for the relief of the poor as they are made, is necessarily exposed to the objections which have been stated. There are, however, other objections to it which deserve notice. The mistakes or misrepresentations which may attend applications for contributions impose upon the Government the necessity of frequent minute inquiries into parochial rating and expenditure. The contributions, which should be made with regularity if the ratepayers are to reap the full benefit of them, are necessarily withheld until these inquiries have taken place, and the labour and trouble attending the business have been represented to the Committee as being so great that, unless some alteration is made, considerable expense must be incurred about its proper performance.

The object of contributions made by the Treasury in aid of poor rates is, the Committee believe, intended to be substantially, although not so expressed, to relieve the parish to which they are given from a part of its expenditure for the maintenance and relief of the poor in the ordinary meaning of these words, in the proportion which the Government property not rateable bears to the rest of the parish when that proportion exceeds a certain fraction. One thing necessary, therefore, for calculating the contributions is accurate information respecting that expenditure. At present it is attempted to extract it from the poor rates, as they are successively made, by the extremely imperfect and troublesome process of eliminating from each rate the portions of it, applicable or assumed to be applicable, to other purposes than the relief of the poor; whilst the direct and obvious method of obtaining it is by taking the expenditure from the parochial and union accounts, in which it is minutely and accurately recorded. But so long as contributions are made in respect of rates, the latter course cannot be adopted.

The Committee recommend that contributions should no longer be made in respect of the poor rates, but directly in respect of the expenditure for the relief and maintenance of the poor; and they also recommend that the amount of this expenditure should be ascertained from the parochial accounts, which are partly kept by the overseers and partly by the guardians, and that the Poor Law Auditors of the district in which the parish receiving contributions is situated should, at the half-yearly audit of their accounts, upon the 25th March and 20th September in every year, report to the Treasury or the Government Department entrusted with the management of the contributions the amount of the expenditure for the preceding half-year. Respecting the amount so certified there could be no dispute; and the principal ingredient in the calculation of contributions would be furnished in the simple shape, and at fixed periods, quite independently of the poor rates. If this plan were adopted the contributions could be made at regular intervals of six months; and the questions between the Treasury and the parishes needing that assistance would be reduced within a very narrow compass.

5. It was brought under the notice of the Committee in the course of their inquiry that in many of the parishes now claiming contributions from the Treasury, all or a portion of the property lying within them belonging to and occupied by the Government was originally acquired by or became vested in the latter under statutes by which the rateability of the property so acquired or vested was continued, and in some cases with a limitation of the rateable value to be assigned to it, in order, it may be assumed, to prevent its subsequent improved value arising from Government buildings being made liable to rates. According to some of these statutes, the lands acquired by the Government under them shall "be chargeable with the payment of the land-tax and all parish rates and taxes in proportion with other lands and premises;" and according to others the lands acquired or vested shall "be chargeable with the payment of tithes, land-tax, and all other rates and taxes according to the average at which the said lands have been heretofore assessed." In several of the parishes the property belonging to the Government liable to be rated under these statutes is considerable; but, as far as the Committee have been able to obtain information upon the subject, they do not find that any of the property acquired by or vested in the Government under any of the same statutes has ever, in point of fact, been rated to the relief of the poor, under the powers contained in those statutes, since the occupation by the Government began. The statutes are of various dates, some of the principal being the 32 Geo. II.; 20 Geo. III. c. 38; 20 Geo. III. c. 46; 22 Geo. III. c. 80; 24 Geo. III. c. 29; 42 Geo. III. c. 89; 43 Geo. III. c. 35; 43 Geo. III. c. 66; 44 Geo. III. c. 79; 46 Geo. III. c. 105; 54 Geo. III. c. 43, &c.

With respect to these statutes it is to be observed that, although they were nearly all passed in the last or early in the present century, and the powers contained in them for rating the property acquired by the Government under them have not been exercised; these powers, as far as the Committee can learn, do not appear to have been expressly repealed. It is also worthy of observation that the principle of continuing the rateability of property acquired by the Government for the public service, but with a limited rateable value, has been confirmed by the Legislature in the Defence Act of 1860, by which it is enacted that the lands acquired under its provisions shall continue liable to tithes, land-tax, poor and other rates, but shall not be assessed to any tax or rate at a higher value or rent than that at which such lands were assessed at the time they were so acquired. Under these circumstances the Committee are unable to regard the statutes adverted to, so far as the rateability of the property acquired by the Government under them is concerned, as obsolete. Whether they may have become so in point of law, from not having been used, the Committee are unable to determine. The attention of their Lordships is, however, directed to the possibility of the rating powers in question having become, in some cases, practically ineffectual from the inability of the parish officers to obtain information respecting the average rateable value at which property was assessed when the Acts were passed, and according to which the property was to remain liable, or from other causes.

The Committee are of opinion that these statutes, or such of them as are still in force, should be acted on, by which the property in the occupation of the Government coming within their provisions would cease to be the subject of contributions from the Parliamentary grant; and they recommend that the department which may be entrusted with the distribution of the grant should be instructed by their Lordships to ascertain, in the case of every parish receiving or claiming contributions from it, whether the property, in the occupation of the Government, in respect of which the claim is made, is liable to be rated under the powers of any of the statutes referred to, or others containing similar provisions.

6. At Waltham Abbey, Enfield, and other places, workmen in the employment of the War Office occupy cottages belonging to that department at rents which which entitle the parish authorities, under certain statutes, to assess the owner instead of the actual tenants or occupiers of property. Whether, in the present instances, the War Office is liable to be assessed under the statutes referred to, is a question which the Committee have not the means of deciding; but the practice has been, for some time, for the War Department to pay the local rates for their tenants, and to obtain reimbursement from a slight increase of the rents. In the War Office Letter (5463), mentioned in the Treasury Minute of 1st September 1862, two points are submitted to their Lordships in reference to these small holdings. First, that they should be included in the Government property to which the Parliamentary grant is applicable; and, secondly, if that is not conceded, then that the rates should be continued to be paid by the War Office, as at present, and deducted from the rents received, the balance of which could be paid to the Exchequer.

With regard to the first point, the Committee regard the cottages as liable to local rates made upon the occupiers or owners, for there is no pretence for considering the actual occupiers in any other light than private persons. This being the case, the cottages do not come within the description of property to which the Parliamentary grant is applicable, that grant being resorted to only in the case of Government property which is not rateable. The second point, the Committee are of opinion, must be governed by the regulations in force respecting the payment of moneys to the Exchequer by public departments. These regulations seem to require that the full amount of rent received by the War Office for the cottages in question should be paid to the Exchequer, the rates, if paid by that department, being defrayed from grants of Parliament.

If, under the statutes adverted to, the War Office can be legally assessed in respect of these cottages, the rates which it would have to pay would appear to form a necessary part of its expenditure about the cottages which belong to it, and would, therefore, in the opinion of the Committee, be a departmental charge. If, on the other hand, the War Office is not liable to be assessed, but should continue to pay gratuitously the rates assessed upon its tenants, these gratuitous payments would also be a departmental charge, as they arise from the arrangement according to which the property is managed by the War Office.

We concur in the foregoing Report, except in that part which refers to the levy of rates on officers who, in the execution of their duty, are required to reside in houses provided by the Government. On this point we do not think that the Report satisfies the reference made to us, provides the required means of uniformity, or for the removal of the difficulties which have arisen.

It does not seem probable that parochial rates, when first imposed, were levied upon officers who under such conditions occupied houses belonging to the Crown, but rather that from time to time encroachments were made upon the exemption which custom had legalised; the payment of rates was incidentally enforced, appeals to the courts of law followed, and the decisions of the Judges, though tending to the principle that all who have "a beneficial occupation" are liable to rates, and that all residence is a beneficial occupation, are yet so far conflicting that they have failed to establish any principle in law, and the question is still left undetermined.

In some departments it appears that rates are paid by the officers in residences, and repaid to them from the funds of the department; in others, that the rates are paid and borne by the officers themselves; in a third, that all rates on the officers are successfully resisted by the department; and it seems that these three different conditions have existed in the same parish.

We cannot doubt that such a state of things leads to continual encroachments on the part of the parishes, and to increased charges upon the public revenues, either in direct reimbursement or in salaries. We are sensible of the difficulty of the case from the differences in practice which have been gradually established, and the rights of the servants of the Crown abandoned; and we think that, instead of leaving its officers to contend for what are really the interests of the Crown, the Government itself should undertake to define and defend these interests.

With this view we would suggest :—

1. That the heads of each department, in conjunction with an officer of the Treasury, and subject to the final approval of the Lords of the Treasury, should determine and certify the officers of the department whose residence in an appointed official house is absolutely necessary for the public service.

2. That the Government should ask of Parliament a declaratory enactment confirming the recognised exemption from parochial rates of officers certified to be in occupation in strict conformity with the above conditions.

3. That the existing interests of officers not within this regulation should be observed, and, where practicable, a composition made with the parishes by the department under which they are serving, to defray the rates to which they are liable. By an arrangement of this nature we hope that great inconvenience and irregularity would be avoided, and would be followed by a decrease of expense.

We sincerely regret on this part of our inquiry to differ from our colleagues.

ISLE OF MAN DISAFFORESTATION.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 10 February 1865;—for,

COPY "of a REPORT, dated the 11th day of January 1865, by the Commissioner in Charge of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues in the Isle of Man, to the Board of Treasury; relating to the ISLE OF MAN DISAFFORESTATION, and of the ACTS OF TYNWALD, and REPORT therein referred to."

Office of Woods, &c., Whitehall-place, London, S.W., 11 January 1865.

My Lords,

I BEG leave to transmit, for your Lordship's approval, the Draft of a Bill, to be submitted to Parliament, for authorising the advance out of the capital of the land revenues of the Crown, of the sum of 2,500 l. to be applied in the manner provided by the Act of Tynwald, entitled "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Compensation Act, 1863," of which a copy accompanies this letter, as well as a print of the "Isle of Man Disafforestation Act, 1860."

The circumstances under which the advance in question is proposed to be made are shortly as follows:—

The Act of 1860 directed the Commissioners appointed thereunder (who are Mr. Wingrove Cooke, now one of the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales, Mr. Nathan Wetherell, an Assistant Inclosure Commissioner, and Mr. James Patteson), to ascertain the boundaries of the lands in the "Forest," in the Isle of Man uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed, to set out and make roads, to sell land for payment of expenses, and, subject to some reservations, to allot the residue between the Crown and the persons entitled to rights of common.

The Commissioners, in the months of May and August 1861, held meetings to ascertain the boundaries of the uninclosed Forest. A statement of their proceedings generally will be found in the accompanying copy of a report by the Disafforesting Commissioners to his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor of the Island, dated 28th July 1863.

Under the circumstances stated in that report, and having regard to the terms of the Act of 1860, the Disafforesting Commissioners felt unable to allow several claims which were made under the authority of licences to inclose portions of the forest, which had not been acted upon. In many cases great difficulty was experienced in identifying the particular portions of land in respect of which the licences were granted. The Commissioners indeed found, in many instances, claims preferred covering tracts of land to which, upon investigation, the claims obviously had no relation, while, at the same time, attempts were made to connect, by mere verbal evidence, the payment of what is termed the "Lord's Rent," with particular portions of the uninclosed Forest, such portions being undefined by metes or bounds of any kind. If, therefore, in the course of their inquiries the Commissioners had given effect to such vague claims, it would virtually have amounted to the abandonment of a great part of the Forest to this class of claimants. The circumstances under which some of the claims in question were disallowed, are fully stated in the report of the Commissioners, to which I have already referred.

After the Commissioners' decision, as to boundaries, was given, various representations were, from time to time, made to me, which, although proving that, under the provisions of the Act, 1860, and having regard to the circumstances which had been proved to exist, the Disafforesting Commissioners could not, with any propriety, have come to a different decision than that which they did; certainly tended to show that, in some cases, the result had been productive of hardship to the claimants, while the Crown and the commoners had been proportionately benefited.

In the first instance, it seemed that it was necessary to look at the Act of 1860 as a whole, and that as the matter then stood, and in the absence of any application by the representatives of the commoners, who were equally interested with the Crown, it was difficult to give relief to the claimants. It further appeared that, if any measure for the relief of the claimants were to be introduced, it ought, in the first instance, to be assented to by the commoners, inasmuch as the lands in question had not been in the exclusive possession or enjoyment of the claimants, but had lain open to the Forest and the cattle and sheep of the commoners depastured thereon, as on other parts of the waste lands for the inclosure of which no licences had been granted. And although payment of some nominal acknowledgment to the Crown under the licences would, in cases where it could be proved, be some evidence to show that the Crown was content that the actual making of the inclosure should be postponed, the right of the grantee continuing in force, the same observation would not apply to the interests of the commoners who were no parties to the licences or to the payment to the Crown, and had themselves been in the enjoyment of the herbage.

I subsequently, however, received a copy of a resolution of the Tynwald Court in the Island, to the effect that Her Majesty should be petitioned to grant permission for the introduction of a Bill into the Insular Legislature for the purpose of amending the fifth section of the Act of 1860, so far as it affected persons having a right to portions of the uninclosed Forest. And it was, at the same time, suggested that compensation might be made to the persons injuriously affected out of the proceeds of the sale of the remaining lands; the claims to be investigated by a proper tribunal.

After giving my best consideration to the resolution of the Tynwald Court, I thought that, as the Legislative Representatives of the commoners expressed a desire to relinquish their share of any of the lands in question, the Crown, by whose predecessors in title the licences were granted, ought not, under the circumstances stated, to refuse its consent to an amendment of the Act in question.

I thought, however, that a maximum sum should be fixed as the limit to which compensation for claims should be allowed and the expenses paid; and, from the best information I could obtain, I was satisfied that 5,000 l. would be a reasonable sum for the purpose. In the event of its proving more than sufficient, the balance would be returned in equal shares to the Crown and the commoners; and, in the event of its proving insufficient, it would be rateably apportioned among the claimants.

This sum, it seemed to me, should be contributed in moieties out of the capital of the land revenue (which had benefited by the additional land dealt with), and by funds to be raised by sale of part of the commoners' allotment.

Your Lordships were pleased to concur in the views which I have expressed, and the accompanying Act of Tynwald for making compensation in certain cases, and under the circumstances above-mentioned, has since been passed by the House of Keys and the council in the Island; and, after being considered by the law officers of the Crown, and receiving the Royal Assent, has been duly promulgated.

By the provisions of that Act, the third Commissioner under the Act of 1860, Mr. Nathan Wetherell (a gentleman of great experience in inclosure proceedings) is to investigate claims and to ascertain what would have been the value, at the time of passing the Act of 1860, of those substantiated. The sum of 5,000 l. is proposed to be raised to provide a fund to satisfy the amount of the claims and the expenses of carrying out the Act. One moiety of that sum is intended to be raised by sale of part of the commoners' allotment, and the other moiety (if Parliament consents thereto) out of the capital of the land revenue. If the sum of 5,000 l. is more than sufficient to satisfy the claims substantiated, the balance is to be equally divided between the Crown and the commoners; while, if it is insufficient to meet the full amount of the claims substantiated, the said sum is to be apportioned among the various claimants pro rata.

I am of opinion, that the measure passed by the Insular Legislature provided a fair a fair and proper course of proceeding in the state of matters which I have above described, and I submit for your Lordships' approval the draft of a Bill authorising the contribution of the sum of 2,500 l. out of the capital of the land revenues of the Crown, as the moiety of the compensation fund, to be contributed by the Crown, and to be applied in the manner provided by the Act of Tynwald.

I have, &c.

The Right Hon.
The Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

Enclosure 1.

AN ACT for Disafforesting and Allotting the Uninclosed Portion of "The Forest" in the Isle of Man.

ISLE OF MAN TO WIT.

AT a Tynwald Court holden at St. John's Chapel, the 5th day of July, in the 24th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady VICTORIA, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, and in the year of our Lord 1860, before his Excellency the Honourable Charles Hope, Lieutenant-Governor, the Council, Deemsters, and Keys.

An Act for disafforesting and allotting the uninclosed Portion of "The Forest" in the Isle of Man.

WHEREAS the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, in right of her Crown, is or claims to be seized to herself, her heirs and successors of and in "The Forest" in the Isle of Man, within and parcel of which Forest there are certain unappropriated or uninclosed lands, estimated to contain 27,000 acres or thereabouts, and Her Majesty is or claims to be seized or entitled of and in the soil and freehold thereof, with the rights of fowling and sporting thereover, and of herbage and turbary and feed of deer thereon, and of working, winning, and carrying away the minerals and other substrata therein. And whereas Her Majesty is or claims to be entitled to inclose, or approve, or to grant licenses to any of Her Majesty's subjects to inclose or approve any part or parts of the uninclosed lands in the said Forest, subject to the reservation of all lawful highways, watercourses, and turbaries. And whereas divers of Her Majesty's subjects in the said Isle are or claim to be entitled to certain rights of common in or over the said uninclosed lands in the said Forest, or some part or parts thereof; and whereas divers questions have arisen with respect to the right claimed by Her Majesty to inclose or approve parts of the said Forest, and to grant such licenses as aforesaid, and with respect to the rights of common claimed over such Forest; and whereas the value of the said uninclosed lands in the said Forest might be largely increased if the same were disafforested and allotted as hereinafter provided, and it is expedient that such provision should be made for the disafforestation and allotment of the same as is hereinafter contained; and whereas Her Majesty is graciously pleased to consent that the said uninclosed lands in the said Forest should be disafforested, and that the office of forester should no longer be exercised upon or in respect of such lands, and that such allotment as is hereinafter provided should be made to Her Majesty in respect of her forestal and other estates, rights, and interests after mentioned, in and over the said uninclosed lands in the said Forest; and that such allotments for any rights of common in the said uninclosed Forest should be made as hereinafter provided: We, therefore, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lieutenant Governor, council, deemsters, and keys of the said Isle in Tynwald assembled, do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted, by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lieutenant Governor, council, deemsters, and keys, and by the authority of the same, as follows, that is to say,—

Commissioners to be appointed for purposes of Act.

1. After the promulgation of this Act the provisions of the same shall be carried into execution by three Commissioners, being members of the English Bar of not less than five years' standing, of whom one shall be appointed in writing by the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, one other shall be appointed by the Commissioners for the time being of Her Majesty's Treasury of Great Britain and Ireland, by some writing under the hands of any two of such Commissioners, and the third of such Commissioners, in this Act called the Third Commissioner, shall be appointed by the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales for the time being, by some writing under the hands of two of such Commissioners; and so often as any vacancy shall occur by death, resignation, incapacity, or otherwise, a new Commissioner of this Act shall be appointed in like manner as the Commissioner whose vacancy is to be supplied was appointed, and all Commissioners to be appointed as hereinbefore provided shall for the time being be the Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution, and are hereinafter designated as the Commissioners of this Act; and all acts and powers to be performed by or given to the Commissioners of this Act, under the provisions in this Act contained, may, as regards the award hereinafter called the First Award, and any proceedings preparatory or in reference thereto be performed or exercised by any two of such Commissioners; and after the making of such first award the remaining provisions of this Act preparatory to or incidental to the award, hereinafter called the Second Award, shall be carried into execution by the Third Commissioner, who shall have such and the like powers and authorities with reference to the appointment or employment of a clerk, land surveyor, and valuer, as are by this Act given to or conferred upon the Commissioners of this Act.

Commissioners to make Declarations.

2. Every Commissioner of this Act before entering upon the execution of his office, shall make and subscribe a declaration to the following effect, before the Lieutenant Governor of this Island, that is to say:—"I do solemnly declare that I will faithfully, impartially, and honestly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, execute the powers and duties of a Commissioner, under an Act of Tynwald passed in the 24th year of the Reign of Queen Victoria, intituled, 'An Act for Disafforesting and Allotting the Uninclosed Portion of the Forest in the Isle of Man;'" and every such declaration, and every appointment of Commissioners under this Act, shall be made in duplicate, and when made and perfected, shall be deposited one part in the Rolls Office and the other in the Office of Land Revenue Records and Inrolments in London.

Commissioners may employ clerk and land surveyor.

3. The Commissioners of this Act may from time to time appoint a clerk, and if they shall think fit may remove such clerk, and on any vacancy may appoint another clerk, and may also employ from time to time a land surveyor and valuer, and every land surveyor and valuer so to be employed, shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, make and subscribe before the Commissioners of this Act, or one of them (who are hereby severally authorised to administer and receive the same), the declaration following: "I do solemnly declare that I will faithfully, impartially, and honestly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, perform all the duties which may devolve upon me as a land surveyor and valuer in the matter of an Act of Tynwald passed in the 24th year of the reign of Queen Victoria, intituled, 'An Act for Disafforesting and Allotting the Uninclosed Portion of the Forest in the Isle of Man;'" and every such declaration shall be made in duplicate, and when made and perfected shall be deposited one part in the Rolls Office, and the other in the office of Land Revenue Records and Inrolments in London.

Remuneration of Commissioners.

4. Out of the funds hereinafter directed to be raised and called "The First Award Fund," each of the Commissioners of this Act shall be paid, or shall be entitled to retain such a sum, not exceeding 500 l., as the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales shall think reasonable, by way of remuneration for the time and labour which may be bestowed by them respectively in carrying this Act into execution down to the making of the first award; and there shall out of the same fund be paid to the clerk to the Commissioners of this Act for the time being such salary not exceeding 200 l. per annum, down to the making of the first award, as such Commissioners shall think reasonable; and the same Commissioners shall also out of the same fund pay or retain all costs and expenses of employing any such land surveyor and valuer as aforesaid, preparatory or in relation to the first award, and all other reasonable expenses to be incurred by the Commissioners of this Act, in the performance of their duties under this Act, down to the making of the first award, subject to the allowance by the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales, of all sums to be paid or retained out of the First Award Fund.

Commissioners to ascertain boundaries.

5. The Commissioners of this Act shall forthwith proceed to ascertain, subject to the proviso in this section contained, the boundaries of the lands in the said Forest, uninclosed or which ought to be uninclosed, which lands so intended to be ascertained are hereinafter described as the uninclosed Forest, and to determine all claims relating to such boundaries, and for that purpose they may make use of or adopt the whole or any part of any existing maps, plans, or surveys at their discretion, which boundaries as ascertained by the Commissioners of this Act, shall be conclusively deemed to be the true boundaries of the uninclosed Forest for all the purposes of this Act. Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the Commissioners to include within the said boundaries any part of the shore of the sea, or of any creek, bay, or inlet thereof so far as the tide flows at the ordinary spring tides, but where the uninclosed Forest abuts upon any such shore, the line of high water at ordinary spring tides shall be ascertained by the Commissioners of this Act, and shall for the purposes of this Act, be taken to be the boundary of the uninclosed Forest, at the place or places where such line may be so ascertained.

Commissioners may sell land for paying expenses.

6. For the purpose of providing a fund, in this Act called the First Award Fund, to defray the costs and expenses preparatory and incidental to the passing of this Act, and the remuneration of the Commissioners of this Act, and the salary of their clerk, and the charges and expenses of any land surveyor and valuer, and any other reasonable expenses to be incurred by the Commissioners of this Act, up to the making of the first award, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of this Act, and they are hereby empowered, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained with respect to certain rights or claims of Thomas Arthur Corlett, to sell and dispose of any part or parts of the uninclosed Forest which they may deem necessary, by public auction, and after one month's notice in two of the newspapers published in the said Island, and subject to such conditions as to fencing, fencing, roads, or otherwise, as they may think proper; and every conveyance by the Commissioners of this Act shall be effectual to vest in the purchaser or purchasers the fee simple and inheritance in possession of the land sold (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, with the rights of working the same in this Act contained, and subject to such conditions as may be expressed in such conveyance); and the receipt of the Commissioners of this Act shall be a sufficient discharge for any purchase money, and no purchaser shall inquire as to the title to the land sold, or as to the necessity for the sale or the amount or extent thereof; and out of the moneys arising from any such sale or sales, the Commissioners of this Act shall pay or retain the said costs, charges, and expenses, remuneration, and salary; and if there shall be any balance of the moneys arising from any such sale or sales, after payment or satisfaction of the said costs, charges, expenses, remuneration, and salary, such balance shall be applied as the Commissioners of this Act may direct.

Commissioners may set out roads.

7. The Commissioners of this Act shall set out and allot, and may divert or stop up, such roads or ways, and may set out such fences and walls through or over any part of the uninclosed Forest, including the land which is the subject of the claims by the said Thomas Arthur Corlett in this Act referred to, as they shall think fit; and the Commissioners of this Act may, if they shall think fit, form and metal any roads or ways, and make any fences or walls which they may set out and allot, or divert, and may, if they shall think fit, declare the said roads or ways, or any of them, to be public highways, or may prescribe the mode in which and persons (including Her Majesty, her heirs and successors) by whom such roads or ways, or any of them, shall be enjoyed or used and kept in repair; and any roads or ways which the Commissioners of this Act shall declare to be public highways, shall, on the completion thereof, and on the making of the first award, become and be public highways, and shall be under the control and management of the Committee of Highways, in the same manner as other public highways in this Island, and the expenses of setting out and allotting, forming and metalling any such roads or ways, and making any such fences and walls, shall be deemed to be part of the expenses to be defrayed out of the First Award Fund; and the soil of any roads or ways which may be set out upon or adjacent to the allotment hereinafter directed to be made to the Queen's Majesty, shall be vested in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors.

Commissioners to receive evidence as to Crown rights, and to make allotment accordingly.

8. The Commissioners of this Act shall, at some convenient place within the said Island, hear and receive evidence as to the nature and value of the rights, estates, and interests of the Queen's Majesty in, upon, over, or in respect of the uninclosed Forest (other than the rights, estates, and interests of Her Majesty in and to the minerals and stone, and the rights of working the same hereinafter reserved to Her Majesty, and other than the manorial rights of Her Majesty in or in respect of the lands with reference to which any rights of common over the uninclosed Forest may be claimed), and shall by the first award allot to Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, such part or parts of the uninclosed Forest, not being now used as a turbary, and subject to the provisions in this Act contained with respect to the rights or claims of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, as they shall deem to be a sufficient and adequate compensation for the said rights, estates, and interests of Her Majesty other than and except as aforesaid; and the part or parts of the uninclosed Forest to be so allotted to Her Majesty shall, on the making of the first award, remain or be absolutely vested in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in her and their demesne as of fee, in right of the Crown, as part of the possessions and land revenues of the Crown not being a royal forest, park, or chase, freed and exonerated and for ever discharged from all rights of common, rights of way, and from all other rights of what nature or kind soever, and the residue of the uninclosed Forest (hereinafter called the Commoners' Allotment) which shall not have been sold by the Commissioners of this Act before the first award is made, and which shall not have been set out or allotted as roads or ways, or as compensation to Her Majesty, shall, on making the first award, and subject to the provision in this Act contained with respect to the rights or claims of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, be held by Her Majesty, her heirs and successors (until the same commoners' allotment is inclosed under the second award in this Act mentioned), in trust for the several persons for the time being entitled to rights of common over the uninclosed Forest, and freed and absolutely discharged from all forestal and other rights of the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors (except the rights of Her Majesty to the minerals and stone, and the rights of working the same by this Act reserved; and also except any manorial rights of Her Majesty in or in respect of the lands with reference to which such rights of common are claimed), and the pasturage and turbaries upon such commoners' allotment, until so inclosed as aforesaid, shall be enjoyed by the persons entitled to rights of common in the uninclosed Forest. Provided always, That in estimating the extent and value of the allotment to be so made as aforesaid to the Queen's Majesty, the Commissioners of this Act shall have regard not only to the value of the rights and interests of Her Majesty to be compensated by such allotment, and the value of any rights of common over the uninclosed Forest, but also to the value of the uninclosed Forest if the same were held in severalty, to the intent that the value of the uninclosed Forest (subject to the provisions of this Act as to sales, roads, or ways, and the rights of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, and subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, and the right of working the same, and her manorial rights) may be fairly and justly apportioned between the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors, on the one hand, and any persons entitled to rights of common over such uninclosed Forest, on the other hand.

Commissioners to ascertain and decide on claims of Thomas Arthur Corlett.

9. And whereas, by certain licenses or instruments, under the hands respectively of the Honourable Charles Alexander Gore and the Honourable James Kenneth Howard, Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, permission has been granted to the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, the vicar-general of the said Island, to inclose certain land in the parish of Lezayre in the said Island, and divers proceedings have been taken in reference to such licenses; but the inclosure thereby authorised has not yet been made, and it is desirable that the validity of the claims of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett in reference to such licenses should be ascertained. Therefore, the Commissioners of this Act shall make inquiry and receive evidence in the said Island in regard to the rights or claims of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, his heirs or assigns, with respect to the premises, and shall decide thereon; and in case the Commissioners of this Act shall find that the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, his heirs or assigns, could lawfully proceed to inclose the land described in the said licenses, subject to the due reservation of all lawful highways, watercourses, and turbaries, the Commissioners of this Act shall allot the same land to the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, his heirs or assigns, reserving all lawful highways, watercourses, and turbaries; and on making the first award such land shall in that case be freed and absolutely discharged from all rights and claims of common, rights of way, and other rights or claims whatsoever of any of Her Majesty's subjects, but shall be held by the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, his heirs or assigns, subject to the rights of Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and to the conditions of any agreement with respect to the said land which he may have entered into with the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, or either of them; but if the Commissioners of this Act shall find that the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, his heirs or assigns, could not lawfully proceed to inclose the land described in the said licenses, subject to the due reservation of all lawful highways, watercourses, and turbaries, then the land described in the said licenses shall be deemed to be part of the uninclosed Forest, and may be dealt with under the provisions of this Act as if no license had ever been granted to the said Thomas Arthur Corlett: and in that event all licenses granted, deeds entered into, and agreements made by or between either of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, and the said Thomas Arthur Corlett, and all proceedings taken thereon with reference to the said land shall, on making the first award, become null and void, and cease and determine.

Commissioners to decide as to rights of digging stone.

10. And whereas divers of Her Majesty's subjects in the said Island claim to be entitled to a right of digging or taking stone from the uninclosed Forest, or some parts thereof, for their own use or their neighbours' use, and it is desirable that the validity of such claims should be ascertained, and that such provision with respect thereto should be made as is hereinafter contained. Therefore, the Commissioners of this Act shall make inquiry and receive evidence in the said Island as to the rights so claimed and shall decide thereon, and as to the persons (if any) entitled to such rights.

Power to appeal in certain cases to Her Majesty in Council.

11. If it shall happen that any person or persons shall be dissatisfied with any decision of the Commissioners of this Act upon any of the matters in the next section enumerated, then and in every such case they shall on the application of any person or persons desiring to appeal from any such decision as aforesaid, including among such persons the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, or either of them, on behalf of Her Majesty, her heirs and successors (such application to be made in writing within two calendar months after the decision is given), prepare a case to be submitted to and decided on by Her Majesty in Council, and such decision shall be taken to be the decision of the Commissioners of this Act, and the first award shall be accordingly made or varied as Her Majesty in Council shall direct.

Definition of cases in which right of appeal to exist.

12. The matters upon which the decisions of the Commissioners of this Act shall be subject to such appeal to Her Majesty in Council as in this Act provided, shall be the following, that is to say:—With respect to the existence of the right claimed by Her Majesty to inclose, or approve, or to grant licenses to Her Majesty's subjects to inclose or approve parts of the said uninclosed Forest. With respect to the rights or claims of the said Thomas Arthur Corlett under or by virtue of the licenses granted to him by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues as in this Act mentioned, and with respect to the rights or claims of certain of Her Majesty's subjects in the said Island to dig or take stone from the uninclosed Forest for their own or their neighbours' use.

Security to be given for costs of appeal.

13. Every such application for a case by way of appeal as aforesaid, except when made on the behalf of Her Majesty, shall be accompanied by the names of two persons who are willing to join as sureties for the applicant in giving a bond (to be prepared by the Commissioners of this Act) to Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, to answer such costs and expenses of the appeal as may be directed to be paid by the applicant, and every such surety shall be subject to the approval of the Commissioners of this Act, and in case such bond shall not in any case be duly executed by the applicant and his sureties, and delivered to the Commissioners of this Act within the space of 21 days after the application for a case is made, such application shall be considered as abandoned.

Evidence of decisions of Commissioners.

14. Until the first award has been made any memorandum in writing under the hands of the Commissioners of this Act, or any two of them, shall be sufficient evidence of any decision of such Commissioners.

First award to be made.

15. The Commissioners of this Act shall make their award in writing, in this Act called the First Award, and such award shall be executed in duplicate, and shall, subject to the provision in this Act contained with respect to appeals in certain cases to Her Majesty in Council, be binding and conclusive to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and one part thereof shall be deposited at the Office of Land Revenue Records, and Enrolments, and the other part thereof shall be deposited at the Rolls Office, to remain at such offices respectively of record, and to be examined by all persons at all reasonable times, on payment of a fee of 1 s. for each such examination; and when either part of the first award has been deposited as hereby directed, the fact of such deposit shall be conclusive evidence of the due appointment of the Commissioners of this Act, and of such award having been duly made and executed in accordance with the terms of this Act, and of all the provisions of this Act in relation to such award having been duly complied with.

Upon the making of the first award the uninclosed Forest to be disafforested.

16. Upon the making of the first award the uninclosed Forest shall be disafforested, and the office of forester shall no longer be exercised over any part thereof except over the commoners' allotment, and over such allotment only until the making of the second award in this Act mentioned; and after the making of such last-mentioned award the same office shall be no longer exercised over any part of the uninclosed Forest, and the profits of such office in respect of the same allotment shall, after the making of the first award, be receivable from time to time by the Committee of Highways in the said Island, who shall apply such profits as they may think expedient in the improvement of the commoners' allotment, or in the maintenance and repair of any highways; and subject thereto, the person for the time being holding the office of forester shall, until the said commoners' allotment has been inclosed under the second award, continue to have such and the like powers, rights, and duties over or in respect of the commoners' allotment to be exercised for the benefit of the persons entitled to rights of common thereon as he now by law has over or in respect of the Forest in the said Island.

After making first award, the Third Commissioner to ascertain persons entitled to rights of commons.

17. As soon as conveniently may be after the completion of the first award, the Third Commissioner shall proceed to ascertain and award (such award being in this Act called the second award) the several persons entitled to rights of common over the uninclosed Forest, or any part thereof, and shall hear and receive evidence within the said Island for that purpose, and shall also ascertain the proportion in which such several persons are entitled to such rights of common, and (subject to the provisions in this Act contained with respect to the sale of land for the payment of the expenses of and incident to the second award; and with respect to the setting out of roads or ways, turbaries and stone quarries) shall divide and allot the commoners' allotment between and among the several persons whom the Third Commissioner may find entitled to rights of common over the uninclosed Forest, according to the several proportions in which they may be respectively entitled to such rights, subject to such conditions as to making or maintaining fences, roads, or as to rights of way, or otherwise, as the Third Commissioner may think proper; and every allotment to be so made by the Third Commissioner shall on the making of the second award vest in the person or persons to whom the same shall be made, and shall be held (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, and the rights of working the same in this Act contained) to and for the same or the like uses, trusts, and purposes, and subject to the same charges and incumbrances, and to the same manorial rights, as the land in respect of which such allotment may be made.

The Third Commissioner may set out turbaries.

18. The Third Commissioner shall (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, and the rights of working the same in this Act contained) set out in the commoners' allotment such and so many convenient turbaries as he may deem necessary, and may make such rules and regulations, and impose and prescribe such penalties in regard to the mode in which and persons by whom the said turbaries shall be used, and the right to the pasturage thereof, as he may think proper and reasonable, provided the same are not inconsistent with an Act of Tynwald promulgated on the 30th day of January 1852, intituled, "An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Commons and Turbaries," and all rules and regulations, and penalties to be so made and prescribed or imposed shall be as valid and effectual as if they were inserted in this Act; and such turbaries shall continue to be held by Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in trust for the several persons for the time being entitled to rights of turbary.

The Third Commissioner may set out roads on commoners' allotment.

19. The Third Commissioner shall set out and allot such roads or ways, or fences or walls through or over any part of the commoners' allotment as he shall think fit; and the same Commissioner may, if he shall think fit, form and metal any roads or ways, or make any walls or fences which he may set out and allot, and may if he shall think fit declare any of the said roads or ways to be public highways, or may prescribe the mode in which, and persons (including Her Majesty, her heirs and successors) by whom, such roads or ways, or any of them, shall be enjoyed or used; and any roads or ways which the Third Commissioner shall declare to be public highways, or a public highway, shall, on the making of the second award, become and be public highways or a public highway, and shall be under the control and management of the committee of highways in the same manner as other public highways in this Island, and the expenses of setting out, allotting, forming, and metalling any such roads or ways, and of making any such fences or walls, shall be deemed to be part of the expenses to be defrayed out of the Second Award Fund by this Act directed to be raised.

Provision for expenses of second award.

20. For the purpose of providing a fund, in this Act called the Second Award Fund, for payment of the costs and expenses preparatory and incident to the second award, and the remuneration of the Third Commissioner in this Act mentioned, and the salary of any any clerk, or the charges and expenses of any land surveyor and valuer to be employed by such Commissioner, and other reasonable expenses to be incurred by him, it shall be lawful for the Third Commissioner, and he is hereby empowered, to sell and dispose of any part or parts of the commoners' allotment which he may deem necessary, by public auction, after one month's notice in two of the newspapers published in the said Island, and subject to such conditions as to fencing, roads, or otherwise, as he may think proper; and every conveyance by the Third Commissioner shall be effectual to vest in the purchaser or purchasers the right and title to the land sold (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, with the rights of working the same in this Act contained, and subject to the manorial rights to which the commoners' allotment is subject, and to such conditions as may be expressed in such conveyance), and the receipt of the Third Commissioner shall be a sufficient discharge for any purchase money, and no purchaser shall inquire as to the title to the land sold, or as to the necessity for the sale, and out of the moneys arising from any such sale or sales, the Third Commissioner shall pay or retain the said costs, charges, and expenses, remuneration, and salary, subject to the allowance by the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales of all sums to be so paid and retained; and if there shall be any balance of the moneys arising from any such sale or sales, after payment or satisfaction of the said costs, expenses, remuneration, and salary, such balance shall be applied as the Third Commissioner may direct.

Remuneration of the Third Commissioner.

21. Out of the Second Award Fund the Third Commissioner shall be paid, or shall be entitled to retain, such a sum not exceeding 300 l. (over and above his remuneration relative to the first award), as the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales shall think reasonable by way of remuneration for the time and labour which may be bestowed by him preparatory and incident to the second award, and there shall out of the same fund be paid to any clerk who may be employed by the Third Commissioner, such a sum not exceeding 100 l., as the Third Commissioner may think reasonable; and such Commissioner shall out of the same fund also pay or retain all costs and expenses of employing any land surveyor and valuer, preparatory or in relation to the second award, and all other reasonable expenses to be incurred by the Third Commissioner in reference to such award.

Second award to be made.

22. The Third Commissioner shall make his award in writing, in this Act called the Second Award, and such award shall be binding and conclusive to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and shall be deposited at the Rolls Office, there to remain of record, and to be examined by all persons at all reasonable times on payment of a fee of 1 s. for each such examination; and when such award has been so deposited, the fact of such deposit shall be conclusive evidence that such award has been duly made and executed, in accordance with the terms of this Act, and that all the provisions of this Act in relation to such award have been duly complied with.

Power for the Commissioners to take evidence.

23. The Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, may examine witnesses upon oath or declaration, as they may think fit, and for that purpose may administer or take any oaths or declarations; and if any person examined on his or her oath or declaration under the provisions of this Act shall wilfully give false evidence, or shall wilfully make or subscribe a false declaration, he or she shall be guilty of perjury, in case he or she shall have been sworn, or of a misdemeanour, if he or she shall have made a declaration, and upon conviction, shall be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years.

Power to send for persons and papers.

24. It shall be lawful for the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, by a summons under the hand of any one of them, or of such Third Commissioner, to require the attendance before them or him, at a place within the said Island, and time to be mentioned in the summons, of any person whomsoever, and to require all persons to bring before them or him such books, papers, maps, plans, and writings, as are necessary for arriving at the truth of the matters to be inquired into by the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, which persons shall attend the Commissioners of this Act or the Third Commissioner, and shall answer all questions put to them touching the matters to be inquired into, and shall, according to the tenor of the summons, produce all books, papers, maps, plans, and writings required of them, and in their custody, or under their control.

Penalty for non-attendance or refusing to give evidence.

25. If any person on whom any summons shall have been served by the delivery thereof to him, or by the leaving thereof at his usual place of abode, fail to appear before the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, at the time and place specified in such summons, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of this Act or the Third Commissioner, to certify such default under their hands, or under the hand of any one of them to the Lieutenant-Governor, and thereupon a writ of contempt for non-appearance shall be issued against such person in the usual form, and he shall thereupon be brought up before the said Commissioners or Commissioner; and if any person so summoned to attend as aforesaid, and having appeared before the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, shall refuse to be sworn or to make answers to such questions as are put to him by the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, touching the matters in question, or to produce and show to the Commissioners of this Act, or the Third Commissioner, any paper, book, map, plan, or writing being in his possession or under his control which the Commissioners of this Act or the Third Commissioner may deem necessary to be produced, or if any person shall be guilty of any contempt of the Commissioners sioners of this Act or the Third Commissioner, in their or his office, the Commissioners of this Act or the Third Commissioner shall have such and the same powers to be exercised in the same way as the Court of Exchequer of this Island may now have in like cases.

Reservation of minerals to Crown.

26. Subject to the provision in this Act contained with respect to the right claimed of digging or taking stone from the uninclosed Forest, all royal and other mines, and all iron, copper, tin, lead, zinc, antimony, manganese, and the ores of such metals respectively, and all other metals and metallic ores, and all ochre, coal, and other mineral substances of what nature or kind soever, and whether such metallic and other minerals may be found alone or in conjunction with any other substance, and all stone of whatsoever description, and all substrata of whatsoever description, within or under, or upon any part of the uninclosed Forest, whether the same shall under the provisions of this Act be allotted to the Queen's Majesty or her successors, or shall form part of the Commoners' Allotment, or shall be sold to provide the Award Fund, or shall be set out or allotted as roads, ways, or fences, are by this Act absolutely reserved to and declared to be vested in the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors. The said reserved premises are in this Act called "minerals and stone."

Power to work such minerals.

27. It shall be lawful for the Queen's Majesty, her heirs, successors, or assigns, or for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues for the time being, or either of them, or her, their, or his grantees, lessees, tenants, servants, agents, or workmen, at all or any time or times hereafter, and with or without horses or other animals, or carriages, materials or substances of any kind, to enter upon the said lands in this Act called the uninclosed Forest, the boundaries whereof shall so be ascertained as aforesaid, or any part thereof, and to break the surface thereof and search for, win, work, take, and carry away the said minerals and stone by this Act reserved to Her Majesty, or any of them, and for that purpose to dig, sink, drive, and make pits, shafts, drifts, headways, levels, adits, air-gates, water-courses, ponds, soughs, trenches, buddles, fences, and sluices, and to erect, build, and make pumps, engines, furnaces, smelting-houses, stamping-mills, ore and store houses, sheds, hovels, cottages, or houses for workmen or other servants, and stables and other erections, and to do all things necessary or convenient as well for working the said minerals as for refining the metals, hewing and working the stone and other substrata, and removing all the water, slag, and rubbish from the works, and for the accommodation of the persons employed therein, and to occupy such part of the said uninclosed Forest as shall be convenient and sufficient for laying, ordering, and dressing the minerals and stone, and if judged necessary to alter the course of streams, and to make, maintain, repair, and use any railroads or other roads for the purposes aforesaid, and generally to do all other things necessary or convenient for the sinking, winning, working, and carrying away the said minerals and stone, and for refining the metals and minerals, and hewing and working the stone and other substrata thereby produced. Provided always that where any stream shall have been diverted under the powers of this Act, the water of the same or so much thereof as shall not have been actually consumed shall be restored to the ancient channel of such stream as near as conveniently may be to the place at which the same shall have been used.

How damages to be assessed.

28. All such damage as may at any time, and from time to time be done to any land not being part of the allotment to be made to Her Majesty by any of the means aforesaid, shall after the making of the second award be assessed and raised as follows (that is to say), it shall be lawful for any person who may sustain any such damage as aforesaid, to apply by petition to a deemster (ten days' previous notice of such intended application having been fixed on the usual place for posting public notices near the church of the parish), and such deemster shall and is hereby empowered to examine and inquire into such complaint in a summary way, and by examination of witnesses upon oath or by such other evidence as he shall think proper, and such deemster shall determine the amount of such damage, and order the payment thereof to the party damaged by the persons, and in the manner hereinafter expressed.

Payment of damages.

29. Every sum of money to be paid in satisfaction of such damages, and the reasonable charges of giving and prosecuting such information (to be settled by the said deemster), shall be borne and paid by the owners for the time being of all the lands in this Act called the uninclosed Forest (other than the Queen's Majesty, her heirs, successors, or assigns, or her, or their lessees or tenants), or the tenants of the said owners, including the owner of the allotment damaged or his tenant, by a rate to be assessed upon them in respect of their allotments or their shares therein by such deemster, according to the respective yearly values thereof, which shall be ascertained in manner hereinafter in that behalf directed or referred to, provided that no part of the allotment by this Act directed to be made to Her Majesty shall be assessed or assessable to any such rate.

How to be levied.

30. In case any person who shall be charged to any such rate as aforesaid shall refuse or neglect to pay the same, within a time to be limited by the said deemster, to the person for the time being entitled to such payment, such person may recover the same by suit in the deemster's or high bailiff's court in the usual manner, according to the amount of the claim, and in case any occupying tenant of any hereditaments constituting or being part of any of the said lands liable to be assessed to any such rate as aforesaid, shall pay any part of such rate as aforesaid, every such occupier shall be at liberty to deduct the same out of his next rent, and his landlord shall allow such deduction, unless there shall be some provision to the contrary in the lease or agreement under which such hereditaments are held by such occupier.

Annual value of certain allotments to be stated in second award.

31. The Third Commissioner shall by the second award ascertain and determine the proportionate shares of any such rate as aforesaid to be paid in respect of each of the allotments to be set out under the second award, as well as in respect of any part or parts of the uninclosed Forest which may have been sold to provide the first award fund, or the second award fund, and the average annual value per acre of each allotment, or of such part or parts as last aforesaid at the time of making his award, and such average annual value shall thereafter be taken to be the yearly value per acre of such allotment or part or parts as aforesaid for the purpose of the assessment of the same to the rate by this Act imposed thereon in the cases hereinbefore provided for.

The Commissioners to describe boundaries of parishes, and may straighten boundaries or allot old inclosures with consent.

32. The Commissioners of this Act shall, by the first award or any plan or plans to be therein referred to, ascertain and define the boundaries of the parish or parishes within which the uninclosed Forest or any part thereof is situate, and the Commissioners of this Act by the first award may with the consent in writing of the person for the time being entitled for life or any greater estate to any land adjoining the uninclosed Forest, or of the guardian or guardians of such person, if an infant, define a new line of boundary between such uninclosed Forest and such adjoining land for the purpose of straightening or rendering the boundary between the same more convenient, and may, with the like consent of the person entitled for life or any greater estate to any inclosed land in the said Island treat such land as part of the uninclosed Forest, and may sell or allot the same accordingly, and may make to such person such allotment of part of the uninclosed Forest as the Commissioners of this Act may think reasonable; and the said award shall be conclusive evidence that such consents as aforesaid have been duly obtained.

Any portion of the Forest which may not remain the property of Her Majesty shall be held to be of the nature of intack land.

33. All land being part of the uninclosed Forest, except the land allotted to Her Majesty while it continues to be the property of Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall hereafter be deemed and held to be land of the nature of intack land, and shall be subject to the course of descent and to all other rights, liabilities, and incidents by the laws and customs of this Island attached to and connected with land of the description of intack land, and shall be liable to all rates and assessments now incumbent upon intack land in proportion thereto, for which purpose land of an annual average value of 100 l. ascertained by the Third Commissioner as hereinbefore provided, shall be deemed equal to a quarterland, and so in proportion for a greater or less value.

Recovering of penalties.

34. All the penalties to be prescribed or imposed by the first award or the second award shall be recoverable by Her Majesty's Attorney General for the Isle of Man in a summary way by petition to any deemster or high bailiff according to their respective jurisdictions, with such costs of suit not exceeding 5 l. in any one case as such deemster or high bailiff may think reasonable, and one moiety of any penalty which may be so recovered shall be paid to the informer or informers, as such Attorney General may direct, and the other moiety shall be paid to the committee of highways in the said Island and shall be applied in the formation, maintenance, or repair of the highways in the said Island.

Saving rights of Crown.

35. Nothing in this Act contained shall abrogate, prejudice, or in any manner affect any estate, right, title, or interest of the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors, in or to any part of the Forest in the Isle of Man which is now inclosed or which may not be dealt with under the provisions of this Act, or in or to any manorial rights of Her Majesty in respect of any lands with reference to which any rights of common may exist or be claimed.

Short title.

36. It shall be sufficient for all purposes to cite this Act as "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860."

Promulgated the 13th November, 1860.

Enclosure 2.

Isle of Man Disafforesting Commission,
3, Garden Court, Temple, E.C.,
28 July 1863.

Sir,

As your Excellency's position has necessarily led you to take some interest in the proceedings of this Commission and in the probable result of the operations for carrying out the provisions of the Act of Tynwald of 1860, the Commissioners have thought it right to submit for your information a short statement of the progress made towards the completion of their labours.

The duties of the Commissioners comprised—

1. The determination of the proper boundaries of "The Forest."

2. The

2. The decision of certain questions of mixed law and fact in dispute between the Crown and the commoners, which decision was subject to an appeal to the Privy Council.

3. The construction of roads and sale of lands to defray expenses.

4. The allotment of the residue of the Forest between the Crown and the commoners according to the relative value of their interests.

On the 15th May 1861 the Commissioners held their first meeting at Douglas, and shortly after proceeded to perambulate the whole of the Forest boundary, in extent somewhat more than 72 miles.

With a view to save time and expense, the Commissioners, at this stage of their proceedings, adopted some large maps, constructed in 1827, for the late Duke of Athol, by a surveyor of the name of Vignolles. From these documents it appeared that the whole extent of land included in "The Forest" at that period was as follows:—

	Acres.
Northern mountains	19,601
Southern mountains	8,320
Ayr lands	1,190
"The Mooragh," near Ramsey	33
TOTAL	29,144

Having carefully inspected the position of the existing mountain fences, and at various meetings at Douglas, Castletown and Ramsey, received and adjudicated upon a multiplicity of claims brought before them by intack holders and others the Commissioners were enabled to define with accuracy the true boundary line of the lands described in the Act as "uninclosed or which ought to be uninclosed."

During these proceedings three distinct classes or sets of claims were preferred. The first class consisted of holders of licenses to inclose, who had complied with the conditions expressed in their respective licenses and who were in possession of the inclosures. The second class were license-holders who could identify the lands which were the subject of their licenses, but who had not inclosed them, and the third class comprised claimants whose vague claims seemed to extend over all the Forest, and who produced licenses to inclose without showing to what lands they applied, and without even negativing the presumption that they applied to lands long since taken out of the Forest, and enjoyed as old inclosures. The antiquity of some of these licenses rendered this the only probable explanation of them.

This third class seemed to have been created or greatly augmented by the new value about to be given to these wastes by the Disafforesting Commission, but their claims were not supported by any evidence on which the Commissioners could act, nor did they commend themselves to the minds of the Commissioners as being claims supported by any strong consideration of equity.

The second class of cases in which the claimants had not inclosed their lands, although able to give some evidence as to the localities to which their licenses applied, did not comprehend any very large tract. In this class the Commissioners, so far as they could, strained their powers in order to make some equitable adjustments; and when this was found to be impracticable they set out the disputed plots as sale allotments, thus enabling the claimants to purchase them at a moderate price.

Out of the whole body of claimants the Commissioners admitted the validity of intacks within the old Forest wall, and portion of the land which had been within memory part of the Forest to the extent in the aggregate of 4,444 acres 2 roods.

The Commissioners held meetings to hear appeals against their draft boundary award, and on the 24th August 1861, after duly entertaining all objections, they signed their declaration of the boundaries of "The Forest."

The different portions being now reduced by the allowance of so many claims amounted to 25,699 acres 2 roods.

During their sojourn in the Isle of Man, from the 17th to the 24th August, the Commissioners also held meetings at which they heard at length the several questions of mixed law and fact submitted to their decision by the Act of Tynwald, and made subject to appeal to the Privy Council.

On the 13th September 1861 they signed and published their memorandum of decision relative to those questions. A copy of this document I had the honour of transmitting to your Excellency in May last.

Against this decision no appeal was made, and the time having long since expired the matters comprehended in this memorandum are now finally settled.

It will be observed that the allowance of the claims of so many intack holders, and the decision in favour of the late Vicar General, must have proceeded upon a body of evidence to the effect that the Lord of Man had from time immemorial been accustomed to issue licenses to inclose upon a reserved rent; but this seemed to reduce the rights of the Commissioners almost to nil; in fact, the commoners' user now became, so far as the pasture is concerned, a mere enjoyment upon sufferance. However, there had been an enjoyment, and under the circumstances the Commissioners suggested that although they could not, having regard to the legal rights of the parties, give the commoners so much, yet it would be an act of substantial justice to divide the residuum of the Forest between the commoners and the Crown. The Crown conceded this, the commoners accepted it, and the division will be made accordingly.

The next step was to give some value to these lands. When the Commissioners first came into the Island they were assured by gentlemen of great authority and experience that the mountains were not worth ten shillings an acre. They determined to make the land valuable by making it accessible. Without good roads, and plenty of them, it was plain that the land would neither sell for any price nor would it be worth anything when allotted. The Commissioners had taken occasion at the previous meetings to ascertain as far as possible the feeling of the inhabitants of the Island generally on the subject of the roads required to be made over the mountains, and of the direction they should respectively take.

This topic, upon several occasions and in several places, was fully and publicly discussed and considered in all its bearings. The surveyor to the Commission was, moreover, constantly in communication with the committee of highways, and all persons likely to be interested or conversant in the matter were invited to assist the Commissioners with suggestions.

At a Board meeting held on the 3d October 1861, the report of the surveyor upon the proposed system of roads was received and approved, and he was accordingly directed to prepare maps for deposit, showing the various lines of road recommended, and further to survey the land for the purpose of selecting the most favourable gradients.

By the 10th April 1863, the preliminary surveys and maps having been completed, and advertisements for tenders for the required works having been inserted in "The Times" of the 24th and 25th February, "The Mona's Herald" of the 26th February, and "The Manx Sun" of the 8th and 14th of March, the Commissioners proceeded to open the tenders sent in for the first system of roads (557 chains in length) in the Southern Mountains. These tenders were all from well-known contractors, but exhibited a remarkable and perhaps even an unexampled discrepancy.

The highest amounting to - - - - - - - -	£. 9,177
The next to - - - - - - - - -	6,799
The third to - - - - - - - - -	5,100
The fourth to - - - - - - - - -	3,191
The fifth and lowest (from Messrs. Eustace of Oxfordshire) to	1,980

a sum actually less by 65 l. than the amount which an experienced surveyor had computed to be a fair remuneration for the required work.

The tender of Messrs. Eustace was accordingly accepted for these roads, and subsequently for similar reasons their tenders for the other roads were also adopted. The contracts now made amount in the whole to 27 miles.

Regular and formal agreements were entered into with them, and they provided sureties under penalties for the due completion of the roads within a specified time. In addition to the surveyor to the Commission, a competent resident inspector was appointed to superintend the execution of the works in all their details, and to see that the drains, culverts, earthworks, embankments, &c., were properly and substantially constructed; and I am enabled myself confidently to state, from a recent personal inspection of the whole of the completed roads, that the contractors have discharged their duties most faithfully and satisfactorily.

The roads included in the first and second contracts have been finished some time; those in the third contract are making rapid progress, and will in all probability be completed by December next. Their cost will be as follows:—

1st Contract - - - - -	557	23	1,930	10	6
Culverts, earthworks, &c. - -	-	- -	476	15	4

						1,579	8	6
3d Contract - - - - -	1,243	28	6,602	17	1
Culverts, earthworks (the cost not yet precisely ascertainable) say.	-	- -	1,410	8	7
						8,013	5	8
			TOTAL - - - £.			12,000	–	–

This amount will be exceeded if a further piece of road, which has been applied for should be made.

There

There is also an additional sum for keeping these roads in repair until the Commissioners hand them over.

The cost of these roads without culverts, &c., will therefore average throughout the whole extent about 4 s. 1¼ d. per yard, and including embankments, earthworks, and extras about 5 s. per yard.

To defray the cost of the roads and the other incidental expenses of the Commission, land has been sold to the extent altogether up to the present time of 5,386 a. 2 r. 24 p., realising 17,465 l. 8 s.

The Commissioners have, therefore, by means of good communications raised these lands from an estimated value of 10 s. an acre to a value tested by actual sales of 3 l. 5 s. an acre.

A further allotment of 2,971 acres has been set apart for sale on 12th August next, but it is most probable that the whole of this land will not have to be put up to auction.

The proposed allotment to the Crown as at present intended to be set out comprises 8,200 acres, and that to the commoners 7,700 acres. This discrepancy in extent is equalized by the quality and especially by the superior value of "the Mooragh."

Of course these allotments are subject to alteration upon sufficient cause shown by evidence at the appeal meeting on the 15th August, and will be moreover subject to proportionate increase upon reduction of the sale allotments above alluded to.

A very large extent of the sale allotments (upwards of 2,500 acres) has been bought by the Crown, but this was under peculiar circumstances.

The Commissioners had the whole of the land to be sold carefully valued, and upon this valuation fixed reserved biddings.

They found, however, that by reason of what they could not help suspecting to be some combination in the Island, they could obtain at the second auction no bidding approximating to the true value of the land, and the necessity seemed to threaten of being obliged to sacrifice an enormous proportion of the commons to raise the required funds. Individual speculators to a very small extent from outside the Island created some, but not a sufficient competition. The Commissioners were obliged to lay the case before the Officers of Woods, who, finding that the lands were really fully worth the reserved prices put upon them by the surveyor to the Commissioners, enabled them to defeat the combination by taking the lands at the upset prices when no other bidders offered. Even thus the land has been disposed of much more cheaply than the Commissioners could have wished, and there is no doubt but that the Crown will be enabled to resell to purchasers at a considerable profit.

The Commissioners are sanguine that the result of their labours will be, that by dealing with 25,000 acres of unprofitable land which was yearly becoming, by paring off the surface and soil, permanently worthless, they will have created a complete system of communications throughout the Island; will have rendered the whole commons available as sheep-farms or as inclosures; will have commuted the rights of the Crown, which, in strict legality, almost amounted to the proprietorship of the Forest, and will have handed over 8,000 acres of valuable land to the Crown, and other 8,000 acres to the inhabitants, applicable to any public purposes to which the Legislature of the Island may hereafter think fit to appropriate it.

Enclosure 3.

AN ACT for making COMPENSATION for certain CLAIMS in regard to certain LANDS affected by the "ISLE OF MAN DISAFFORESTING ACT, 1860."

ISLE OF MAN TO WIT.

AT a Tynwald Court, holden at Castle Rushen, the 17th day of March, in the 27th year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lady Victoria, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, and in the year of Our Lord 1864, before His Excellency Henry Brougham Loch, Companion of the Most Honourable the Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor, the Council, Deemsters, and Keys.

WHEREAS by the 5th section of "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," the Commissioners for carrying the same into execution were directed to ascertain, subject to the proviso in that section contained, the boundaries of the lands in the Forest in the Isle of Man uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed, which lands so intended to be ascertained were thereinafter called the uninclosed Forest, and to determine all claims relating to such boundaries, which boundaries as ascertained by the said Commissioners, it was enacted should be conclusively deemed to be the true boundaries of the uninclosed Forest, for for all the purposes of that Act: Provided, that it should not be lawful for the said Commissioners to include within the said boundaries any part of the shore of the sea, or of any creek, bay, or inlet thereof, so far as the tide flowed at ordinary spring tides. And by the 6th section of the same Act, the Commissioners were empowered, subject, as in the said Act is mentioned, to sell any part of the uninclosed Forest to defray expenses. And by the 8th section of the same Act, the said Commissioners were directed to receive evidence as to the nature and value of the rights of Her Majesty in the uninclosed Forest (other than the rights in the same section specified), and to allot to Her Majesty such part of the uninclosed Forest, subject as in the said Act mentioned, as the said Commissioners should deem to be a sufficient and adequate compensation for the said rights of Her Majesty. And by the said Act it was enacted that the part of the uninclosed Forest to be so allotted to Her Majesty should, on the making of the first award in the said Act mentioned, remain or be absolutely vested in Her Majesty in right of the Crown, as part of the possessions and land revenues of the Crown, freed from all rights and claims whatsoever, and that the residue of the uninclosed Forest in the said Act called the Commoners' Allotment (after making the sales and allotments in the said Act mentioned) should, on making the first award, and subject as in the said Act mentioned, be held by Her Majesty (until the same might be inclosed under the second award in the said Act mentioned) in trust for the several persons for the time being entitled to rights of common over the uninclosed Forest. And by the 14th section of the same Act it was provided that, until the first award had been made, any memorandum in writing under the hands of the Commissioners of that Act, or any two of them, should be sufficient evidence of any decision of such Commissioners. And by the said Act, after the making of the first award, the Commissioner in the said Act called the Third Commissioner, was directed to ascertain by the award in the said Act called the second award, the several persons entitled to rights of common over the uninclosed Forest, and to divide and allot the Commoners' Allotment among such persons, to set out turbaries, roads, ways, and fences, and to sell land for payment of expenses. And whereas George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, Esquires, Barristers-at-Law, were respectively duly appointed Commissioners to carry the said recited Act into execution, the said Nathan Wetherell holding the office of Third Commissioner mentioned in the said Act: And whereas by a memorandum in writing, dated the 24th day of August 1861, under the hands of the said George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, as such Commissioners as aforesaid (and who are in this Act called the said Commissioners), the said Commissioners, after reciting that they had ascertained the boundaries of the lands in the said Forest uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed, did thereby make their declaration of the boundaries of the uninclosed Forest in manner therein mentioned: And the said Commissioners further declared that it was their intention that their declaration should be construed with reference to certain plans or maps thereunto annexed, and that in case of any doubt or ambiguity arising from any statement in that declaration, the boundary line indicated on the said plans or maps was on all occasions to be deemed to afford conclusive evidence as to the direction of the true boundary line of the said uninclosed Forest. And whereas the said Commissioners have taken divers proceedings under the recited Act, but they have not yet made their first award pursuant thereto: And whereas certain claims were made before the said Commissioners to portions of the uninclosed Forest as defined by the recited Act and by the said declaration of boundaries, upon the alleged grounds that licenses granted by or on behalf of the lord for the time being of the Isle of Man were in existence authorising the inclosure of the lands therein, and in the said claims described, under which licenses the claimants were entered as tenants on the lord's books, and had regularly paid rent to the lord or lady of the Isle for the time being, and some of the said claims were disallowed by the said Commissioners: And whereas it is reasonable that such compensation in respect of certain of the said claims so disallowed, and of such other claims as may hereafter be made and allowed, should be made as is by this Act provided: We, therefore, your Majesty's most dutiful and loving subjects, the Lieutenant Governor, Council, Deemsters, and Keys of the said Isle in Tynwald assembled, do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lieutenant Governor, Council, Deemsters, and Keys, and by the authority of the same, as follows, that is to say:

1. After the promulgation of this Act, the provisions of the same shall be carried into execution by the Third Commissioner for the time being under "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," who is in this Act called the Commissioner.

2. The Commissioner may from time to time employ a land surveyor and valuer.

3. Out of the monies hereinafter mentioned, and called the Compensation Fund, the Commissioner shall be paid or shall be entitled to retain such a sum not exceeding 200 l. as the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales shall think reasonable by way of remuneration for the time and labour which may be bestowed by him in carrying this Act into execution. And the Commissioner shall also, out of the same fund, pay or retain all costs and expenses of employing any land surveyor and valuer, and all other reasonable expenses to be incurred by the Commissioner in the performance of his duties under this Act, subject to the allowance by the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales of all sums to be paid or retained out of the Compensation Fund.

4. The

4. The Commissioner shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the promulgation of this Act, give public notice in two or more newspapers published in the Isle of Man, for all persons who deem themselves to have been injuriously affected in manner hereinbefore recited by the fifth section of the recited Act, to send in to him the Commissioner at such place within the said Isle as he shall appoint their claims to compensation under this Act within a period of not less than one calendar month nor more than three calendar months from the date of the first publication of such notice, and no claim shall be investigated or allowed by the Commissioner unless the same shall have been received by him before the expiration of the period mentioned in the said notice, nor unless the claim is accompanied by a plan accurately defining the land in respect of which compensation is claimed, and copies of all such claims and plans shall be furnished by the Third Commissioner to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues.

5. As soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of such notice as aforesaid, but not less than one calendar month thereafter, the Commissioner shall hold a meeting or meetings from time to time in the said Isle to hear evidence in support of the said claims, and with which evidence the claimants are to be then and there prepared, and to hear any objections to such claims, and as soon as conveniently may be after such meeting or meetings the Commissioner shall decide on such claims. And subject to the limitations in this Act specified the Commissioner may allow such of the said claims as may be established to his satisfaction.

6. The Commissioner shall not allow a claim to compensation in any of the following cases, that is to say, he shall not allow any claim,—

1. Unless the claim was made before the Commissioners under "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," and was disallowed by them on the ground that the terms of the fifth section of such Act precluded them from entertaining the same.

2. Or in case where no claim was made before the Commissioners Unless the claimant was precluded or deemed himself to be precluded from making such claim by reason of any decision of the Commissioners to the effect mentioned in the first part of this section.

3. Unless there is a license in existence, or sufficient proof of a license having been granted, and not cancelled or disallowed by the great inquest, for the inclosure of the land in respect of which the claim is made, and unless the claimant or person through whom he claims has been entered as the tenant thereof in the lord's books, and has paid rent for the said land to the lord.

4. Unless the boundaries of the land in respect of which the claim is made can be identified with the description in the license to the satisfaction of the Third Commissioner. And—

5. Where any other land than that in respect of which the claim is made has been already inclosed under the license or licenses upon which the claim is founded.

7. The decisions of the Commissioner upon all claims to compensation, and all other matters referred to him under this Act, shall be final and conclusive, and any memorandum in writing signed by the Commissioner shall, from time to time, be sufficient evidence of any decision by him.

8. The Commissioner shall ascertain and decide what, at the time of the promulgation of "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," was the fair and reasonable marketable value of the respective interests of the several persons whose claims to compensation may be established under this Act in the lands referred to in their respective claims as such lands and interests then existed, and shall pay the amount of the value of each claim to the claimant or to any person or persons legally entitled through or under him, out of the Compensation Fund, and shall apply the balance, if any, of such fund, after making the payments thereout by this Act directed, in the manner following, that is to say, one moiety thereof shall be paid to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues; and the other moiety shall be applied by the Commissioner as part of the Second Award Fund mentioned in the recited Act. And in case it shall happen that the Compensation Fund, after payment of the remuneration, costs, and expenses by this Act directed to be defrayed thereout, is not sufficient to satisfy the aggregate value of the claims to compensation allowed under this Act, such fund, after such payments thereout as aforesaid, shall be apportioned and be divided by the Commissioner between and among the claimants whose claims are allowed by him according to the value of their respective claims, and such apportioned parts shall be paid accordingly.

9. In order to provide the fund in this Act called the Compensation Fund to defray the remuneration, costs, and expenses by this Act directed to be paid or retained thereout, and to answer such claims as may be established before the Commissioner, there shall, subject as in this Act mentioned, be raised such sums, not exceeding in the whole the sum of 5,000 l., as may be necessary for the purposes aforesaid.

10. The Compensation Fund shall be raised in the manner following, that is to say, one moiety thereof shall, if the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland shall so direct, be paid to the Commissioner by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, out of the capital of Her Majesty's land revenue; and the other moiety shall be raised and paid to the Commissioner, by and from the sale by the Commissioner, in manner by this Act provided, of a part or parts of the land which in the recited Act is described as the Commoners' Allotment: Provided always, that no larger sum than 2,500 l. in the whole shall be paid to the Compensation Fund by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, and that no larger sum than 2,500 l. in the whole shall be paid to the Compensation Fund by the Commissioner out of the proceeds of sale of part or parts of the said Commoners' Allotment, and that if, in order to raise the moiety of the Compensation Fund to be raised out of the proceeds of sale of part or parts of such allotments, any sale or sales shall take place which shall realise a net sum exceeding in the whole 2,500 l., the amount of such excess shall be applied by the Commissioner as part of the Second Award Fund under the provisions of the said recited Act. And the said Commissioner shall return to the Lieutenant Governor, for the information of the public, an account of all monies which may have been received by him from the sale of lands under the authority of this Act and of the mode in which the same shall have been disbursed and applied.

11. For the purpose of raising the moiety of the Compensation Fund, by this Act directed to be raised out of the proceeds of sale of part or parts of the said Commoners' Allotment, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner, and he is hereby empowered, from time to time, to sell and dispose of any part or parts of the said Commoners' Allotment which he may deem necessary, and which may not have been already sold under the provisions of the recited Act; and every such sale may be either by public auction or private contract, and in case of private contract, then for the highest price that can reasonably be obtained for the same: Provided that, in either case, one month's notice of the intended sale shall have been given in two of the newspapers published in the said Isle; and every such sale shall be subject to such conditions as to fencing, roads, or otherwise, as the Commissioner may think proper, and every conveyance by the Commissioner shall be effectual to vest in the purchaser or purchasers the right and title to the land sold (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the substances in the said recited Act described as minerals and stone, with the rights of working the same in such Act contained, and subject to the manorial rights to which the said Commoners' Allotment will be subject, and to such conditions as may be expressed in the conveyance); and the receipt of the Commissioner shall be a sufficient discharge for any purchase-money, and no purchaser shall inquire as to the title to the land sold, or as to the necessity for the sale.

12. The Commissioner shall make his award in writing under this Act, and such award shall be binding and conclusive to all intents and purposes whatsoever; and such award shall be in duplicate, and one part thereof shall be deposited at the Office of Land Revenue Records and Enrolments in London, and the other part thereof shall be deposited at the Rolls Office in this Island, there to remain of record, and to be examined by all persons at all reasonable times on payment of a fee of 1 s. for each such examination; and when such award has been so deposited, the fact of such deposit shall be conclusive evidence that such award has been duly made and executed in accordance with the terms of this Act, and that all the provisions of this Act have been duly complied with.

13. The Commissioner shall, for the purposes of this Act, have all the powers conferred on the Third Commissioner by sections 23, 24, and 25 of the recited Act, and all the provisions of those sections shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to proceedings under this Act.

14. Except as is by this Act expressly and in terms provided, nothing in this Act contained shall vary or affect any of the provisions of the recited Act, or any proceedings thereunder.

15. Provided also that nothing contained in the preamble or enactments of this Act shall, in any manner whatsoever, take away, prejudice or affect any right of appeal reserved in and by "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860."

16. It shall be sufficient for all purposes to cite this Act as "The Isle of Man Disafforesting (Compensation) Act, 1863."

Declaration of Boundaries by the Disafforesting Commissioners.

To all to whom these Presents shall come: We, George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, Barristers-at-Law, being the Commissioners duly appointed under the provisions of an Act made and passed at a Tynwald Court, holden at St. John's Chapel, on the 5th day of July, in the 24th year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and in the year of our Lord 1860, and intituled "An Act for Disafforesting and Allotting the Uninclosed Portion of 'The Forest' in the Isle of Man," and which said Act was promulgated on the 13th day of November, in the year aforesaid, hereby send greeting.

Whereas, the lands in the said Act, described as "The Uninclosed Forest," consist of four separate tracts, usually known as the Northern Mountains, the Southern Mountains, the Ayre Lands (at the northernmost extremity of the island), and the Mooragh, situated in the Harbour of Ramsey. We, therefore, having ascertained the boundaries of the lands in the said forest which are uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed, and which are hereinafter called the uninclosed forest, and having set out a separate boundary line for each of the said tracts, and having ascertained the line of high water of the ordinary spring tides where the uninclosed forest abuts upon any part of the shore of the sea, or of any creek, bay, or inlet thereof, so far as the tide flows at the ordinary spring tides, do hereby make our declaration of the boundaries of the uninclosed forest in the manner following:—

And first, as to the said portion of the uninclosed forest called the Northern Mountains.

Northern Mountains.

The boundary line of that portion of the uninclosed forest, which is known as the Northern Mountains, commences at the point marked A on the Plan (Part I.) hereto annexed, and which point is situate in the forest wall at the north-easternmost angle of the said Northern Mountains; and the boundary line, having the said Northern Mountains on its west side, thence proceeds south-easterly along the said forest wall which bounds the western sides of intacks of Thomas Craine, John Senhouse Goldie Taubman, and other owners, numbered respectively 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 on the said plan, and thence along the said wall around a tract of inclosed land known as the Cornagh, whereof the Rev. William Bell Christian is owner, and which is numbered 6 on the said plan, and thence along the said wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of an intack belonging to Henry Robert Oswald, and numbered 15 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaving the said forest wall, turns to the west, and excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, proceeds around the wall which bounds the said intack to the south-westernmost angle thereof, where it again meets the forest wall, and thence proceeding south-westerly along the wall on the west side of inclosed land of the said Henry Robert

Robert Oswald, numbered 16 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of another intack, belonging to the said Henry Robert Oswald, and numbered 17 on the said plan; and the boundary line then again leaving the forest wall, and excluding the said intack numbered 17 from the uninclosed forest, proceeds along the westernmost and south-westernmost sides of the said intack to the south-east angle thereof, where the said boundary line again meets the forest wall, and thence proceeding southerly and afterwards north-westerly along the said forest wall, which bounds the inclosures of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31 on the said plan, to the north-easternmost angle of an intack belonging to Duncan Gibb, and numbered 32 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaving the said forest wall, proceeds westerly along the wall which bounds the northernmost side of the said intack, numbered 32, and thence around the said intack to the south-west angle thereof, and then turning to the east, and proceeding along the wall which bounds the southern side of the same intack to the north-west angle of an inclosure belonging to John Kneale, and numbered 33 on the said plan, at which point the boundary line again meets the forest wall, and thence proceeds south-westerly along the said wall which bounds the north-west sides of certain intacks belonging to John Kneale, James Cowin, and James Collister, and numbered respectively 34 and 35 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of the last-mentioned intack; and the boundary line then leaving the said wall, proceeds south-westerly along the wall which bounds the north-western side of an inclosed intack belonging to the said James Collister, and numbered 36 on the said plan, and then turning south-easterly along the south-western side of the same intack, and crossing a road which passes through the lower part of the said intack, to a wall which bounds the north-west side of an intack belonging to John Caneen, and numbered 37 on the said plan; and the boundary line, including within the uninclosed forest a tract of uninclosed land claimed by the said Duncan Gibb, John Kneale, James Collister, James Cowin, and John Caneen, turns south-westerly along the said wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest an intack whereof John Caneen is owner, and which is numbered 38 on the said plan, proceeds along the wall which bounds the north-west side of the said intack, and thence around the said intack to the south-east angle thereof, and there again meets the forest wall; and then turning to the south-east, proceeds along the said wall, bounding the intacks of various owners, and numbered respectively 39, 40, 41, 42, and 43 on the said plan, until it arrives at Bruhdle Gate; and then turning to the south-west, proceeds along the forest wall which bounds certain intacks belonging to Edward Hogg and Daniel Cannon, and numbered respectively 44, 45, and 46 on the said plan, and including within the uninclosed forest a portion of inclosed land claimed by the said Edward Hogg, still continues along the forest wall which bounds Glenroia Park, of which the Rev. George Bishop is owner, and which is numbered 47 on the said plan, to the south-west angle of the said Glenroia Park; and then turning easterly along the southernmost side of the said Glenroia Park, proceeds to the north-west angle of an intack belonging to Philip Quale, and numbered 48 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turning to the south-west, and including within, and as part of the uninclosed forest, a certain tract of uninclosed land called Slieau Myll, proceeds along the forest wall which bounds the inclosures of divers owners, and which are numbered respectively 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, and 54 on the said plan, until it arrives at the north-west angle of the said inclosure numbered 54; and then leaving the forest wall, and turning to the north, and proceeding in a straight line for the distance of 7 chains and 60 links, along a line marked by a trench cut in the ground on the east side of an intack, of which William Moore, so far as the limits thereof on its uninclosed forest sides are herein defined, is owner, and which intack, so limited, is numbered 55 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turns to the south-west, and proceeds in a straight line along the north-western side of the said intack, to a point marked B in the forest wall, at the north-west side of an intack belonging to the said William Moore, and numbered 56 on the said plan, and which point is 1 chain and 61 links distant from the north-west angle of the same inclosure; and the boundary line proceeds south-westerly from the said point marked B, along the forest wall which bounds inclosures of various owners, and which are respectively numbered 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, and 66 on the said plan, till it arrives at the south-west angle of an intack belonging belonging to John Wade Cowin, and numbered 67 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, turns easterly, and proceeds around the fences of the said intack to the north-west angle thereof, where it again meets the forest wall, and then turning north-easterly proceeds along the forest wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which intacks are respectively numbered 68, 69, 70, and 71 on the said plan; and then turning to the north-east, and proceeding along the forest wall on the south-east side of a tract of inclosed land, known as Egypt, and numbered 72 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of the said land, and then leaving the said forest wall, and continuing in a north-easterly direction along the fence and gill on the south-east side of an intack belonging to John Quine, and numbered 73 on the said plan, until it arrives at the easternmost angle of the said intack, and thence excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest and continuing around the fences of the said intack to the south-western angle thereof, where it again meets the forest wall; and thence proceeding along the forest wall on the north-west side of the said inclosed land called Egypt, and along the forest wall on the north-east side of an intack belonging to Daniel Caneen, and numbered 74 on the said plan, to the south-east angle of an intack belonging to the said Daniel Caneen, and numbered 75 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest the intacks numbered 75 and 76, and other intacks belonging to John Quine and Alexander Spittall, and numbered respectively on the said plan 77 and 78, proceeds along the north-eastern and north-western fences of the intack numbered 75, and along the north-eastern, north-western, and western fences of the said intack, numbered 77, and along the western fence of the said intack, numbered 78 on the said plan, till it arrives at the north-east angle of a tract of inclosed land known as Injebreck, of which the said Alexander Spittall is owner, and which is numbered 79 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turning to the north-west, and proceeding along the forest wall which bounds Injebreck, and the intacks of the said Alexander Spittall, and of various other owners, and respectively numbered 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92 on the said plan, and thence for a distance of yards along the forest wall which bounds the north-western side of an intack belonging to William Quirk, and numbered 93 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaves the said wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest the intack numbered 94, proceeds north-westerly along the fence which bounds the north-eastern side of the same intack, and then turning south-westerly to the south-western angle thereof, proceeds in a south-westerly direction along the forest wall which bounds the north-western side of an intack numbered 95 on the said plan, until it arrives at the north-western angle of the last-mentioned intack, numbered 95, and the boundary line, then leaving the said forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest an intack belonging to James Gelling, and numbered 96 on the said plan, passes in a westerly direction along the site of a dilapidated stone fence on the northermost side of the said intack, and then turning south-easterly along the gill which bounds the south-western side of the same intack to the south-western angle thereof, where the boundary line again meets the forest wall, and thence proceeding south-easterly, and continuing along the said wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are respectively numbered 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, and 104, on the said plan, and thence for a distance of 47 yards along the forest wall which bounds the easternmost side of an intack belonging to Ridgeway Harrison, and numbered 106 on the said plan; and the boundary line then leaves the said wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest the several intacks numbered respectively 107, 107*a*, and 108, proceeds till the said boundary meets a mountain stream, called the Plaver River; and the boundary line, then turning north-westerly, proceeds along the said river to the south-east angle of an intack belonging to William Shimmin, and numbered 109 on the said plan, and then leaving the said river and proceeding round the dilapidated boundary mound on the south-east and north-east sides of the said intack numbered 109 to the easternmost angle of certain intack land known as Airey Glass, and numbered 110 on the said plan, where the said boundary line again meets the forest wall; and thence proceeding north-westerly and continuing along the forest wall which bounds Airey Glass, and also the intacks of various owners, numbered respectively 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120,

120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, and 127 on the said plan, to the south-west angle of an intack belonging to William Quayle, and numbered 128 on the said plan, and then proceeding along the forest wall on the southernmost side of the last-mentioned intack till it meets a gill or watercourse at or near the south-east angle of the said intack, and then turning south-easterly and proceeding up the said gill on the south-west side of an intack belonging to John Corlett and William Caine, and numbered 129 on the said plan, and then leaving the said gill and passing along the mound which bounds the easternmost side of the said intack, and then descending with the said mound into, and crossing another gill on the northern side of the said intack to the southern extremity of a wall which separates two intacks, both belonging to William Cowley, and numbered respectively 130 and 131 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turning easterly, proceeds along the forest wall on the southern side of the said intack numbered 131, and thence along the said wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 132, 133, 134, 135, and 136, on the said plan, to the north-east angle of the said intack numbered 136, at which point the boundary line, leaving the forest wall, turns south-easterly, and proceeds around the fences of certain intacks whereof John Quayle and John Cavendish, otherwise Corjeag, are occupiers, and which are numbered 137 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of the same intack, where it meets the forest wall, and proceeds thence along the said wall which bounds the intacks belonging to the said John Cavendish, otherwise Corjeag, John Quayle, and Evan Gell, and which are numbered respectively 138, 139, and 140, on the said plan, to an angle marked G on the said plan, on the north-easternmost side of the said intack numbered 140; and the said boundary line then leaving the said forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest a portion of land comprising one acre, whereof the said Evan Gell is owner, and which is numbered 140*a* on the said plan, proceeds north-westerly along a line marked by a trench cut in the ground as the north-eastern boundary of the said acre of land, to a point in the forest wall marked H on the said plan, on the north-eastern side of the said intack numbered 140; and the boundary line then proceeding north westerly, and continuing along the said wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, and 154, on the said plan, to the south-western angle of the said intack numbered 154, and then leaving the forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest an intack whereof James Boyd is owner, and which is numbered 155 on the said plan, proceeds around the said intack until the boundary line meets the forest wall on the south side of the said intack numbered 154, and then turning to the north-east and proceeding along the forest wall which bounds the said intack numbered 154, to the south-easternmost angle of the same intack, and thence turning north-easterly along the forest wall on the east side of the said intack numbered 154, and of other intacks whereof John Boyd and William Boyd are owners, and which are numbered respectively 155*a* and 156 on the said plan, to the south-west angle of an intack whereof Daniel Corlett is owner, and which is numbered 157 on the said plan, and the boundary line then leaving the forest wall, turns south-easterly, excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, and proceeds along the fence on the south-western and other sides of the said intack until it meets the south-western fence of another intack, of which Patrick Mylecraine is owner, and which is numbered 158 on the said plan; and the boundary line, excluding the said intack, numbered 158, from the uninclosed forest, then turns to the south-east and proceeds along the fence of the last mentioned intack to the southernmost angle thereof, and thence along the south-western and southern fence of an intack whereof Daniel Boyd is owner, and numbered 159 on the said plan, and excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, thence proceeds from the south easternmost angle of the said intack, numbered 159 on the said plan, to the south-west angle of another intack, of which Patrick Mylecraine is owner, and which is numbered 160 on the said plan, and excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, proceeds along the walls which bound the said intack numbered 160 until it again meets the forest wall at the north-eastern angle of the said intack, and thence proceeds north-easterly and continues along the said wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, and 177 on the said plan, until it arrives at a point in the said wall on the northwestern side of the last-mentioned inclosure numbered 177, and which point is marked I on the said plan, and the boundary line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest a portion of land whereof Philip Kneen is owner, and which is numbered 178 on the said plan, proceeds in a northerly and then in a westerly direction along two trenches cut in the ground as the eastern and northern boundary of the said portion of land numbered 178, to a point marked K on the said plan, in the forest wall on the north-east side of an intack known as Close Emmal, whereof Samuel Brooke is owner, and which is numbered 180 on the said plan; and the said boundary line proceeds from the said point marked K in a north-westerly direction, and continues around the forest wall which bounds the said inclosure numbered 180 until it arrives at the north-easternmost angle of an intack belonging to Samuel Brooke, and which is numbered 181 on the said plan, and thence turning north-westerly to the north-western angle of the said intack, and thence turning south-westerly along the fences on the north-west sides of the same intack and of another intack known as Druidale, also belonging to the said Samuel Brooke, and which is numbered 187 on the said plan (including within the uninclosed forest a certain piece of uninclosed land formerly called Chibbah Slieau na Mageril intack, except a portion of the said intack numbered 187*a* on the said plan, which portion is excluded from the uninclosed forest), until the boundary line reaches the north-west angle of the Close Farm, numbered 188 on the said plan, and then turning to the south and proceeding along the forest wall which bounds the said farm until it reaches the south-west angle of inclosed lands called Crammag Farm, numbered 189 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turns easterly, and including within the uninclosed forest a piece of uninclosed land claimed by John Cowley, and numbered 190 on the said plan, proceeds along the forest wall to the south-east angle of the said inclosed lands numbered 189, and then turning northerly and continuing along the forest wall on the eastern side of the said inclosed lands called Crammag Farm, numbered 189 on the said plan, and including within the uninclosed forest another piece of uninclosed land claimed by the said John Cowley, and numbered 191 on the said plan, thence proceeds along the forest wall which bounds a tract of inclosed land known as Gloin Crammag, whereof Thomas Kelly is owner, and which is numbered 192 on the said plan, and other inclosed land whereof John Cowley and John Quayle are owners, and which is numbered 193 on the said plan, to the southernmost angle of an intack whereof John Paul Harrison is owner, and which is numbered 194 on the said plan, and the boundary line then leaves the said forest wall and proceeds in a south-easterly direction along the walls which separate from the uninclosed forest a certain intack belonging to the said John Paul Harrison, and numbered 195 on the said plan; and a certain other intack belonging to William Quayle, of Balla Skelly, and numbered 196 on the said plan, until it again meets the forest wall on the south-western side of an intack numbered 197 on the said plan; and the boundary line then turning south-easterly, continues around the forest wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, and 212 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of an intack belonging to Thomas Cowley, and numbered 213 on the said plan; and then leaving the forest wall, and proceeding south-easterly along the fences which bound the south-west side of the said intack, numbered 213, and the south-eastern and eastern fences of another intack belonging to William Collister, and numbered 214 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of the said intack numbered 214, where it again meets the forest wall; and the boundary line then turns north-easterly, and proceeds along the said wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 219*a*, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, and 226 on the said plan, until it arrives at the said point marked A at the north-east angle of the said Northern Mountains, where the said boundary line commenced.

And we have further ascertained, that certain intacks or inclosures numbered on the said plan I. and I.a, and II. and II.a, though locally situated within the boundaries of the uninclosed forest as herein ascertained, are not portions of such uninclosed forest.

And we hereby further declare, that the boundary line of the aforesaid portion of the uninclosed forest called the Northern Mountains is herein by us ascertained, subject to the provisions in the said Act contained with regard to certain uninclosed portions thereof, for the inclosure of which certain licenses have been granted to Thomas Arthur Corlett, Esq., by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues.

The Southern Mountains.

Secondly. The boundary line of that portion of the uninclosed forest known as the Southern Mountains, commences at a point marked A on the plan; part 2, hereto annexed, at the south-easternmost angle of an intack belonging to John Fargher, and numbered 1 on the said plan, and thence proceeds north-westerly along the wall which bounds the south-westernmost sides of the said intack, and of another intack also belonging to the said John Fargher, numbered 2 on the said plan, to the north-westernmost angle of the last-mentioned intack, and then turning to the south-west and excluding from the uninclosed forest an intack whereof Hugh Shimmin is owner, and which is numbered 3 on the said plan, proceeds along the fence which bounds the south-east side of the last-mentioned intack, and thence along the forest wall, which bounds certain intacks belonging to Hugh Clucas and John Kelly, and numbered 4 and 5 on the said plan; including within the uninclosed forest a cottage and premises numbered 6 on the said plan, and thence continuing along the forest wall around intacks whereof Philip Crellin and John Mylechreest are owners, and which are numbered 7 and 8 on the said plan, till it arrives at the south-westernmost angle of the last-mentioned intack, and then turning to the north-west and proceeding along the site of the forest wall through the said inclosure in the occupation of John Mylechreest, and numbered 8 on the said plan to the southern side of the same inclosure, where the boundary line again strikes the forest wall, and then turning, still in a north-westerly direction, along the said wall to the north-west angle of an intack numbered 9 on the said plan; and thence along the forest wall, and along the eastern side of, and so including within, the uninclosed forest, a cottage and garden occupied by Edward Shimmin, and numbered 10 on the said plan, and also a garden occupied by John Mylechreest, and numbered 11 on the said plan, and thence continuing along the forest wall, and passing a lid gate of the uninclosed forest at the south of and adjoining an intack belonging to Edward Collister, numbered 12 on the said plan, and thence proceeding north-westerly along the forest wall which bounds various intacks, numbered 13, 14, and 15 on the said plan, to the south-westernmost angle of the last-mentioned intack, and then turning to the south-east, and proceeding along the forest wall on the north-east side of an intack numbered 16 on the said plan; and thence in a southerly and south-easterly direction along the said forest wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are respectively numbered 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, and 24 on the said plan, till it arrives at the northernmost angle of a tract of inclosed land now occupied by the Foxdale Mining Company, and numbered 25 on the said plan; and the boundary line thence proceeds along the wall on the north-east, south-east, and south-west sides of the said tract, numbered 25, and thence on the north-easternmost side of the road leading from Douglas to the Foxdale Mines, and in front of and adjoining certain cottages and premises occupied by miners in the employment of the Foxdale Mining Company, and numbered 26 on the said plan, and excluding the same from the uninclosed forest; and thence along the wall which bounds the south-west side of an intack belonging to Philip Fargher, and numbered 27 on the said plan, till it reaches a lid gate of the uninclosed forest at the westernmost angle of the said intack, numbered 27, and then turning to the south, and crossing the said road in the line of the said gate to the north-east angle of an intack belonging to John Clucas, and numbered 28 on the said plan; and thence along the fence on the eastern side of the said intack, and along the eastern and southern fences of another intack, also belonging to the said John Clucas, and numbered 29 on the said plan; and thence along the southernmost and westernmost fences of a tract of inclosed land, whereof John Kermode is owner, and which is numbered 30 on the said plan, to the north-easternmost side of a cottage and garden occupied by Robert Knayle, and numbered 31 on the said plan, which said cottage and garden are included within the said uninclosed forest.

And the said boundary line, leaving the north-east angle of the said cottage and and garden numbered 31 on the said map, crosses the road to a point opposite, and thence, turning westwardly, follows the fence on the northern side of the said road to a point at the southern end of a lane leading to inclosures belonging to Ann Farrgher; and crossing the said lane the said boundary continues on the north side of the said road to a point opposite to the north-east corner of an old inclosure belonging to Richard Clucas, and numbered 32 on the map; and then crossing the Foxdale-road, and the southern fence thereof, the said boundary-line continues along the eastern fence of the said inclosure, and of a certain other inclosure numbered 33 on the said plan, and of a certain other inclosure numbered 34 on the said plan, and thence turning round the south side of said inclosure numbered 35 to a point where the southern fence meets, at a right angle, a lid gate of the uninclosed forest, the said boundary-line turns at a right angle along the said lid gate; and thence turning southerly, the said boundary-line runs along the wall of the uninclosed forest, and along the southern side of a cottage of which Richard Quirk is the owner, and numbered 36 on the map; and thence passing along the northern side of a modern inclosure on the forest, of which Thomas Muir is now the occupier, the said boundary-line leaves on its south side certain modern inclosures upon the forest, and passes also certain wheels and other machinery now in use for working the mine underneath the forest and along the said wall, until it meets a brook passing between the uninclosed forest and the lands of Edward Moore Gawne, and proceeding up the western or outer bank of the said brook to a point where the said brook receives the waters of a smaller brook, the said boundary-line passes up the wall on the northern side of the said smaller brook, and crosses the Peel and Castletown-road, and passes to the north of a cottage and inclosure of which William Corras is the occupier, and which has been erected for mining purposes upon the uninclosed forest; and thence proceeding westward along the wall on the north side of the said brook, and along the south and west sides of old inclosures, of which the said Edward Moore Gawne is the owner, and numbered 37 on the said map; and thence the said boundary line proceeds northwards along the wall of the uninclosed forest, until it reaches an inclosure belonging to Patrick Clark, and numbered 38 on the said plan; and thence the said boundary-line turns westwardly along the uninclosed forest wall, and along land of which the said Patrick Clark is the owner, and turning north-westwardly round the land of the said Patrick Clark, and also along the south-west side of land belonging to John Morrison, and so continuing along old inclosures belonging to Miss Stowell and Mrs. Kelly, and thence turning northerly, and on the eastern side of a watercourse, to a point at the south-east corner of a field belonging to Thomas Moore, and numbered 39 on the map; then the said boundary-line turns westwardly, passing across the said watercourse and along the southern fence of the said field belonging to Thomas Moore, and turning southerly along the east fence of land belonging to Thomas Quirk, proceeds to the south-east corner of a field numbered 40 on the map, and thence north-westerly along the forest wall, and along the north side of an encroachment upon the uninclosed forest, of which Widow Kennagh is the occupier; and then the said boundary line turns north-easterly along the wall of the said forest, and passes at the back of a recent inclosure and miner's cottage erected on the uninclosed forest, and now in the occupation of William Halsey, including the said inclosure and cottage within the said uninclosed forest; and thence continuing westwardly, the said boundary-line passes the gate at a lane leading to ancient inclosures, and continuing in a south-easterly direction along land of Thomas Quirk, and down to the angle at which a lane from Kirkpatrick enters the uninclosed forest, and thence turning at a right angle in a south-easterly direction along the side of an old inclosure and cottage belonging to Thomas Quirk; and, turning in a south-westerly direction, the said boundary-line continues along the forest wall, and along the southern side of land belonging to Thomas Ratcliffe, and inside a small encroachment abutting on the land of the said Thomas Ratcliffe, and then turning in a southerly direction and crossing three water-ways, and in front of land belonging to John Cottier, and numbered 41 on the map; and thence the said boundary-line passes to the north-east angle of a cottage abutting upon the said wall; and, passing along the eastern side of the said cottage to the south-east angle thereof, the said line passes across the spoil banks of a mine now in operation, called the Beckwith Mine, and strikes the wall of the uninclosed forest at a watercourse now at the foot of the said spoil banks, and at the north-east corner of an inclosure belonging to Edward Faulder, and numbered 42 on the said map; and thence the said line proceeds along the wall of the uninclosed forest in a southwardly direction, leaving on the east certain ancient intacks upon the forest, belonging to Edward Faulder, and containing 8 acres, 3 roods, and 4 poles; and then the said boundary-line follows the forest wall southwardly, and south-westerly, and then north-westerly, and then southwardly along the sides of ancient inclosures belonging to Edward Faulder; and at the south-east corner of an inclosure, numbered 43 on the said map, the said boundary-line turns south-westerly, and, leaving on the east an ancient intack belonging to Edward Faulder, containing 26 acres, 2 roods, and 3 poles, the said boundary-line continues in a south-westerly direction along the forest wall, having the old inclosure of Patrick Carran on the north-west, and a certain encroachment, occupied by William Carran on the south-east, including the same within the boundary of the said uninclosed forest; then turning in a north-westerly direction along the forest wall, the said boundary-line continues along the wall to the gate of a cottage belonging to Patrick Carran; and thence turning at a right angle, the said boundary line continues in a south and south-westerly direction until it strikes the corner of two encroachments, with a cottage thereon, of which Thomas Kelly is the occupier of one, and Henry Clark of the other, including both within the boundary of the said uninclosed forest; and, passing the said encroachments, which are numbered 44 on the said map, the said boundary-line continues to pass along the forest wall until it strikes the road leading from Kirkpatrick to Castletown; and the said boundary-line, crossing the said road, again joins the forest wall on the other side of the said road, until it reaches a point at the south-westerly corner of a field belonging to Henry Sayle, and marked 45 on the map; and thence turning at a right angle in a north-westerly direction, the boundary-line passes along the south-west side of certain old inclosures to the point where the said boundary-line strikes the boundary line of Dalby; the line continues from the south-westernmost angle of the mountain-land called Dalby, and proceeding thence in a north-westerly direction, and thence turning in a southerly direction, passes along the forest wall, which forms the boundary of the uninclosed forest, and also of old inclosures belonging to Charles Dodd, and numbered respectively 46, 47, 47*a*, 48, and 49, on the said map, until the said wall strikes the sea-coast, and continues along the high watermark of the coast at ordinary spring tides until it reaches Fleshwick Bay; and at a point in Fleshwick Bay where a gulley runs down to the coast, the said boundary-line turns inland, and ascends the gully until it meets the forest wall, which wall turns in a north-easterly direction and ascends the cliff, and the said boundary-line thence proceeds in an easterly direction along the fence on the north-western and north-eastern sides of an intack belonging to William Moore, and numbered 50 on the said plan, and thence along the north-western side of certain intacks belonging to John Sansbury, and numbered 51 on the said plan; thence along the forest wall which bounds an intack belonging to Edward Moore Gawne, and numbered 52 on the said plan; and thence continuing along the said wall on the north-easternmost sides of intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 53, 54, 55, 56, and 57 on the said plan, and then turning in an easterly, and afterwards in a northerly, direction, along the forest wall, which bounds certain intacks belonging to other owners, and which are numbered respectively 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, and 64 on the said plan, till it arrives at the north-west angle of the said intack numbered 64, and then continuing round the outer wall of certain inclosed fields, numbered 65 and 66 on the said plan, till the said boundary-line arrives at the north-west angle of an intack belonging to William Gale, and which is numbered 66 on the said plan; and the said boundary-line then turns north-easterly, and continues along the forest wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, numbered respectively 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, and 82, to the north-westernmost angle of the last-mentioned intack, numbered 82; and the boundary-line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest a certain intack known as Geary Moar Intack, whereof John Moore Jeffcott, John Harrison, and William Collister are owners, and which is numbered 82*a* on the said plan, turns to the west, and proceeds along a wall and decayed fences which bound the uninclosed forest sides of the said intack, till it arrives at the easternmost angle of the said intack, where it again meets the forest wall, and then turning easterly along the said forest wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 83, 84, 85, 86, 87,

87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, and 101 on the said plan, till it arrives at the north-east angle of the last-mentioned intack, numbered 101, and thence proceeding easterly across the road which leads from Castletown to Peel, to certain cottages and gardens whereof Solomon Mylchreest and Joseph Snoggles are owners, and which are numbered 102 on the said plan; thence passing along the north side of the said cottages and gardens, and excluding the same from the uninclosed forest; thence along the forest wall on the northern and eastern sides of an intack belonging to John Welsh, numbered 103 on the said plan, and thence along the wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, and which are respectively numbered 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, and 111 on the said plan, until it arrives at the north-westernmost angle of the said intack, numbered 111 on the said plan, whereof Thomas Cretney is owner; and the boundary-line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding from the uninclosed forest a narrow strip of land whereof the said Thomas Cretney is owner, and which is numbered 111*a* on the said plan, proceeds in a northerly direction across a gill to the western extremity of a wall newly erected on the northern side of the said gill, thence turning easterly along the said new wall to the eastern extremity thereof, where it meets the forest wall; and the boundary-line thence proceeds northerly along the said forest wall, which bounds intacks belonging to Thomas Cretney, and which are numbered 112 on the same plan, till it arrives at the northernmost angle of another intack belonging to the said Thomas Cretney, and which is numbered 113 on the said plan; thence continuing along the wall on the easternmost side of the said intack, and of another intack belonging to John Kermode, and which is numbered 114 on the said plan, to the easternmost angle of the last mentioned intack; thence continuing in an easterly direction across the road which bounds the east side of the last-mentioned intack, and passing through a portion of the uninclosed forest called Money Todaby; and the boundary-line then crosses the newly erected wall on the eastern side of the said road, and proceeds north-easterly along the site of the forest wall, now nearly obliterated, through an inclosure whereof Mrs. Campbell is occupier, and which is numbered 115 on the said plan, until the boundary-line, which includes within the uninclosed forest so much of the said inclosure numbered 115 as lies between the said road and the site of the forest wall, again meets the newly erected wall on the south-eastern side of the said road, and the said boundary-line recrossing the said wall and road in a northerly direction, proceeds in a straight line to the south-west angle of a cottage whereof the said Mrs. Campbell is also owner, and which is numbered 116 on the said plan, and thence along the south-westernmost side of the said cottage, where it again meets the forest wall, and thence continuing north-westerly along the said wall which bounds the south-westernmost sides of the intacks of various owners, and which are numbered respectively 117, 118, and 119 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of the last-mentioned intack, numbered 119, and then turning easterly along the wall on the northern side of the same intack, thence along the north side of, and excluding from the uninclosed forest, a cottage and garden belonging to John Knayle, and which is numbered 120 on the said plan, and along the wall on the north side of another intack belonging to John Knayle, and numbered 121 on the plan, thence, still proceeding along the forest wall which bounds intacks belonging to John Kermode and John Knayle, and numbered 122 and 123 on the said plan, to the south side of a cottage and garden belonging to James Radcliffe, and numbered 124 on the said plan, and the boundary-line, excluding the said cottage and garden from the uninclosed forest, thence proceeds along the southern and western sides of the said cottage and garden to the northernmost angle thereof, thence along the forest wall which bounds the intacks, numbered respectively 125 and 126 on the said plan, including within the uninclosed forest a cottage and garden occupied by Christopher Kermode, and numbered 127 on the said plan, and thence in a south-easterly direction along the forest wall which bounds the intacks of various owners, numbered respectively 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, and 133 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of an intack belonging to Philip Killy, and numbered 134 on the said plan, and the boundary-line then turning southerly along the forest wall which bounds the easternmost side of the said intack, numbered 134, and also the easternmost and northernmost sides of another intack belonging to the said Philip Killy, and numbered 135 on the said plan, thence turning north-easterly along the forest wall which bounds the north-westernmost side of an intack belonging to Patrick Quirk, and numbered 136 on the said plan, and so including within the uninclosed forest a portion of land numbered 137 on the said plan, lately inclosed by the said Philip Killy; and the said boundary-line thence proceeding in a north-easterly direction across the road leading from St. Mark's Chapel to St. John's and Peel, to the wall which bounds certain inclosed premises belonging to various owners, numbered 138 and 138*a* on the said plan; thence along the western and northern sides of the said premises, excluding the same from the uninclosed forest; and thence along the forest wall which bounds the northern side of an intack belonging to John Gell, and numbered 139 on the said plan, to a point marked D on the plan 60 yards distant from and to the west of a lid gate of the uninclosed forest, known as the Spear Gate; and at this point the boundary-line, then leaving the said wall, proceeds in a north-easterly direction on the north side of and skirting an ancient stone quarry numbered 139*a* on the said plan, to the north-west angle of an intack belonging to William Cowell, and numbered 140 on the said plan, where it again meets the forest wall; and the said boundary-line thence proceeds along the said forest wall on the north-western side of the said intack, numbered 140; thence continuing along the said wall, which bounds the intacks of various owners, numbered respectively 141, 142, 143, 144, and 145 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of, and excluding from the uninclosed forest, a dwelling-house belonging to William and Cæsar Cottier, and numbered 146 on the said plan; and the boundary-line, including within the uninclosed forest a small piece of land with an outhouse thereon adjoining the said dwelling-house of the said William and Cæsar Cottier, and numbered 148 on the said plan; thence proceeds in a westerly direction along the forest wall which bounds an intack belonging to the said William and Cæsar Cottier, and numbered 147 on the said plan, passing along the south-west side of, and excluding from the uninclosed forest, a cottage and premises whereof Collister is owner, and which are numbered 149 on the said plan; thence proceeding along the forest wall on the south-west side of intacks belonging to the said William and Cæsar Cottier, and numbered 150 on the said plan; to the south-east corner of a garden belonging to Thomas Pemberton, and numbered 151 on the said plan; and the boundary-line, then leaving the said wall, proceeds westerly along the southern fence of the said garden to a point in the said fence opposite the south-west angle of the cottage of the said Thomas Pemberton, adjoining the said garden; and the said boundary-line, excluding from the uninclosed forest the portion of the garden so numbered 151, as the same is hereby bounded, and excluding also the said cottage, thence turns northerly and proceeds in a straight line along the western side of the same cottage to the north-west angle thereof, where it again meets the forest wall; and the boundary-line, then turning to the west, and including within the uninclosed forest a small piece of garden ground, numbered 152 on the said plan, adjoining the west side of the cottage and garden of the said Thomas Pemberton, hereinbefore mentioned, proceeds along the forest wall which bounds intacks of the said William and Cæsar Cottier, numbered 153 on the said plan, and still proceeding along the forest wall on the west side of inclosed lands belonging to Mrs. Llewellyn, and numbered 154 on the said plan, and including within the uninclosed forest a cottage and several parcels of land recently inclosed by William Watterson, and which are numbered 155 on the said plan, to the south-west angle of an intack whereof Edward Faulder is occupier, and which is numbered 156 on the said plan; and the boundary-line then leaving the forest wall, and excluding the said intack from the uninclosed forest, proceeds in a straight line in a north-westerly direction along the wall which bounds the south-westernmost side of the said intack to a point marked E in the wall of an intack belonging to Thomas Kewley, and numbered 157 on the said plan; and the boundary-line, then turning north-westerly, proceeds along the forest wall which bounds the intacks of the said Thomas Kewley, numbered 158 on the said plan, till it arrives at the point marked A on the said plan, at the southernmost angle of the intact, numbered 1, where the said boundary line commenced.

And we have further ascertained, that certain intacks or inclosures severally numbered on the said plan I., II., I.a, II.a, III.a, IV.a, V.a, VI.a, VII.a, though locally situated within the boundaries of the uninclosed forest, as herein ascertained, are not portions of such uninclosed forest.

The Ayre Lands.

Thirdly. The boundary line of that portion of the uninclosed forest which is known as the Ayre Lands, commences at a point marked A on the said plan (part 3), at the north-east angle of an inclosure whereof William Joughin is owner, and which is numbered 1 on the said plan (from which point marked A a line proceeds straight in a south-westerly direction to a point marked B on the said plan, 197½ yards distant from another point marked C, which point is seven yards to the north of the north-east angle of an inclosure belonging to John Sayle, and numbered 7 on the said plan, and thence proceeding straight in a south-easterly direction to the said point marked C, and thence turning and proceeding straight in a westerly direction to another point marked E on the said plan, 36 yards distant from and to the south-east of the north-east angle of an intack belonging to John Wade, and numbered 12 on the said plan; and which line purports to bound the Ayre Lands of the uninclosed forest from other lands claimed as quarterlands and intacks in the parishes of Kirk Bride and Kirk Andreas, was, in or about the year 1795, laid down and marked with stones fixed in the ground by Deemster Lace, and is usually known as Deemster Lace's Line); and the boundary line of the uninclosed forest, as herein by us ascertained, proceeding from the said point A, continues, except as hereinafter mentioned, along the line so laid down by Deemster Lace to the said point B, thence to the said point C, and thence (including within the uninclosed forest such portions of certain inclosures made by John Sayle and William Kermode, numbered 9 and 11 on the said plan, as lie northwards of Deemster Lace's Line) to a point marked E in the last-mentioned line in the easternmost fence of the said intack belonging to John Wade, numbered 12 on the said plan, excepting, nevertheless, that, with regard to certain intacks whereof John Kneale and William Teare are owners, and which are numbered respectively 4 and 6 on the said plan, the said boundary line of the uninclosed forest, as herein ascertained, when it strikes the easternmost sides of the said intacks, proceeds around the fences of such portions of the said intacks as lie northwards of Deemster Lace's Line, and excludes the same portions of the uninclosed forest; and at the point E, the boundary line of the uninclosed forest, as herein ascertained, turns to the north, and, excluding from the uninclosed forest the said intack numbered 12, and an inclosure belonging to James Cleator, and numbered 13 on the said plan, proceeds along the fence of the said intack numbered 12, to the north-east angle thereof, and thence along the northern fences of the said intack numbered 12, and of the inclosure numbered 13, and thence along the westernmost fence of the last-mentioned inclosure to the north-east angle of an intack belonging to John Martin, and numbered 14 on the said plan; and the boundary, then turning to the west, proceeds along the northern fence of the last-mentioned intack, and of other intacks belonging to the said John Martin, and numbered 15 and 16 on the said plan, to the north-west angle of the last-mentioned intack, numbered 16; and the boundary line, including within the uninclosed forest a piece of land claimed by the said James Cleator, and numbered 17 on the said plan, proceeds along the fences which bound the north-west sides of the said intack numbered 16, and along the fences on the northernmost sides of certain intacks belonging to William Farragher, and numbered respectively 18, 19, and 20 on the said plan, and thence along the fences which bound the westernmost side of the said intack numbered 20, and also bound other intacks, numbered respectively 21, 22, and 23 on the said plan, to the south-east angle of an intack belonging to James Garrett, and numbered 24 on the said plan; and the boundary line, excluding from the uninclosed forest the said intack numbered 24, proceeds to the north of, and around the fences of, the said intack to the south-west angle thereof, and then turning to the west, and including within the uninclosed forest a small inclosure made by the said James Garrett, and numbered 26 on the said plan, proceeds to the south of the said inclosure along the fence which bounds the northern side of certain intacks belonging to the said William Farragher, numbered 25 and 27 on the said plan, and thence proceeds to the easternmost angle of an intack belonging to Charles Teare, and numbered 28 on the said plan; and the boundary line, excluding from the uninclosed forest the said intack numbered 28, and also another adjoining intack belonging to the said William Cleator, numbered 29 on the said plan, proceeds along the fences on the north side of the said intacks numbered 28 and 29, and along the fence of another intack belonging to Daniel Cleator, and numbered 30 on the said plan, and thence, excluding from the uninclosed forest an intack belonging to Charles Teare, and numbered 31 on the said plan, proceeds along the northern fence of the said intack to the north-west angle thereof, and then turning to the north, and afterwards to the west, round two uninclosed intacks, of which Walter Teare is owner, and numbered 31*a* and 31*b* on the said plan; and then the boundary line, including within the uninclosed forest a piece of open land claimed by William Collister and William Sayle, and numbered 42 on the said plan, proceeds to the south of the said piece of land, along the fence which bounds the north and west sides of an intack belonging to Thomas Callow, and numbered 41 on the said plan, and thence along the fence on the northernmost side of other intacks, numbered respectively 42, 43, 44, and 45 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of an intack belonging to William Collister, and numbered 46 on the said plan; and the boundary line, excluding from the uninclosed forest so much of an intack numbered 47 on the said plan as lies to the south-east of a road recently staked out through the said intack numbered 47 on the said plan, proceeds round the said excluded portion of the said intack to the south-east angle thereof, and then including within the uninclosed forest an inclosure lately occupied by the said William Collister, and numbered 48 on the said plan, proceeds along the western fences of the said intack numbered 46, and of another intack numbered 46*a*, and thence along the north-western fence of an intack numbered 49 on the said plan, to the north-east angle of an inclosure recently made and numbered 50 on the said plan; and the boundary-line, including within the uninclosed forest the said inclosure numbered 50, then proceeds for the distance of 19 yards along the fences on the eastern side of the said recent inclosure, and then turning to the south-west proceeds straight along the site of the forest-wall or fence, now obliterated, to the south-west angle of the said inclosure, and then turning to the south-west proceeds along the fences which separate the intacks numbered respectively 50*a*, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, and 57 on the said plan, from the uninclosed forest to the north-west angle of the last-mentioned inclosure numbered 57, and thence to the centre of the watercourse, known as Thane Mooar, which forms the south-eastern side of an intack, numbered 58 on the said plan, whereof Richard Sherwood is owner; and the boundary-line, then turning to the north-east proceeds along the centre of the said watercourse to the south-east angle of another intack, numbered 59, belonging to the said Richard Sherwood, and thence along the south-east, and also the northernmost, sides of the same intack to the north-west angle thereof, and thence again to the centre of the aforesaid watercourse, and thence in a north-easterly direction along the centre of the said watercourse, till it meets the line of high-water mark at a point marked X on the said plan; and the said boundary-line thence proceeds from the said point marked X in a straight line to a stone designated as "Stone No. 1" on the said plan, and the said line so continues until it reaches a stone on the said plan designated "Stone No. 35," and which stone is 39½ yards distant from and to the east of the north-east angle of the said intack numbered 1 on the said plan; and the said boundary-line then turns to the west, and proceeds in a straight line to the said north-east angle of the said intack marked A, where the boundary-line of the said portion of the uninclosed forest called the Ayre Lands commenced.

The Mooragh.

Fourthly. The remaining portion of the uninclosed forest, known as the Mooragh, in the parish of Lezayre, is situated in the northern part of the old harbour at Ramsey, of which it forms the eastern boundary. It is surrounded on the eastern, southern, and western sides by the sea at high water of ordinary spring tides, and, on the northernmost side, is connected with the mainland by a strip of shingly beach, across which the boundary-line passes in a direction indicated by mounds of stone, and shown upon the map hereunto annexed by the line N. N. N. The said Mooragh measures in extreme length about 59 chains, averaging in width about six chains, and is indicated on the map hereunto annexed by the letter M. The line coloured blue on such map defines the line of high-water mark at ordinary spring tides.

We

We hereby further declare that the boundary-lines for each of the four said tracts comprising the lands in the said forest which are uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed, are further shown upon the several plans or maps hereunto annexed by the lines thereon coloured red; and it is our intention that this Declaration of Boundaries should be construed with reference to the said plans or maps; and that, in case of any doubt or ambiguity arising from any statement contained in the said Declaration, the boundary-line indicated on the said plans or maps, is, on all occasions, to be deemed to afford conclusive evidence as to the direction of the true boundary-line of the said uninclosed forest.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands this twenty-fourth day of August, in the year of our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, at Ramsey, in the Isle of Man.

— No. 2. —

LETTERS from Thomas Brooke to the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, dated 2 October 1861, and 25 October 1861, and of the Answers thereto.

Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860.

To the Honourable Commissioners of Woods and Forests.

Gentlemen,

I BEG respectfully to call your attention to the 5th section of the above Act, under which section the Commissioners appointed under the Act have decided that all intacks unfenced are parcel of the forest.

By that decision the Commissioners have included in the so-called forest several intacks belonging to Samuel Brooke, which intacks he claims in fee; and concerning these intacks he is still advised, notwithstanding the decision of the said Commissioners, that the intacks being severed from the so-called forest, the Commissioners could not deal with them, although a portion of them are not fenced, but the boundaries are all set out in the licenses which were produced, and for these intacks Mr. Brooke is entered and pays rent. The two principal points urged by Mr. Watson, on the part of the Crown, are, first,— that the lands were not fenced; and second, the agistor's sheep had been allowed to run over these lands.

As regards the first, Mr. James, Q.C., is reported to have said, that the very name intacks implied that it was taken in from the waste; and Mills, in his work on the Commons in the Isle of Man, says of intack, that they are "accurately defined in the lord's entries, inclosed by certain real or imaginary boundaries," and have always been considered separate from the waste. As to the sheep running over these intacks, the lord is in no way prejudiced, and it is no cause for forfeiture; and, if the point is to prevail, it is inconsistent with custom and several decisions to which the Crown has been made party, and if applicable to intacks it must be equally applicable to the land within Deemster Lace's boundary at the point of Ayre, for there the sheep have always run over those lands, and they are not fenced; there is no clause as to compensation in the Act for intack holders. The Act only professes to deal with the rights of the Crown and the rights of the commoners, and it is not to be presumed, in the absence of express words, that the statute meant to work injustice, by including unfenced intacks in the so-called forest, and depriving the holders of their land, and thus derogating from the lord's grant, unless the Act was drawn on the assumption that these intacks were merely estates at will or had been forfeited.

The Legislature in the Isle of Man never intended to deal with these unfenced intacks in passing the Disinforesting Act; and more than that, they have never attempted to deal with them in any Act.

The Turbaries Act of 1852, referred to in the Disinforesting Act, does not deal with these unfenced intacks, and no proceedings were ever taken against owners either by the Great Inquest or any one else, for cutting or removing the surface sod or scraas, which right is continually exercised. The owners of these unfenced intacks drive the sheep away when they think proper, cut turf or scraas at any time, can bring trespass, and, in many places, exercise the exclusive right of cutting the fearne. In the licenses there are no stipulations with regard to the erecting or upholding of fences, and these unfenced intacks are considered in the nature of arable lands, and, as such, pay tithes.

In Colonel Campbell's case, in 1835, where, on appeal to the House of Keys, the Crown was made party, it was decided that, where a person paid rent for unfenced intack, although the sheep had run over the part claimed from time out of mind, and no license could be found, and there was merely hearsay evidence as to boundary, he could inclose, and this claim has been confirmed by the Commissioners, and unfenced intacks have been considered by the authorities good security for the issue of bank notes, and they are frequently mortgaged.

I have not thought it necessary to call your attention at any length respecting the customs and other matters relating to these intacks, as they have been so recently investigated by Mr. Watson.

Every indulgence was granted as to time, and every facility was afforded to Mr. Brooke by the law officers of the Crown and the Commissioners respecting his claims, and the Commissioners heard these claims, respecting the right of the Crown to deal with these intacks under the Act, argued at some length, but the Commissioners stated that, under the fifth section, they are bound to consider all land forest which is unfenced, and from this there is no right of appeal provided in the Act.

It is only fair to state that the counsel who have recently advised on behalf of Mr. Brooke had several matters laid before them which were not brought to the notice of the Commissioners.

I hope that this matter will receive the attention of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, and that the Commissioners appointed under the Act will be allowed to arbitrate between the Crown and the intack holders as regards the boundaries. If, on inquiry, you should find that the unfenced intacks are not mere estates at will but customary estates of inheritance, and that you will do justice to these intack holders, particularly as no compensation is provided for in the Act, and the Act itself was not brought under the notice of the people of the Isle of Man till after it had passed. If no compensation or allotment is to be allowed by the Honourable Commissioners of Woods and Forests, it leaves those intack holders no alternative but to try the right of the Crown to deal with unfenced intacks under the Act.

I remain &c.

6, Pump-court, Temple,
2 October 1861.

(No. 2035.)

Sir, Office of Woods, &c. 9 October 1861.

I AM directed by Mr. Howard to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2d instant, respecting the decision of the Commissioners under the "Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," as to the boundaries of the land therein described as "the uninclosed forest."

It

It appears to Mr. Howard that the point to which you refer was one solely for the determination of those Commissioners. After hearing your arguments on behalf of Mr. Brooke, and fully considering the subject, the Commissioners gave their decision, with which Mr. Howard cannot interfere.

I am, &c.

Thomas Brooke, Esq. (signed) J. Russell Sowray.

To the Honourable Commissioners of Woods and Forests.

Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860.—Mr. Samuel Brooke's Intacks.

Gentlemen, Druidale, Isle of Man, 25 October 1861.

YOUR communication of the 9th instant, in reply to mine of the 2d, was forwarded to me here, and I feel somewhat surprised that the Commissioners of Woods and Forests do not think proper to make compensation or any allotment for rented intacks, which the Commissioners under the Act have included in the forest.

Last April, I called the attention of one Member of your Honourable Board to the 5th section of the Act, and pointed out the great injustice that might be done if the Commissioners appointed under the Act included unfenced intacks in the forest, and that a construction was capable of being put upon the 5th section of the Act which was contrary to the intention of the Legislature (who are not merely a legislative but a judicial body) who passed it, and contrary to justice; besides that, this Act being brought in by the Crown, the people of the Isle of Man knew nothing about it till it was passed.

The Crown allows the land (which is intack) within what is called Deemster Lace's line, at the point of Ayre, to be excluded from the forest, although it is unfenced, and the sheep have always run over it; and the only marks for boundary are stones alleged to have been placed at long distances from each other in 1795, while intack, for which rent has been paid for nearly 150 years and held by grant from the lord, and whose boundaries are unremoveable and are recorded, are included in the forest.

As your Honourable Board decline to interfere in this matter, I have to inform you that Mr. Brooke and others (whose lands are attempted to be taken from them) intend to try the right of the Crown to deal with the unfenced intacks under the Act.

I am, &c.

Sir, Office of Woods, &c., 7 November 1861.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th ultimo, further relative to the decision of the Isle of Man Disafforesting Commissioners respecting the Lord's Forest, and to inform you that I have no power to interfere with the decision of the Commissioners either as regards the Ayre lands or the portion which was claimed by Mr. Samuel Brooke.

I am, &c.

Thomas Brooke, Esq. (signed) James Howard.

LETTER, dated the 6th day of May 1863, enclosing a MEMORIAL to Sir George Grey, and REPLY thereto by the Honourable J. K. Howard, dated the 9th day of July 1863.

Sir, Douglas, 6 May 1863.

ENCLOSED I forward you a copy of a memorial to the Secretary of State.

On behalf of the memorialists, I beg to request the consent of the Woods and Forests, on the part of the Crown, to the introduction of the amended Act therein mentioned. Mr. Watson, who managed the case for the Crown before the Disafforesting Commissioners, is quite conversant with the circumstances which caused the difficulty complained of and proposed to be remedied.

I am, &c.
(signed) Richard Sherwood,
Advocate for Memorialists.

Kenneth Howard, Esq.,
Commmissioner, Woods and Forests.

To the Right Honourable Sir George Grey, Bart., Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Home Department, &c. &c. &c.

The humble Memorial of Samuel Brooke, of Druidale, Duncan Gibb, of Baljean ; James Clague, of Ballacregga ; John Cowley, of Crammag ; and John Skillicorn, of Ballaragh, in the Isle of Man :

Sheweth,—

THAT memorialists are entitled to certain large parcels of uninclosed lands lying within the boundary of the forest or commons of this isle by virtue of licenses to inclose or approve, granted either by the Duke of Athol, when Lord of the Isle, or by the officers of the Crown, in respect of which lands a quit-rent is payable, and has for many years been paid by memorialists and their predecessors.

That the lands so licensed are called, in this island, Intack Lands.

That the Commissioners appointed under the provisions of the " Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," in ascertaining and declaring the boundary of the said forest or commons, have refused to allot to memorialists their said uninclosed lands, they having decided that, by the legal construction of the said Act, they were compelled to ascertain the boundary of the whole of the uninclosed forest, and that they had no power to exclude therefrom any intacks, unless the same had been actually separated and inclosed from the forest.

That one of the duties of the Commissioners acting under the said Act was to decide upon the right of Her Majesty to grant licenses to inclose the said forest.

That the Commissioners have decided that all such licenses are good and valid.

That this absurdity has arisen from the said Act, namely, that although the Commissioners have decided for the validity of titles under license, yet they have no power to exclude the lands licensed (if uninclosed) from the forest, they being bound to ascertain the boundary of the forest as uninclosed, the Commissioners thus being compelled to exclude claims which they, by their decision, find to be good and valid.

That the effect of such decision is to deprive memorialists of their said lands, and no remedy is provided for them by the said Act.

That many other persons, having valid claims to parcels of uninclosed common, have been deprived of the same by such decision.

That memorialists are informed that the said Commissioners, on several occasions, when deciding upon such claims, expressed their regret that the wording of the said Act compelled them to place this construction on the same, and suggested that some person having an interest therein should apply to the Legislature to have the said Act amended, and that they would recommend that the same should be done.

That

That, in order to enable memorialists, and many other persons having similar claims, to have their claims decided upon and allowed, it is necessary that the said Act should be amended, and that proper provisions be enacted to give the said Commissioners power to decide upon, and ascertain, the titles and boundaries of such uninclosed intacks lying within the boundary of the said forest, and to allot the same to the owners thereof.

That, on the 16th day of April last, the memorialist, Samuel Brooke, presented his petition to the Tynwald Court of this isle, for leave to introduce a Bill, as proposed, before the Insular Legislature to amend the said Disafforesting Act, and to provide a remedy in the premises; but, although the necessity of the said amended Act, and the hardship occasioned by the working of the Disafforesting Act were fully admitted by the members of the Council and Keys then assembled, the said memorialist was requested to withdraw the said petition until the consent of Her Majesty should be first obtained for the introduction of such Bill, inasmuch as the same affected the rights of the Crown.

That memorialists most respectfully submit that Her Majesty's consent should be given for the introduction, before the Legislature of this isle, of a Bill to amend the said Disafforesting Act, and to remedy the injustice caused by the operation thereof in a manner not intended or contemplated (as memorialists believe) by the Legislature at the passing thereof.

Wherefore memorialists humbly pray that leave be given, on the part of the Crown, for the introduction by memorialists into the Insular Legislature, of a Bill to amend the said Disafforesting Act, and provide a remedy for the matters aforesaid.

And Memorialists will pray, &c. &c.

Advocate for Memorialists.

Sir, Office of Woods, &c., 9 July 1863.

I HAVE had under my attentive consideration your letter of the 6th of May last, and the document enclosed with it, being the copy of a memorial addressed by Messrs. Samuel Brooke, Duncan Gibb, James Clague, John Cowley, and John Skillicorn, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Home Department, praying that, for the reasons therein named, leave be given on the part of the Crown for the introduction, by the memorialists, into the Insular Legislature, of a Bill to amend the "Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," and I have to acquaint you, for the information of the memorialists, that, having given my best attention to all the facts and circumstances connected with the subject, I do not feel myself able to support the prayer of the memorial.

I am, &c.

NOTE.

THE letter of the 9th July 1863 was written after the law officers of the Crown had been consulted on the subject to which it relates.

A resolution of the Tynwald Court, in reference to the same matter, dated 13th July 1863, will be found in a subsequent part of this return. The result of the whole was the passing of the Compensation Act, of which a copy will be found in the Return No. 6, Session 1865. It may be added, that there seems to have been some misconception by the Committee of the Tynwald Court, who inquired into the subject (and whose report will be found in a subsequent part of this return), respecting the language of the fifth section of the Act of 1860. In the Bill, as submitted to the Insular Legislature, the Commissioners were (by the fifth section) directed to ascertain "the boundaries of the uninclosed lands in the said forest." In the progress of the Bill through the Insular Legislature, these words were altered, so as to stand "the boundaries of the lands in the said forest uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed," an alteration which rendered the clause more precise and comprehensive.

LETTER from Thomas Brooke to Sir George Grey.

Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860.

Sir, 6, Pump Court, Temple, E.C., 9 May 1863,

I BEG leave to submit to you, that it is not in accordance with honourable and fair dealing, if the sale of lands in the Isle of Man, directed by the Disafforesting Commissioners, is proceeded with on the 14th instant, after the proposal to deal with the rights of claimants on the said lands, by a Bill to the Court of Tynwald, on Thursday the 16th of April, which met with general approval of both the Council and Keys, and was only postponed in consequence of a technical objection. I, therefore, as a considerable claimant on part of the property included in Lot 20 of the catalogue prepared for the said sale, do respectively submit that the said sale be postponed, at least as to the said lands, until the subject can again be brought before the Tynwald Court in due form, which I am desirous to do without any delay.

I am now driven to take this, the only step which is left me, in defence of my rights, and in order to advoid endless litigation that must be the consequence of any sale of my lands on the 14th instant; and as there are no less than 76 lots advertised for sale, no great inconvenience can arise from those few lots on which there are claims being withdrawn for the present. A copy of this has been forwarded to the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, and also to the Disafforesting Commissioners, and the Lieutenant Governor of the Isle of Man.

I remain, &c.

The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act.—Ex parte Brooke.

Goldsmith's Building, Temple,
My dear Sir, 9 May 1863.

ON considering the above Act, and the several facts and circumstances mentioned by you in conference, I have no doubt whatever that the Commissioners, acting in virtue of that statute, have erred in their construction of its terms, and have in consequence applied it to lands to which it is not applicable. The language of the statute, is the language of ancient forest law, from which the terms inclosed and intack derive a peculiar and specific signification; and I am of opinion, contrary to the decision of the Commissioners, that lands, although not visibly surrounded with any fence or brought under tillage, may yet by proper proceedings to that purpose, have been disafforested and inclosed within the meaning and intent of the language of this statute, and that this is very naturally proved by such documents and records, as would be created in a proceeding for the disafforesting and inclosure of such lands. If the Commissioners, notwithstanding the existence of such documents, or other sufficient evidence of such disafforesting, have nevertheless declared your lands to be still part of the ancient forest, they are clearly acting in error, and against the manifest rights of property; but as their Act is probably not null, and as there is doubt about the power of the tribunals of the country to interfere, I advise you to use your utmost exertions to have the sale of these lands stopped, before irreparable injury and injustice have been done you.

LETTER from Thomas Brooke to Sir George Grey.

Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860.

Sir, 8, Pump-court, Temple, 27 June 1863.

MR. SHERWOOD, the advocate for the promoters of the Bill to amend the Disafforesting Act, has forwarded to me a letter from the Lieut.-Governor of the Isle of Man of the 19th instant, wherein you decline to accede to the prayer prayer of the petition for obtaining the consent of the Crown to bring in a Bill to amend the said Act, as you "do not think it expedient to re-open the matter in question, and that therefore the sales of land should proceed."

I hope you will be induced to reconsider this matter, as probably all the circumstances have not been laid before you, and the more especially since the decision of the Disafforesting Commissioners cruelly and illegally deprives many persons of lands held in fee, and for which they are to receive no compensation, and there is no mode of raising the question of title or boundary either at law or in equity. Mr. Howard, one of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, assured me, prior to the passing of the Disafforesting Act, that it was not intended to deal with any lands which were held under licenses, as one of the objects of the Act was to ascertain whether the Crown could make an approvement, without the sanction of the Great Inquest or Homage Jury; and the Act itself only professes to deal with the unappropriated lands, and it is not to be presumed, in the absence of express words, that the statute meant to work injustice, by including unfenced intacks in the forest, and thus derogating from the Lord's Grant. The Disafforesting Commissioners, when sitting at Douglas, suggested an amendment of the Act, as regards the unfenced intacks, and also declared that they had no power under the 11th and 12th sections of the Act to grant me a case for the Privy Council; subsequently, at the suggestion of their secretary, I saw Mr. Watson, solicitor to the Woods and Forests, and he informed me that the Disafforesting Commissioners considered that they had no power to grant a case to be submitted to Her Majesty in Council respecting the unfenced intacks.

The House of Keys, not only a Legislature, but also a judicial body, when the 5th section of the Act was under discussion, were unanimous in their opinion that no possible construction of the said section, could include the unfenced intacks in the forests; and when the Bill for amending the Act was brought before the Tynwald Court in April last, the Council and Keys concurred in deprecating the injustice caused by the erroneous construction of the Act, and were favourable to the introduction of the Bill for amendment.

As the Commissioners are still acting, and the third Commissioner has got to decide the rights of different claimants, no inconvenience can arise from this matter relating to the unfenced intacks being re-opened, those lands on which there were claims having been withdrawn by the Commissioners at the late sales.

I have, &c.

PETITION from Council and Keys, Isle of Man, and REPORT of Committee of the Tynwald Court, forwarded by the Governor of the Isle of Man to Sir George Grey, July 1863.

At a Tynwald Court holden at Castle Rushen, the 13th July 1863,

Resolved, That Her Most Gracious Majesty be petitioned to grant permission for the introduction of a Bill into this Legislature for the purpose of amending the 5th Section of "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," so far as it affects persons having a right to portions of the uninclosed Forest, and that his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor be respectfully requested to forward a copy of this Resolution, together with the reasons for coming to such resolution, to the Right Honourable Sir George Grey.

REPORT of the Committee appointed by the Tynwald Court on the 6th July 1863, to draw up a Resolution Explanatory of certain Grievances complained of under "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860."

THE Committee having duly met under the above order of the Tynwald Court, and having considered the matters referred to them, beg leave to report to the Court as follows:—It is enacted by Section 5 of "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," that the Inclosure Commissioners shall ascertain the boundaries of the lands in the Forest "uninclosed or which ought to be uninclosed," which boundaries, "as ascertained by the Commissioners, shall be conclusively deemed to be the true boundaries of the uninclosed Forest for all the purposes of this Act." The Inclosure Commissioners decided that under the above section they were bound to hold that all uninclosed lands within the ancient Forest were by the Act made conclusively portions of the Forest, and that no claims of private individuals, however clear or indubitable, could prevail against the strict wording of the Act,—that the question of title could not be entertained. There were at this time persons claiming to own portions of uninclosed land in the Forest.

These persons state that their portions had been purchased from former Lords of the Island, and were held on the same tenure according to the customary law of the Island, as all other intact lands in the Island are held, viz, in perpetuity on payment of a small annual rent to the lord, and they state further that up to this day that annual rent has been paid by them, and received by the lord.

It must have escaped the notice of those who, on the part of Her Majesty's Woods and Forests, prepared the Act in question, as it undoubtedly escaped the notice of the Legislature of this Island, and of the persons whose rights have been taken away, that the clause in question caused a forfeiture of all the lands formerly forest lands owned by individuals which had not at the time been inclosed, and those individuals were first informed that they had been stripped of their property when the Inclosure Commissioners decided that the Act precluded them from considering the claims.

It is unnecessary to say that it was never intended by the Legislature of the Island to deviate so far from the first principles of justice as to take away the private property of any individual without a hearing and without compensation. The wrong, in this case, appears the greater because this Committee are informed that one individual, if not more, holding forest land under a similar tenure got timely intelligence of the flaw in the Act, and accordingly inclosed his lands before the Act was promulgated. That individual has now, therefore, an indefeasible right to his lands while others claiming under similar titles have been deprived of theirs. Fortunately the wrong that has been done can yet be remedied.

The Inclosure Commissioners have determined that after certain deductions, one moiety of the uninclosed lands will be a sufficient compensation for the rights of Her Majesty, the other portion remaining to be allotted to the commoners.

The fruits, therefore, of the injustice will be reaped partly by Her Majesty, and partly by the commoners of the Island.

The remedy for the injustice is as follows. It is simple and plain, and requires only the consent of those who have benefited by the mistake.

Most of the forest lands are yet unsold. Supposing, therefore, that difficulties should be suggested with respect to giving the lands back to the persons entitled to them, there would at all events, be no difficulty in compensating those persons out of the proceeds of the sale of part of the remaining lands; the claims to be investigated before such tribunal as Her Majesty should approve of or appoint.

Neither Her Majesty's Government acting for Her Majesty, nor the commoners moners of this Island would wish to receive a benefit at the expense of an injustice; and your Committee, therefore, can entertain no doubt but that if the opinion of the Court of Tynwald should be made known to Her Majesty's Government, Her Majesty will be advised to give Her gracious consent that, in this matter, right should be done.

The Committee would, therefore, recommend that a Resolution be passed asking Her Most Gracious Majesty to grant permission for the introduction of a Bill into this Legislature for the purpose of amending the 5th section of "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," so far as it affects persons having a right to portions of the uninclosed Forest, and that his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor be respectfully requested to forward a copy of the Resolution, together with the reasons for coming to such Resolution, to the Right Honourable Sir George Grey.

— No. 7.—

DEED of CONVEYANCE to the CROWN by the Disafforesting Commissioners, dated the 17th day of July 1863.

THIS INDENTURE made the Seventeenth day of July One thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, between George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, Esquires, Barristers-at-Law (being the Commissioners duly appointed under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the Isle of Man, intituled "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," promulgated on the Thirteenth day of November in the year aforesaid, and duly adopted and agreed to by the Honourable James Kenneth Howard, a Commissioner of Her Majesty's Woods and Forests and Land Revenues) of the first part, the said James Kenneth Howard, as such Commissioner, as aforesaid of the second part, and the QUEEN'S Most Excellent MAJESTY of the third part: WHEREAS the said George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, pursuant to the directions of the said Act, and by a declaration in writing under their hands, dated the Twenty-fourth day of August One thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, ascertained and declared the boundaries of the lands in the said Forest uninclosed, or which ought to be uninclosed (in the said Act, called "the Uninclosed Forest"), and the parcels of land hereinafter described and hereby conveyed, lie within the boundaries of the said Forest as the said boundaries are ascertained by that declaration: AND WHEREAS by the said Act it was declared that for the purpose of providing a fund to be called the "First Award Fund" to defray the costs and expenses in the said Act mentioned, it should be lawful for the said Commissioners, subject to the provisions therein contained with respect to certain rights of Thomas Arthur Corlett, to sell by public auction, and to dispose of any part or parts of the uninclosed Forest which they might deem necessary, and after one month's notice in two of the newspapers published in the said Island, and subject to such conditions as to fencing roads, or otherwise, as they might think proper, and that every conveyance by the Commissioners should be effectual to vest in the purchaser or purchasers the fee simple and inheritance in possession of the land sold (subject to the reservation to Her Majesty of the minerals and stone, with the rights of working the same, and subject to such conditions as might be expressed in such conveyance), and that the receipt of the said Commissioners should be a sufficient discharge for any purchase-money: AND WHEREAS for the purposes aforesaid, the said George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson did, on the Fourteenth day of May last, after due publication of the notice of sale as required by the said Act, cause the parcels of land intended to be hereby conveyed, together with other parts of the said Forest, to be sold in lots by public auction in the Isle of Man, according to certain printed particulars and conditions of sale, and the said parcels of land hereby conveyed constituted forty-six lots of the whole quantity of land described in the said particulars, the numbers of which lots are specified in the Schedule hereunder written: AND WHEREAS at such sale the Queen's Majesty, by Her Agent, was declared to be the highest bidder for, and became the purchaser of, the said lots or parcels of land intended to be hereby conveyed for the sum of Eight thousand eight hundred and six pounds; and pursuant to the aforesaid conditions of sale the sum of Two thousand two hundred pounds was paid into the hands of the authorised Agent to the said Commissioners as a deposit of Twenty pounds per cent. in part of the said purchase money: AND WHEREAS the said purchase was made by the said James Kenneth Howard as such Commissioner as aforesaid, under the authority of an Act of the tenth George Fourth, chapter 50, and of another Act of the fourteenth and fifteenth Victoria, chap. 42, and with the consent of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury signified by their warrant. NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that, in consideration of the said sum of Two thousand two hundred pounds so paid as aforesaid, and of the further sum of Six thousand six hundred and six pounds of lawful money of Great Britain, paid by the said James Kenneth Howard on behalf of Her Majesty, at or before the sealing and delivery of these presents to the credit of the said Commissioners of the "Isle of Man Disafforesting Act, 1860," at the Bank of England, which said sum of Six thousand six hundred and six pounds, with the said sum of Two thousand two hundred pounds paid by way of deposit as aforesaid, makes the full sum of Eight thousand eight hundred and six pounds, the purchase money for the said parcels of land comprised in the said forty-six lots, and the receipt of which said sum the said George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, as such Commissioners as aforesaid do hereby admit and acknowledge, and therefrom discharge the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors, and also the said James Kenneth Howard as such Commissioner as aforesaid; they, the said George Wingrove Cooke, Nathan Wetherell, and James Henry Patteson, as such Commissioners as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the power and authority to them for that purpose given in and by the said Act, do hereby grant, sell, and convey unto the Queen's Majesty ALL those several pieces or parcels of land, situate in the parishes of Kirk Onchan, Kirk Braddan, Kirk Lonan, Kirk Marown German, Kirk Malew, Kirk Arbory, Kirk Christ Rushen Archallaghan, Kirk Bride, and Kirk Andreas, in the Isle of Man, containing together, Two thousand seven hundred and seventy acres, three roods and four perches, more or less, being the land comprised in the said forty-six lots in the said printed particulars, which said pieces of land, with the numbers of the said lots, are more particularly described and set forth in the Schedule hereunder written, the boundary fences of which said lots to be made, and for ever hereafter maintained by the Queen's Majesty, are also specified in the said Schedule (which said parcels of land expressed to be hereby conveyed are coloured red on the plans annexed to these Presents), together with the appurtenances to the same respectively belonging: To have and to hold the said parcels of land, and all and singular other the premises hereinbefore described, and hereby granted, sold, and conveyed, or intended so to be, with the rights, members, and appurtenances, subject to the liabilities referred to in the 28th, 29th, 30th, and 31st sections of the said first-mentioned Act, unto the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever, as part of the possessions and land revenues of the Crown. And the said James Kenneth Howard doth hereby direct that this deed shall be deemed to be fully and sufficiently enrolled by the deposit of a duplicate thereof in the office of Land Revenue, Records, and Enrolments, and the filing or making an entry of such deposit by the keeper of the said records and enrolments. IN WITNESS whereof the said parties to these presents, of the first and second parts, have hereunto set their hands and seals, the day and year first above written.

NOTICE published by the Commissioners of Woods in the Isle of Man Newspapers for the Removal of Cattle and Sheep from certain Land included in such Deed of Conveyance.

LORD'S FOREST, ISLE OF MAN.

Take Notice,

THAT all sheep, horses, cattle, and geese, depasturing upon the lands which have been purchased by the Crown from the Isle of Man Disafforesting Commissioners must be removed on or before the 31st March next.

By order of the Honourable James K. Howard, Commissioner of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues.

Office of Woods, &c. 1 January 1864.

— No. 9. —

AUTHORITY by the Honourable J. K. Howard, Commissioner of Woods, to Crown Agent in Isle of Man, to remove Sheep and Cattle from the same land; and LETTER of the 3d day of June 1864 from the Lieutenant Governor to the Honourable J. K. Howard, on the same subject.

To Frederick Cobb Skrimshire, Receiver of the Rents, Issues, Revenues, and Profits of all and singular Her Majesty's Honours, Castles, Lordships, Manors, Lands, Tenements, Rents, Services, and other Hereditaments and Possessions whatsoever in the Isle of Man.

I DO hereby authorise and direct you to remove, or cause to be removed, all sheep, geese, and cattle, which may be found upon the Crown lands specified in the following Schedule, and to clear the said lands of all such sheep, geese, and cattle: And I hereby further authorise and direct you to place some person or persons in possession of the said lands, on behalf of Her Majesty.

Dated this 12th day of May 1864.

James K. Howard { Commissioner of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, in charge of the Land Revenues in the Isle of Man.

SCHEDULE referred to in the foregoing Document.

First. A tract of land belonging to Her Majesty, and situate partly in the parish of Kirk Christ Rushen and partly in the parish of Kirk Patrick, comprising the mountains called Cronk-na-Eyria Laa and Cronk-na-Sleau-na-Carnane, and bounded on the west by the sea, on the north partly by land in the possession of Mr. Charles Dodds and partly by a new road leading from Port St. Mary and Port Erin to Dalby, on the east partly by the said road or way and partly by the ancient mountain fence, and on the south by the said fence, which said tract of land contains 1,000 acres or thereabouts; and, secondly, a piece of land in the parish of Kirkpatrick, and bounded towards the east by a new road leading from Port St. Mary and Port Erin to Dalby, towards the north by land in the possession of Mr. S. Carron, and on the remaining sides by land in the possession of Mr. Charles Dodds, and which secondly-mentioned piece of land contains 29 acres or thereabouts.

Government House, Isle of Man,
Sir, 3 June 1864.

I HAVE the honour to transmit a copy of a proclamation, which I considered it necessary to issue on the 26th ultimo.

Mr. Skrimshire made affidavit before Mr. Cuninghame, a justice of the peace, to the effect that he was prevented from proceeding to the Crown lands situated in the sheadings of Glanfaba and Rushen, by the tumultuous assembly of misguided persons who opposed his entrance on those lands by menace and force, and he requested Mr. Cuninghame to take such steps as are directed by the law of the island to disperse such assemblage of persons.

Mr. Cuninghame having brought the matter to my notice, I made such arrangements as appeared to me to be advisable to place Mr Skrimshire in full possession of the lands from which he was unlawfully ejected by the people who lived in the neighbourhood of the lands to which I have above referred.

Upon the morning of the 30th ultimo I proceeded with a large police force, accompanied by the military, whom I had called out in support of the civil power, to that portion of the Commons where resistance had been offered on two previous occasions.

Between 200 and 300 people were collected, but on seeing the force I had with me they offered no resistance. It appears from their statement that a curious misapprehension as to the state of the law existed amongst them; they considered if they could maintain possession of the Commons by force the law would confirm them in possession.

I was enabled to disabuse their minds of this very erroneous impression, and I trust the steps I have taken will prevent any recurrence of trouble of the same nature for the future.

I have, &c.

The Hon. J. K. Howard, (signed) Henry B. Loch.

PROCLAMATION by the Lieutenant Governor.

Isle of Man to wit.

WHEREAS it has been represented to me that many misguided persons within the sheadings of Glenfaba and Rushen did, about 23d and 25th days of this month, tumultuously assemble themselves, contrary to the peace of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, and against all law and good government, and did violently enter lands not belonging to them, and also by menaces and force are now endeavouring to keep possession of the same:

And whereas it has been further represented to me that injury to property has occurred by the unlawful conduct aforesaid:

In order therefore to prevent, as far as in me lies, a repetition of such lawless conduct, calculated to draw severe punishment upon all concerned, I have directed the high bailiffs of Castletown, Douglas, Ramsey, and Peel, to make a return of such respectable inhabitants as may be willing to be sworn special constables, to act in aid of the civil power; and I do hereby call upon all liege subjects to come forward and enrol their names with the high bailiffs, in order that they may be commissioned and sworn as special constables as aforesaid:

And I do hereby order and direct all high bailiffs, captains of parishes, coroners, constables, and all officers, civil and military, to use their best endeavours to preserve the peace and bring offenders to justice.

Given at Government House this 26th day of May 1864.

Henry Brougham Loch,
Lieutenant Governor.

PETITIONS of Samuel Brooke and John James Moore.

To his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, the Honourable the Council, and the Keys in Tynwald assembled.

The humble Petition of Samuel Brooke,

Sheweth,

THAT petitioner has only recently heard that the Bill for Amending the Disafforesting Act of this island is to be signed by this honourable Court of Tynwald this day.

That petitioner being largely interested in the land, being a landed proprietor to a very considerable extent in this island, is desirous to be heard in opposition to the signing and passing of the said Bill.

That petitioner is prepared to adduce to this honourable Court grave reasons why they should not sign and pass it as aforesaid.

That petitioner is of opinion that the said reasons are sufficiently strong to cause this honourable Court to refuse to sign the said Bill.

Wherefore petitioner prays to be permitted to be heard by counsel before this honourable Court, and to be permitted to bring forward his reasons for the rejection of the said Bill; and the petitioner will ever pray, &c.

Alfred Laughton, Advocate for the Petitioner.

Ordered, That this petition do come on to be heard at a Tynwald Court to be held at Castle Rushen, this day, at 11 o'clock forenoon.

Given at Castle Rushen, this 4th December 1863.

Henry B. Loch.

At a Tynwald Court holden at Castle Rushen, the 4th day of December 1863, this petition is continued.

Note.—This petition was heard on the 8th February 1864.

Henry B. Loch.

To His Excellency Henry Brougham Loch, Esq., C.B., Lieutenant Governor, and the Honourable Council and Keys of the Isle, in Tynwald assembled.

The humble Petition of John James Moore,

Sheweth,

THAT the petitioner is proprietor of certain lands in the island to which rights of common are appendant and appurtenant.

That the Act designated "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Act," passed by this Honourable Court, has been put into operation in such a manner by Commissioners appointed thereunder as to be unjust to the petitioner and the inhabitants of the island, and also inconsistent with the designation and tenour of the said Act.

That the Commissioners have not complied with the requirements and directions of the said Act, namely, to sign and execute their award in duplicate, and deposit one of them in the Rolls Office, but are now expecting from this Honourable Court, by a Bill lately introduced, such amendments or alterations in the said Act as will sanction their unjust and inconsistent proceedings and defalcation of duty.

That proceedings have been instituted by the petitioner and the inhabitants of the island to correct the proceedings of the Commissioners by a decision of the Privy Council.

That any legislation on any of the subjects contained in the said Act by this Honourable Court, would obstruct and prejudice the rights of the petitioner and and of the inhabitants in obtaining a decision of the Privy Council on the proceedings of the Disafforesting Commissioners under the said Act.

Wherefore the petitioner prays a hearing hereof, and that this honourable Court will be pleased, in justice to the petitioner and to the inhabitants of the island, to withhold their sanction to the said Bill; and the Petitioner will ever pray, &c.

John James Moore.

Ordered, That this petition do come on to be heard at a Tynwald Court to be holden at Castle Rushen on this day.

Given at Castle Rushen the 8th February 1864.

Henry B. Loch.

Note.—The Tynwald Court passed "The Isle of Man Disafforesting Compensation Act, 1864," on the 8th February 1864, after hearing the above petitions.

REPORT made by the Governor. Proceedings taken by the Civil and Military Authorities on the Island for removing the Commoners' Cattle and Sheep off the Waste Lands in the Summer of 1864.

Government House, Isle of Man,
Sir, 1 June 1864.

I HAVE the honour to transmit copy of a proclamation which I found it necessary to issue on the 26th ultimo.

I requested the officer in command of the troops to assemble them at 9 a.m. on the morning of the 30th in the Market-place at Castle Town; and I also requested him to call out the Pensioners.

I directed Captain Goldie, the head constable, to assemble as many police constables as could be spared from their other duties at the same place and hour.

With this force I proceeded to that portion of the Commons where resistance had been offered on two previous occasions to the police constables.

About 200 people were collected, but upon seeing the force I had with me offered no resistance. It appeared from their statements that a curious misapprehension of the state of the law existed amongst them; they informed me they had been advised, and I have since reason to believe that they had been so advised, that if they could maintain possession of the Commons by force the law would confirm them in their possession.

I was enabled to disabuse their minds of this very erroneous impression, and I have every reason to believe that the result of the steps which I have taken will be such as to prevent any recurrence of troubles of the same nature for the future.

I have, &c.

The following Regulations have been made by the Postmaster General, with the consent of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43. in so far as his Department is concerned, and for the guidance of the Officers of his Department.

A short and plain Abstract of these Regulations, together with full and clear illustrations of the Tables of Premiums, and instructions as to the course to be followed by persons desiring to insure their lives or to purchase Government Annuities, will be prepared for the information of such persons.

REGULATIONS

RESPECTING GOVERNMENT INSURANCES AND ANNUITIES.

The following Regulations are made under the Authority of the Act of Parliament 27th and 28th Vict. c. 43., intituled "An Act to grant additional Facilities for the Purchase of small Government Annuities, and for assuring Payments of Money on Death."

Hours and Places of Business.

1. Every Post Office, being a Money Order Office, at which the Postmaster General shall permit proposals for the Insurance of Lives or the purchase of Government Annuities to be received, shall be open for such purpose, and for the receipt of the premiums becoming due to the Postmaster General from time to time under Contracts for the Insurance of Lives or the purchase of Government Annuities, and for the payment of any sums which shall become payable by the Postmaster General under the said Contracts, during the hours appointed for the transaction of Money Order business at the said Post Office.

Any Office, not being a Money Order Office, at which the Postmaster General shall permit such proposals or premiums to be received or such payments to be made, shall be open for such purposes during such hours and on such days as the Postmaster General shall determine.

Terms of Proposals for the Insurance of Lives.

2. At the Offices appointed for such purposes by the Postmaster General, proposals shall be received for the Insurance of Lives,—

I. By payment of a Single Premium ;

II. By payment of a Premium annually throughout the whole life of the person insured ;

III. By payment of a Premium once in every six months, or once in every three months, or monthly (that is, once in each calendar month), or fortnightly (that is, twice in each calendar month), or weekly (that is, four times in each calendar month), throughout the life of the person insured ;

IV. By payment of a Premium annually until the person insured shall have attained the age of 60 years ;

V. By payment of a Premium once in six months, or once in three months, or monthly, or fortnightly, or weekly, until the insured person shall have attained the age of 60 years ; but no such proposal shall be received from or on behalf of any person under the age of 16 years, or over the age of 60 years, or for the payment of any premium of less amount than two shillings, or for the insurance of more than 100*l.* on any one life, or for the insurance of less than 20*l.*, unless the Proposer shall have previously insured his life under these Regulations, in which case he may make further proposals for the insurance of not less than 5*l.* at any one time, and may repeat such proposals until the whole sum insured on his life shall amount to 100*l.*, but no longer.

The sums which shall become due under Contracts for the Insurance of Lives shall be paid to the persons who shall be entitled to receive them, immediately after proof, in the manner hereafter to be described, of the death of the persons insured.

Form of Proposal for Insurance of Lives.

3. Every person who shall desire to insure his life for the first time under the provisions of the above-cited Act shall make his proposal for such insurance on the following form, to be obtained at any Money Order Office, and shall deposit the proposal at one of the offices appointed by the Postmaster General for the receipt thereof. _____ day of _____ 18___.

The Statements made and the Answers given by the Proposer in his Proposal Form and to the Medical Examiner to be the basis of the Contract for the Insurance of Proposer's Life. Such Contract to be null and void if such Statements or Answers, or any of them, be false.

6. If the Postmaster General shall think fit, on receipt of the report from the Medical Examiner, to enter into a Contract on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt with the Proposer, then the statements made and the answers given by the Proposer on the Proposal Form and to the Medical Examiner shall be taken to be the basis of the Contract; and if it shall afterwards appear that the said statements or answers, or any of them, are untrue, or that the Proposer withheld any of the information which was required from him, then any Premiums which shall have been paid by the Proposer under the Contract shall be forfeited, and the Contract rendered absolutely null and void.

Proposer's Statement of Age may be admitted in the Contract, and if so admitted shall not afterwards be called in question.

If, however, the Postmaster General, before the execution of the Contract, shall be satisfied that the Proposer has stated his age correctly, he shall, if he think fit, declare in the Contract that he has admitted the Proposer's statement of age, and if the Proposer's statement of age be thus admitted in the Contract it shall not subsequently be called in question.*

In fixing the Premiums to be charged for the Insurance of Lives, the "Tables for Ordinary Lives" to be used, except in certain cases.

7. If the Postmaster General shall think fit to enter into a Contract on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt for the Insurance of the Proposer's life, he shall require the Proposer to pay according to age the Premiums fixed by the tables framed under the authority of the Act 27th and 28th Vict. c. 43., and intituled "Tables for Ordinary Lives," unless he be made aware of any circumstances connected with the health or habits of the Proposer which may tend to shorten the Proposer's life, in which case he shall, if he think fit, require the Proposer to pay, in addition to the Premiums fixed by the "Tables for Ordinary Lives," such additional Premiums as shall appear sufficient to cover the additional risk, or unless the Proposer shall at the date of his Proposal follow the occupation of a miner, or that of a butcher, or that of an innkeeper, publican, or beerseller, or that of a sailor or mariner, or shall follow any other occupation which shall seem likely to be attended by special risk to life, in which case the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, require him to pay, according to age, the Premiums fixed by any tables which may be specially framed under the above-cited Act for persons following the above-named occupations.

Persons insured under "Tables for Ordinary Lives" to give notice to Postmaster General if they subsequently enter on certain Occupations, or go out of Europe or on the high seas.

8. If the Postmaster General shall enter into a Contract on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt with the Proposer, and shall require the Proposer to pay, according to age, the Premiums fixed by the "Tables for Ordinary Lives," on the understanding that the Proposer is not, at the date of the Contract, following any one of the above-named occupations or any other occupation which shall seem to be attended by special risk to life, and if the said Proposer or Contractor at any period subsequent to the date of the Contract shall take up and follow either of such occupations, or any occupation which shall have been excepted by the Contract, or shall go beyond the limits of Europe, or shall go on the high seas, except in time of peace in passing from one part of Europe to another part of Europe, or shall enter upon active service as a soldier, he shall give notice accordingly to the Postmaster General, and the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, require the Proposer or Contractor to pay such Premiums, in addition to those paid or payable under the Contract, as shall be necessary to cover the additional risk, or shall require the surrender of the Contract; but if the Proposer or Contractor does not give such notice to the Postmaster General, or if he shall die by his own hands or by the hands of justice, then all the Premiums which he shall have paid or shall afterwards pay under the Contract shall be forfeited, and the Contract rendered absolutely null and void.

Contract to be null and void if such Notice be not given.

Form of Contract for Insurance of Life.

9. If the Postmaster General shall think fit to enter into a Contract, on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, for the Insurance of the Proposer's life, the Contract shall be in the following form, and shall specify—

I. The name of the person insured under the Contract:

II. The amount insured:

III. The amount of Premium:

IV. The periods at which the Premiums will become due and payable:

V. The conditions under which the Premiums will be forfeited, and the Contract rendered null and void.

* Specimens of the Proposal and other Forms to be used when a person who shall already have been insured under these Regulations shall desire to effect a further insurance on his life will be found in Appendix C.

Execution and Delivery of Contract.

10. The Contract shall be executed by an officer appointed for the purpose by the Postmaster General, with the consent of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, and shall be delivered to the Contractor, on payment by him of the first Premium due under the Contract, at such one of the offices appointed for the purpose as the Contractor shall select; and the Contractor shall continue to pay the Premiums due under the Contract at the said office until he shall give notice to the Postmaster General, on a Form to be obtained at any Money Order Office, of his desire to pay them at some other office than that which he at first selected.

Premiums to be paid at such of the Offices appointed for that purpose as Contractor shall select.

Receipts for Premiums.

11. If the Contractor be required by the Contract to pay for the insurance of his life by a single Premium, the delivery of the Contract to him, on payment by him of the said Premium, shall be a sufficient receipt for the Premium. If he be required by the Contract to pay an annual Premium, or to pay Premiums more often than once in each year, there shall be delivered to him, together with the Contract, a Premium Receipt Book, in which book the date and amount of each Premium paid by him shall be entered at the time of payment by the Postmaster or other officer to whom the payments are made, and who shall affix his signature and the dated stamp of his office to each such entry. An abstract of these regulations, and a statement of the dates on which the Premiums will be payable, from time to time, under the Contract with him, shall be given on the cover of the Contractor's Premium Receipt Book.

Premiums becoming due periodically to be paid within the weeks in which the days appointed by the Contracts for such payment shall fall. If not so paid Contractor to be held to have made default of payment.

12. The Premiums due annually or more frequently than once in each year under Contracts for the Insurance of lives must in every case be paid by the Contractors within the weeks (that is, before the close of business on Saturday,) in which the days appointed by the Contracts for such payments shall fall. Thus, if the Contract shall appoint the first day of January as the day on which a Premium payable annually shall become due, the said Premium must be paid annually within the week (that is, before the close of business on Saturday,) in which the first day of January shall fall; and if the Contract shall appoint the first Monday and the third Monday in each calendar month as the days on which a Premium payable fortnightly shall become due, the said Premium must be paid within the weeks (that is, before the close of business on Saturday,) in which the first Monday and the third Monday in each calendar month shall fall. And any Contractor who shall omit to pay his Premiums within the weeks in which the days appointed for the payment of such Premiums fall shall be held to have made default of payment.

Contract to be renewed after default if application be made for such renewal within four weeks from date of default, and if Postmaster General shall think fit.

13. If any Contractor for an Insurance on his life shall thus make default of payment, the Contract for the Insurance of his life shall be null and void; and if he shall desire to renew the said Contract he must make application accordingly to the Postmaster General within four weeks from the date on which the default of payment shall occur. On receipt of the said application the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, direct the defaulting Contractor to present himself for medical examination by a legally qualified medical practitioner, to be named by the Postmaster General, and the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, but not otherwise, renew the Contract with the defaulting Contractor, and shall, as a condition of such renewal of the Contract, require the defaulting Contractor to pay any arrears of Premium from the date of default which shall be due from him, and shall also, if he think fit, require the defaulting Contractor to pay a fine for default of 4*s.*, if the amount assured by the Contract does not exceed, and a fine of 8*s.* if that amount does exceed, the sum of 60*l.*

Contractors who have paid Premiums under Contracts with them for five years or upwards, and who make default of payment, or desire to surrender their Contracts, to receive not less than one third of the Premiums paid by them.

14. If any Contractor for an Insurance on his life, after having paid the Premiums due under the Contract with him for a period of not less than five years, shall desire to surrender the said Contract, or shall make default in the payments due under that Contract, the Postmaster General, on the application of the person beneficially interested in the said Contract, on a form to be obtained at any Money Order Office, shall pay to such person such sum of money, not being less than one third of the Premiums which shall have been paid by him, as shall be fixed by any regulations* which may be framed for the purpose under the authority of the Act 27 and 28 Vict. cap. 43, or shall grant to such person such a paid-up Contract of Assurance, or such an immediate or deferred annuity, as shall be equivalent in value to the said sum of money.

Contractors who have paid the Premiums due under the Contracts with them for five years or upwards may assign such Contracts.

15. If any Contractor for an Insurance of his life, after having paid for five years or upwards the Premiums due under the Contract with him, shall desire to assign to some other person his right and interest in the said Contract, he shall notify such desire to the Postmaster General, on a form to be obtained at any Money Order Office, and shall pay such fee and conform to such conditions as shall be required by the Postmaster General under the Regulations† which shall be framed for the purpose.

Sums becoming due under Contracts for payments on Death to be made to the persons entitled to receive them on production of proof of death.

16. On the death of any Contractor for an Insurance on his life, and on production to the Postmaster General of Probate of the Will of the said Contractor, or of Letters of Administration to the effects of the said Contractor, or of an assignment of the Contract with the said Contractor made under such conditions as shall hereafter be prescribed by the Regulations, and on production of a certificate of the death or a certificate of the burial of the said Contractor, together with a statutory declaration made before a Justice of the Peace by some person not beneficially interested in the Contract, of the identity of the Contractor with the person named in the certificate of death or certificate of burial, and on production of such other evidence of death and identity as the Postmaster General shall see fit to require, the Postmaster General shall issue to the executor, administrator, or assignee of the said Contractor a warrant for the sum due under the Contract, which warrant shall be payable forthwith, upon delivery of the Contract and the Premium Receipt Book, at such one of the offices appointed for the purpose as the executor, administrator, or assignee shall select.

* As under the Provisions of the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43. no Policy or Contract of Assurance will have a surrender value until the Premiums due under the said Policy or Contract have been paid for five years, and as no question with regard to the surrender value of such Policies or Contracts can arise until the year 1870, the Regulations with respect to such surrender are withheld for further consideration.

† As no Policy or Contract which shall be issued or made under the Authority of the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43. can be assigned until the Premiums due under it shall have been paid for five years or upwards, and as no assignment of any such Policy or Contract can be made legally until the year 1870, the Regulations with regard to such assignment are reserved for further consideration.

19. The Proposal thus duly signed by the Proposer shall be forwarded to the office of the Postmaster General in London by the Postmaster or other officer with whom it is deposited,* and if the Postmaster General, after examination of the evidence of age and inquiry * of the persons to whom the Proposer refers him, shall think fit to enter into a Contract on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt with the Proposer in the manner proposed, the Proposal shall be taken to be the basis of such Contract; and if the Proposer shall afterwards be proved to have wilfully made any untrue statement of the age of the person upon whose life and for whose benefit the Annuity is granted, then any Purchase Money or instalments of Purchase Money which shall have been paid under the Contract shall be forfeited, and the Contract rendered absolutely null and void.

The Statements in the Proposal to be taken as the basis of the Contract, and the Contract to be null and void if such Statements be found to be untrue.

* A Form of Report from the Postmaster concerning the Proposal and the Inquiry Forms will be found in Appendix D.

The Purchase Money to be fixed in accordance with the Tables framed under the Acts 16 & 17 Vict. c. 45. and 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43.

20. If the Postmaster General shall think fit to enter into a Contract on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, for the grant of an Annuity or Monthly Allowance on the life of any person, he shall require the Purchaser to pay such sum or sums of Purchase Money according to the age and sex of the person on whose life the Annuity or Monthly Allowance is to depend, and the period at which the Annuity is to commence, as shall be fixed by the Tables framed under the authority of the Act 16 & 17 Vict. c. 45., or under the authority of the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43.

Form of Contract for Grant of Annuity or Monthly Allowance.

in the present year, and in every subsequent year up to the date at which the is, according to the Contract, to commence, then the Postmaster General shall, pursuant to the said Act, be subject and liable to pay, on behalf of the said Commissioners, to the said the sum of £ on without any deduction or abatement whatsoever.

But this Contract is made subject to the following provisos:

1st. No payment of the said shall be claimed or recoverable until shall, to the satisfaction of the Postmaster General, have proved himself to be alive at the date of the payment becoming due.

2d. This Contract shall be void, and all the sums paid under it on account of the Purchase Money shall be forfeited, if the age of be less than at the date of Contract.

Proof of age once given need not be repeated.

22. If any person who shall have purchased an Annuity of less than 50*l.*, or a Monthly Allowance of less than 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d., and who shall have produced proof of the age of the person for whose benefit and on whose life such Annuity or Monthly Allowance shall have been purchased, shall desire to purchase a further Annuity or Monthly Allowance on the life of the same person, the proof of age furnished by him on the occasion of his first Proposal shall be deemed sufficient on the occasion of the second or any subsequent Proposal; and the statement of age which he made on the occasion of his first Proposal shall be taken as the basis of the Contract to be made in accordance with the second or any subsequent Proposal. And if the said statement shall at any time be proved to be untrue, the Purchase Money which shall have been paid under any Contracts based on that statement shall be forfeited and the Contracts rendered null and void.

Execution and Delivery of Contract.

Purchase Money to be paid at such of the Offices appointed for the purpose as Purchaser shall select.

23. The Contract shall be executed by an officer appointed for the purpose by the Postmaster General, with the Consent of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, and shall be delivered to the Purchaser on payment by him of the Purchase Money, or first instalment of the Purchase Money due under the Contract, at such one of the offices appointed for the purpose as the Purchaser shall select; and the Purchaser shall continue to pay any instalments due under the Contract at the said office until he shall give notice to the Postmaster General, on a form to be obtained at any Money Order Office, of his desire to pay them at some other office than that which he first selected.

Receipts for Purchase Money or Instalments of Purchase Money.

24. If the Purchaser be required by the Contract to purchase the Annuity by a single payment, the delivery of the Contract to him on payment of the said purchase money shall be a sufficient receipt for the purchase money. If he be required by the Contract to pay the purchase money by annual instalments or to pay instalments more often than once in each year, there shall be delivered to him, together with the Contract, an Instalment Receipt Book, in which book the date and amount of each instalment paid by him shall be entered at the time of payment by the Postmaster or other officer to whom the payments are made, and who shall affix his signature and the dated stamp of his office to each such entry.

An abstract of these regulations, and a statement of the dates on which the instalments will be payable from time to time under the Contract with him, shall be given on the cover of the Purchaser's Instalment Receipt Book.

Periodical instalments of Purchase Money to be paid within the weeks in which the days appointed by the Contracts for the payment of such instalments shall fall. If not so paid the Purchaser shall be held to have made default of payment.

25. The instalments due annually or more frequently than once in each year, under Contracts for the grant of Annuities or Monthly Allowances, must in every case be paid by the Purchasers within the weeks (that is before the close of business on Saturday) in which the days appointed by the Contracts for such payments shall fall.

Thus, if the Contract shall appoint the first day of January as the day on which an instalment payable annually shall become due, the said instalment must be paid annually within the week (that is before the close of business on Saturday) in which the first day of January shall fall; and if the Contract shall appoint the first Monday and the third Monday in each calendar month as the days on which an instalment payable fortnightly shall become due, the said instalment must be paid within the weeks (that is before the close of business on Saturday) in which the first Monday and the third Monday in each calendar month shall fall. And any purchaser who shall omit to pay his instalment within the weeks in which the days appointed for the payment of such instalments fall, shall be held to have made default of payment.

Conditions under which Purchase Money shall be returnable in case of default of payment or death of person on whose life Annuity is granted before commencement of Annuity.

26. If any person who shall have agreed to purchase a deferred Annuity or deferred Monthly Allowance, by payments made annually or more often than annually, on condition that in the event of default of payment or in the event of the death of the person on whose life the Annuity depends before the period at which the Annuity is to commence, the Purchase Money paid shall be returnable, shall make default of payment, or if the person on whose life the Annuity is to depend shall die before the Annuity commences, then the person for whose benefit the annuity was purchased or his representatives shall make application to the Postmaster General on a form to be obtained at any Money Order Office for the return of so much of the Purchase Money as shall have been paid. And the Postmaster General on being satisfied of the right of the applicant to receive back such Purchase Money shall issue a warrant for the amount, which warrant shall be payable at such one of the offices appointed for the purpose as the applicant shall select.

Conditions under which Purchase Money shall not be returnable.

But if it shall have been a condition of the purchase that no part of the Purchase Money be in any event returned, then, in case of default of payment, or in case of the death of the person on whose life the Annuity is to depend before the period at which the Annuity commences, the Contract shall be cancelled and be at an end.

Contracts for Deferred Monthly Allowances which shall be cancelled by default may be renewed, if Postmaster General shall think fit, on application from Purchaser within four weeks from date of default, and on payment of arrears and of a fine.

If, however, the Purchaser of any Deferred Monthly Allowances shall make default, and shall desire a renewal of the Contract which will have been cancelled by his default, he shall make application accordingly to the Postmaster General within four weeks from the date of default, and the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, but not otherwise, renew the Contract upon payment by the defaulting Purchaser of any arrears of Purchase Money which shall be due from him, and of a fine for the default of two shillings and sixpence.

Postmaster General may, if he shall think fit, grant Annuities in trust.

27. The Annuities or Monthly Allowances granted under these Regulations shall be granted in the sole name of the person on whose life and for whose benefit they are granted, except in the case of females, infants under twenty-one years of age, idiots, persons of unsound mind, or persons incapacitated by bodily or mental infirmity from taking care of themselves, in which cases the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, and on proper application being made to him, grant such Annuities or Monthly Allowances upon the life of such person to such person and to two or more persons not interested therein as trustees for such person; but in all such cases the name of the person on whose life and for whose benefit the Annuity or Monthly Allowance is granted shall be inserted in the Contract as joint proprietor of the said Annuity or Monthly Allowance.

Postmaster General may permit such trusts to be transferred.

28. When the Postmaster General shall thus have contracted, on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, to grant an Annuity or Monthly Allowance to more persons than one, he may, if he think fit, permit the persons not beneficially interested therein, jointly with the person who is beneficially interested therein, whether that person is or is not twenty-one years of age, to transfer the said Annuity or Monthly Allowance to other persons of whom the person beneficially interested shall always be one, and he may, if he think fit, permit such transfer even when the person beneficially interested is incapacitated by mental or bodily infirmity from joining in it.

The Right and Interest in and to an Annuity or Monthly Allowance shall not be assignable except in case of the Bankruptcy of the person beneficially interested therein.

29. No Right, Title, Interest, or Benefit in or to any Annuity or Monthly Allowance which shall be purchased under these Regulations shall be assignable by the Proprietor thereof, except in the case of the bankruptcy of such Proprietor, when the same shall become the property of his assignee or assignees for the benefit of his creditors; and in case of such bankruptcy the Postmaster General shall, on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, repurchase such Annuity or Monthly Allowance, according to the value thereof, to be computed by the Tables in accordance with which the Annuity or Monthly Allowance was granted, and shall pay the value thereof to the said assignee or assignees, whose receipt shall be a sufficient discharge.

Annuities and Monthly Allowances to be paid at such of the Offices appointed for the purpose as the Proprietors shall select. Conditions and mode of payment.

30. The Half-yearly Payments or Monthly Allowances which shall become due from time to time under the Contracts into which the Postmaster General shall enter shall be made and paid by Warrants, which Warrants shall be issued from the Office of the Postmaster General in London to the Proprietors of such Annuities or Monthly Allowances, and shall be payable at such of the Offices appointed for the purpose as the said Proprietors shall select. The Postmasters of the Offices at which the Warrants are made payable shall be advised from the Office of the Postmaster General in London of all Warrants made payable at their Offices; and shall not pay any Warrant unless so advised, and unless the Proprietor of the Annuity or Monthly Allowance shall present the Warrant in person, sign the receipt at the foot of the said Warrant in the presence of the paying officer, and produce a certificate declaring the said Proprietor to be alive at the date of the Warrant, and signed by a justice of the peace, or by a minister of any denomination, or by a churchwarden, or by a legally qualified medical practitioner, or by a postmaster, or any other officer, not being the paying officer, of the Postmaster General. And if by reason of bodily infirmity the Proprietor of the Annuity or Monthly Allowance shall be unable to present the Warrant at the Office appointed for the payment, then an officer of the Postmaster General shall carry the amount of the Warrant to the residence of such Proprietor, obtain from him the requisite Life Certificate, pay him the amount of the Warrant, and take the signature of the Proprietor on the receipt at the foot of the Warrant. The Warrants when paid and receipted shall be transmitted, together with the corresponding Life Certificates, to the Office of the Postmaster General in London.

On the death of the Proprietor of an Annuity payable half-yearly, one fourth part of the said Annuity and any arrears of half-yearly payments to be paid to his Representatives.

31. If the Proprietor of a Deferred Annuity, payable half yearly, shall die after having received one or more of such half-yearly payments, there shall be paid to his representatives, on proof of his death and of their title within two years from the date of his death, a sum equal to one fourth part of the said Annuity, and any arrears of half-yearly payments which shall have been due to him at the date of his death.

Postmastsr General may, if he shall think fit, make arrangements with the Superior Officers of or employers of persons who shall have insured their lives or contracted to purchase Annuities, for the collection of the Premiums or instalments by deductions from the salaries and wages of such persons as shall be willing to permit of such deductions.

32. If any person under the control of the Postmaster General, or under the control of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue or the Commissioners of Customs, or any person employed in any Government Department, or any person employed by the directors of a railway company, or by a manufacturer, or other large employer of labour, after effecting an insurance on his life or contracting to purchase a Deferred Annuity or Monthly Allowance under these Regulations, shall desire to have his premiums or instalments deducted from his salary or wages, and paid over to the officers of the Postmaster General, and if the persons under whom or by whom he is employed shall be willing to undertake the deduction of such premiums or instalments from his salary or wages, with the view of paying them over to the officers of the Postmaster General, then the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, make arrangements with the said employers for such purpose, and shall constitute the Departments, Offices, or Places of business of such employers "Offices for the receipt of "proposals and for the receipt of premiums and instalments;" and shall pay to such employers such remuneration for the work done by them or their officers or servants as shall be agreed upon between him and them.

Depositors in Post Office Savings Banks may pay their Single Premiums on Contracts made under these Regulations by transfers from their Savings Bank Accounts.

33. If any Depositor in a Post Office Savings Bank shall propose under these Regulations to insure his life by a Single Premium, or to purchase an Immediate or Deferred Annuity by payment of a single sum, he may, if he shall think fit, request the Postmaster General to apply the whole or part of the sum standing to his credit in the books of the Post Office Savings Bank to the payment of the said single premium; and on receipt of such application the Postmaster General shall, if he think fit, cause the sum which the Depositor shall wish so to be applied to be transferred from the Depositor's Account in the books of the Post Office Savings Bank to the Account to be opened with him for the Insurance of his life, or for the grant of an Annuity; and the sum so transferred shall be entered on the withdrawal side of the Depositor's Savings Bank Book, as if it had actually been paid to him, and shall be held to have been paid to him, and shall be held to have been received from him as the premium, or as part of the premium, according to its amount, which he shall be required to pay for the insurance of his life or for the purchase of the Annuity.

Insurances may be effected and Annuities granted on the lives of married women.

34. The Postmaster General may, if he think fit, contract, on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, to insure the life of a married woman for not less than 20*l.* and not more than 100*l.*, and may grant an Annuity of not more than 50*l.* or a Monthly Allowance of not more than 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* on her life, even though he shall have insured the life of her husband to any amount within the prescribed limits, or granted an Annuity of any amount within the prescribed limits on the life of such husband.

Annuities due to married women shall be paid to them, unless their husbands give notice to the contrary.

Annuities or Monthly Allowances granted to married women or to women who shall afterwards marry, shall, when they become payable, be paid to such women, unless their husbands shall give notice in writing to the Postmaster General of their desire to have such Annuities or Monthly Allowances paid to themselves.

All costs and charges, except cost of furnishing evidence of age, are provided for in the premiums for Insurance of lives and Grant of Deferred Monthly Allowances.

35. Persons proposing to insure their lives, or to purchase Deferred Monthly Allowances, under these Regulations, shall provide at their own cost such Certificates of Birth or Baptism, or other evidence of age, as shall be required from them, but shall not be required to pay any Fee or Fees for Medical Examination, or to pay the cost of any inquiry which the Postmaster General may think fit to make with regard to their health, habits, age, and occupation, or to pay any Fee or Fees for the issue of any Contracts which may be made in accordance with their Proposals, or to pay any postage for the transmission of their Proposals, or for the transmission of any correspondence arising out of such Proposals between them and the Postmaster General, inasmuch as a provision for all such costs and charges is included in the premiums which they will be required to pay, in accordance with the Tables framed for the purpose, for the Insurance of their lives or the purchase of Deferred Monthly Allowances.

Persons purchasing Immediate and Deferred Annuities to pay cost of producing evidence of age, and a fee of one shilling for every Pound of Annuity purchased.

36. Persons proposing to purchase Immediate or Deferred Annuities, payable half yearly, shall provide at their own cost such certificates of birth or baptism or other evidence of age as shall be required of them, and, inasmuch as the Premiums fixed by the Tables framed for the grant of such Annuities do not include any provision for costs and charges, shall, if the Postmaster General think fit, be required to pay, at the time of purchase, a fee of one shilling for every Pound of Annuity purchased.

Annuities to be free from tax.

37. Life Annuities or Deferred Monthly Allowances purchased under these Regulations shall be free from all taxes, charges, or impositions whatever, and all such Annuities or Deferred Monthly Allowances shall be declared personal estate.

Persons insuring their lives or purchasing Annuities under these Regulations to be regarded as Savings Bank Depositors.

38. Every person purchasing an Annuity or having purchased the same under these Regulations, or contracting for the payment of a sum of money on his death, shall be considered as a depositor in a savings bank; and all the provisions of the Acts now in force relating to savings banks, in as far as the same can or may be applicable, shall apply to the parties having purchased or purchasing such Annuities, or contracting for the payment of money on death, and to the rules and regulations to be made for carrying the same into effect: Provided always, that nothing in this clause contained shall be held to exempt any person or persons entering into a Contract for a payment on death, or any person or persons becoming beneficially interested therein, from any probate or stamp duty payable by law.

Disputes to be settled by arbitration under Savings Bank Acts, or in County Courts in England and Wales, Sheriff Court in Scotland, or Civil Bills Court in Ireland.

39. If payment of any sum of money due on a Contract made by the Postmaster General, on behalf of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, for payment of money on death, shall be refused, the person beneficially interested therein may, if he think fit, instead of proceeding to arbitration in manner provided by the said Savings Banks Acts, take proceedings against the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt in the County Court of the district in which such Contract was entered into, or, with the consent of the said Commissioners, in any other County Court in the jurisdiction of which such person may be resident, for the recovery of the amount; and any County Court in which such proceedings may be taken shall have jurisdiction in the matter, and the decision thereupon shall be final and binding on all persons to all intents and purposes, and without any appeal; and for the purposes of this Regulation the Contract shall be deemed to have been entered into at the place where the person insured resided at the date of the Contract. For the purpose of arbitration under the said Acts relating to Savings Banks, the said Commissioners shall, when necessary, be deemed to be in the place of the Trustees of the Savings Banks. In Scotland the Sheriff Court, and in Ireland the Civil Bills Court of the Chairman of Quarter Sessions, shall have the same jurisdiction as is given by this Regulation to the County Court.

Interpretation.

40. In the construction of these Regulations, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant thereto, every word importing the singular number only shall mean and include several persons or things, as well as one person or thing, and the converse, and every word importing the masculine gender only shall mean and include a female as well as a male; and the word month shall refer to a calendar and not to a lunar month.

STANLEY OF ALDERLEY,
Postmaster General.

General Post Office,
London, 22d February 1865.

Approved by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, this 23d day of February 1865, pursuant to the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43.
